WEDS SISTER BY MISTAKE.

Quarrels with Bride First Night, Quits Next Day, is Now Divorced.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) Nov. 28.—George Link set a record when he married. He did not marry her to whom he had paid court, but instead married her sister. In celebrating the occasion he got drunk and quarreled with the bride the first night of their married life, and they separated the next morning. All this happened June 8, 1914, according to the testimony in the divorce case before Judge Ewbank today. The court granted Mrs. Ada G. Link the divorce, although he remarked that he was straining a point by doing so. Mrs. Link is a telephone operator living at No. 2363 Olney street.

MORE GERMAN DYES ARRIVE IN BOSTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Nov. 28. — The tank steamer Sun, bringing a valuable cargo of German dyes from Rotterdam for New York, put in here today with her bunkers almost bare of coal, as a result of heavy weather. A big sea tore away a section of the port side steel bridge, and fear was expressed that water had penetrated the cargo hold, but this will not be determined until the Sun reaches New York.

THE GREAT WAR. The Situation to Date: The battle of Lodz.

Allies waiting in Flanders for a new attack by the Germans.

Gen. Von Hindenburg created a field marshal on order of the Kaiser.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

"Progress at some points" is as far as the Grand Duke Nicholas will go in the direction of confirming the reports published in Petrograd with Asiatic if not barbaric colorings, of wonderful victories of the Russians over the Germans. On the other hand the Kaiser yesterday made Gen. Von Hindenburg a field marshal as a token of esteem for the protection he has given the East Prussian frontier against the Slavic incursions. In Western Europe the allies are said to be waiting for the promised renewal of the German attack. Just why the allies do not attack the Germans deponents say naught.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PALMDALE (Cal.) Nov. 28.—A pitched battle, it is feared, may be precipitated early tomorrow morning between a maurauding gang of Gypsy banditti who have terrorized the near-by countryside and an army of seventy-five officers and citizens, who tonight, under cover of darkness, surrounded the raiders as they lay encamped in a wooded ravine two miles west of Delsur.

Unhindered, the desperadoes, comprising sixty men, women and children, robbed the United States mail carrier of government money he was carrying and rifled the mail sacks, held up several automobile parties, including an eastern millionaire, looted two general merchandise stores of all the plunder they could carry, and even held up several persons as they were on their way to town to identify members of the gang who had been captured. They also committed numerous other depredations, their booty in the total aggregating several thousand dollars.

The Gypsies seem by agreement to have congregated in this region for the last few days, until now they present an armed and mounted force that makes their presence in the neighborhood like an invading host, ready to rob any who come within their reach, and foraging the countryside for anything they need or want. Ranchmen coming into this city report the desperadoes have taken their horses, pigs, poultry and farm produce in great numbers, and in some cases have destroyed that which they could not take.

WOMEN THIEVES.

Nearly a dozen automobile parties were held up, the bandits covering the autoists with guns and robbing the men while the women terrorists took the jewels and clothes of the ladies.

L. F. Noble, a millionaire of Pittsburgh, with a party, met some of the bandits as they were coming toward town. The Noble party lost jewels valued at several thousand dollars and a large sum of money. The ladies were nearly prostrated when their valuables were veritably torn from their persons by the marauders.

Harry Russell, owner of the Russell borax mines, was also robbed at the point of several guns by the banditti, as were several others. The gypsies attacked their victims in such force that none dared put up a fight.

C. W. Day, a rural mail carrier whose route is between Neenach and Labec, was robbed of his money and his mail sacks were rifled by the bandits as he was making his rounds.

At Fairmont the general merchandise store conducted by H. P. Libby was nearly depleted, the gypsies taking food, clothing and other goods, in many cases in their haste damaging goods that they could not take.

Similar treatment was accorded the little general merchandise store owned by Jim McKenzie at Gorham, about fifty miles west of here. In his case they almost "cleaned up" the store, leaving practically nothing of value.

Ranchmen, farmers and travelers report depredations that remind one of the guerrillas during the Civil War and the hordes that are terrorizing sections of Mexico.

POSSE FORMED.

Immediately upon word reaching here of the oncoming Gypsies, word was sent to the Sheriff's office at Los Angeles and a large force of men was dispatched to this place. These men, together with the local officers and a quickly formed Vigilance Committee of armed ranchmen and farmers with saddle horses and several automobiles, gathered in the city tonight and laid their plans of action.

They thought it best to prepare for a pitched battle in the morning when some of their number try in some manner to get the maurauders to come to some terms with them whereby the guilty members of the party may be surrendered. If their requests are refused, trouble is expected immediately.

The desperadoes are armed with several guns of their own and with those taken in their raids yesterday, and have sixteen wagons in which to hide themselves. In the party are about fifty men, ten women and several children.

A few individuals have been captured by the officers and are now in jail awaiting identification by those who have been robbed. They refuse to talk about the situation, remaining sulky and defiant.

A PEACE MISSION BY DR. VAN DYKE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Henry van Dyke, Minister to The Netherlands, will see President Wilson Wednesday morning. It has been said Mr. Van Dyke will discuss the subject of the European peace with the President, but there is no one in official circles here to support that view.

STARVING BELGIANS MAY RENEW THE FRAY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 28, 8:50 p.m.—There is imminent danger that, driven desperate by hunger, the Belgians in some districts will attack the Germans in an effort to obtain food, according to a report received today by Herbert O. Hoover, chairman of the American Relief Commission, from a special commissioner doing relief work in Maastricht, Holland. The commissioner cites a statement made by a refugee, which was confirmed by others, in which the Belgian says:

"In Berchem (two miles southeast of Antwerp) and the neighboring villages, there has been for some time no food available except what was got through the commission. At Berchem the Germans stored the food which they seized at Antwerp and which they stated was being sent to Brussels. Consequently the people, while starving, see quantities of food within reach. Meetings are being held nightly, where the chances of success in attacking the German garrison and taking possession of the food are seriously discussed."

In the suburbs of Antwerp, the commissioner's report says, refugees declared there was virtually a food famine. The inhabitants were dependent solely upon the commission's distribution and when the supply temporarily became exhausted privation at once ensued.

The conditions at Louvain, refugees state, are still worse. The people are actually starving and are living in ruins.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE OPENS WITH A CHEER.

Resumption of Trading Exercises a Marked Effect Upon Sentiment Throughout the Financial District. Unusually Large Attendance of Members — Dealings at All Times Moderate.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The New York Stock Exchange reopened its doors today for the first time in nearly four months, to permit limited trading in bonds. The conservative element had successfully resisted all efforts to renew business, even in tentative form, until home investment conditions reflected some justification for such action.

It was evident, however, that the resumption of operation even under the rigid terms imposed, which included the establishing of minimum prices, exercised a marked effect upon sentiment throughout the financial district. There was an unusually large attendance of members and the sound of the opening gong was echoed by loud and prolonged cheering from the floor, which was taken up by the visitors in the galleries. Trading all through the brief session reflected hesitation and timidity on the part of investors and brokers. There resulted a number of material declines from July 30 prices, with a few gains, chiefly in the industrial division of the bond list. At no time was there any movement suggesting serious liquidation and of foreign selling, concerning which some apprehension had been felt, there appeared to be none at all.

Dealings at all times were very moderate, this being shown by the total business of the session, which amounted to $644,000 par value, exclusive of $5000 in government bonds.

The largest single transaction was a sale of 20,000 Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul general mortgage 4½ per cent. bonds, which was recorded in the early dealings, at a loss of two and one-half points. For the most part, offerings were in lots of one to five bonds, best prices being established at the outset, after which fractional recessions were general. Altogether about fifty different issues were quoted instead of some 150 or more in active times.

It was evident from the disparity between July 30 prices and some recorded today, that the exchange authorities had virtually waived minimum prices in a few of the inactive issues. For instance, bonds of the Southern Railway, Wabash, Seaboard Airline, Atlantic Coast line and one or two other railroad companies, lost from four to nine points, while the 4½ per cents. of the International Mercantile Marine Company fell eleven points.

Among the few issues which sold at prices higher than the closing of July 30 were American Telephone and Telegraph convertibles, Bethlehem Steel refunding 5's, Central of Georgia 5's, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul convertible 4's, Distillers' Securities 5's, Interborough Metropolitan 4½'s, New York Railways adjustments and Texas Company convertibles.

It is significant of the attitude of the exchange that minimum prices are subject to change from day to day. In a word, today's minimum may be lowered on Monday, and with each passing day the list will undergo "general readjustment."

MOVEMENTS OF WARSHIPS IN WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 28.—A dispatch received here from Montevideo says that a squadron of ten British warships has been sighted 300 miles from Montevideo. The direction in which these ships were proceeding is not given. A telegram received here from Iquique, Chile, says that four warships, nationality unknown, have been seen off the Chilean coast steaming north.

GERMAN CRUISERS OFF ALASKA COAST.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Nov. 28.—News that three German cruisers, unexpectedly changing their base from the west coast of South America to the Aleutian Islands, are lurking in the trade route between Puget Sound and the Orient is brought by the Japanese steamship Tacoma Maru, in port from Yokohama.

The Tacoma Maru received information in a wireless message from the Chicago Maru of the same line while steaming between the 180th and 190th meridians.

The Chicago Maru, bound to the Orient, was a little west of the 180th meridian. Officers of the Chicago Maru said they had altered their course to lessen the danger of capture. Precautions were taken aboard the Tacoma Maru and for three nights the ship ran without a light showing.

FRENCH REPORT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Nov. 28.—An official naval bulletin issued at Bordeaux by the French government last night, said:

"The German cruisers in the Pacific do not seem to have left Chilean waters since the first of November."

These vessels are the armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the smaller ships Leipzig, Dresden and Nuernberg. The Chilean government has recently taken steps to prevent this fleet from getting coal from Chilean ports and from using the island of Juan Fernandez as a naval base.

Well informed men here say that for a German vessel to enter the North Pacific would be suicide, as the whole Japanese navy would go in pursuit at once.

FRANCE THREATENS ITALY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—The following information was given out today by the official bureau:

"Enver Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War, and Djemal Pasha, the Minister of Marine, have left for Egypt. Turkish newspapers, commenting upon the situation in the Mediterranean, brought about by Turkey's action, say that if Turkey liberates Egypt, political dissensions will disappear.

"Since the French established a naval base at Bizerta, Tunis, Italy has been threatened in the Mediterranean. She has likewise been menaced at Bengazi by the British naval base in the Gulf of Soloum. Italy is thus in a perplexing situation. Victory for Turkey and allies, these newspapers say, will extricate Italy from these dangers.

"The Tasfiri Efkiar of Constantinople says that Russia's only way of approach to Constantinople is by way of Vienna, since Italy and Roumania are the masters of the Russians in the Adriatic as well as in the Black Sea."

PERUVIAN BUDGET DEFICIT.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

LIMA (Peru) Nov. 28.—The budget for 1915 which was presented today by the Minister of Finance in the Chamber of Deputies, shows a deficit of 10,000,000 soles ($5,000,000.) The government is taking steps to reduce expenses because of the impossibility of making a loan at this time.

GERMANS RENEW ATTACK ALONG WESTERN FRONT.

Trying to Break Allies' Line with Seven Hundred Thousand Men.

Conflicting Accounts of the Battle in Poland Leave the World in Doubt as to Which Side has Advantage. Activity of the Warships may be the Herald of a Large Engagement.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 29, 2:45 a.m.—The Weekly Dispatch's Boulogne correspondent says:

"The Germans have collected 700,000 men in the neighborhood of Arras, where they are preparing for a determined effort to break through the allies' line.

"Heavy fighting already has begun."

LONDON, Nov. 29, 2:40 a.m.—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends an official statement which warns the public to observe caution in accepting rumors of a crushing Russian victory.

The statement says the retreating Germans are offering desperate resistance and the battle has not yet been finished.

LONDON, Nov. 28, 8:45 p.m.—"We have succeeded in making progress at certain points," is all that Grand Duke Nicholas, Russian commander-in-chief, permits himself to say of the battle of Lodz, in which, according to information from unofficial sources, the Russians have gained a great victory over the German armies, which made the third attempt since the commencement of the war to advance to Warsaw.

This brief reference to the battle, added to what was said in the previous report from Russian headquarters, is taken here to mean that if the Germans have not been defeated already, the Russians have drawn a cordon around them from which they will have great difficulty in escaping.

Some correspondents in Petrograd, who quote the highest military sources for their information, report that this cordon is steadily tightening and that the Russian guns are spreading death among the German armies caught in its grip. They declare the only hope for the Germans, who are said to number 150,000, is that the two army corps sent to their relief may be able to break through the Russian line, which they are attacking at Lenozyca northwest of Lodz.

That the Germans have not given up hope is shown by the Berlin official account of the operations, which tonight says the Germans have recommenced their attacks and that the fighting continues.

Gen. Von Hindenburg, who has just been made a field marshal by Emperor William in recognition of the protection he and his troops have given the East Prussian frontier, in any army order, issued at Thorn, says the Germans have brought the Russian offensive to a standstill and inflicted heavy losses.

Farther south, to the west of Novo Radomsko, the Germans also claim to have repulsed the Russians, while for the armies which are advancing to besiege Cracow, the Russian headquarters announces a "decisive success." In the past few days' fighting in this region the Russians, according to their official reports, captured about 15,000 prisoners, forty cannon, twenty machine guns and some General Staff officers.

This battle, although it is considered in military circles here not to be as important as that around Lodz, would open the way for the Russians into Southern Silesia, if they are successful. Cracow, these military men admit, would prove a hard nut to crack, but in this regard a usually well-informed Petrograd correspondent says the Russians have a surprise in store for the Austro-Germans.

ALLIES WAITING.

In the west the allies are still waiting for the new attack by the Germans, which has been so long promised. All communication between Belgium and Holland has been stopped, so that nothing authoritative can be learned of what the Germans are doing. Reports continue, however, of large German forces moving west, some of them with boats and bridge-building material.

It is believed in London that the next attempt of the Germans to get through to the French coast will be made south of the Franco-Belgian border, perhaps in the vicinity of Arras. This vicinity, it is considered, will serve the purpose of the Germans as well as some point farther north, it being argued that should the allies' line be broken here they would have to abandon their positions in Flanders. In addition, with boats or without boats, it is thought that the inundated territory would prove an obstacle to a German advance through Belgium to the French coast.

ON THE SEA.

Following the report from Petrograd of damage inflicted upon the German fleet by the Russians in September, comes the announcement through Paris that the German cruiser Hertha has been sunk near Libau. There also are rumors that the German battleship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has been torpedoed in the Baltic Sea. But these reports lack confirmation.

The British Admiralty, it is believed, has solved the mystery of the sowing of mines off the north coast of Ireland. British ships have arrested two trawlers, one a Norwegian and the other Danish, which made their headquarters at Fleetwood on the English coast of the Irish Sea on a charge of having laid the mines which proved so disastrous to British and neutral shipping. All along it has been suspected that these mines were laid by vessels flying neutral flags, but it was hardly thought that they were making a British port their headquarters.

Aggressive.

RUSSIANS AGAIN ATTACK THE INVADERS OF POLAND.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28 (via The Hague and London, Nov. 29.)—After a few days of comparative pause in the operations the battle in Western Poland is again in full progress. Gen. Mackensen's army which has been marking time since its victory over the Russians at Lowicz on November 24, has resumed the offensive in this region. The Russians, according to an official report, are attacking heavily, but unsuccessfully, the German right wing near Nowo Radomsko and Morathain.

The Tageblatt reminds its readers that such a pause by no means signifies that the troops are exhausted. Wise commanders, says the paper, often find it more advantageous after successes like those near Lodz to devote a little time to rearranging their forces and bringing up additional munitions than to follow up the advantage immediately. The spectacle of an army storming forward at full speed as in the first phase of the western campaign is most inspiring to the spectator, but a source of anxiety to the commander when the movement is so rapid as to interfere with the successful maintenance of communications.

There is no official reference to the Austrian allies who cover the southern end of the Silesian frontier, but Maj. Moraht, military correspondent of the Tageblatt, says he understands that they are standing fast and defending the ground which they have won. Maj. Moraht declares that much credit for the present favorable situation on the eastern front should be granted to the Austrians who withdrew from Western Galicia to assist Gen. Von Hindenburg in checking the Russians' "steam-roller" advance, cheerfully sacrificed their particular interests to those of the combined campaign and have borne their full share of the burden of fighting.

A headquarters report says the situation on the western front is unchanged.

TURKS DEFEATED WITH HEAVY LOSS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends the following dispatch received from the Russian army headquarters in the Caucasus:

"The Turks defeated in the recent fighting suffered enormous losses in all their regiments. The Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth divisions lost half their effectiveness and the Eighty-eighth Regiment was almost entirely destroyed.

"The commander of the Thirty-fourth Division was killed near Masiagat. The commander of the Thirty-third Division deserted and has been replaced.

"The Turkish commander-in-chief has decided to disband the Kurds, whose work was unsatisfactory.

"The fighting recently has been unimportant."

ALL IS WELL IN PRZEMYSL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM (via London) Nov. 28 — The newspaper Mansbods publishes a Berlin telegram giving the latest word from the besieged city of Przemysl, in Galicia. It was received in Vienna Friday by pigeon post and says:

"We are doing very well. Do not be disquieted."

Confident.

AUSTRIAN ARMY CERTAIN OF ULTIMATE VICTORY.

Army is Confident and Best of Feeling Prevails on Galician Front.

Better Weather has Set in, Rivers are Low and Building Operations are Going on Throughout the Empire. Only Reminder of War is Occasional Red Cross Train on Way to the Firing Line.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN GENERAL FIELD HEADQUARTERS, PRESS DEPARTMENT, GALICIAN FRONT, Nov. 6.—The Galician front is long and Galicia is not by any means as small a country as one might think. For this reason date lines from the theaters of the European war are vague geographically and the best that may be said of the present case is that the headquarters in question are not far from the front and somewhere in Galicia.

The spirit of the Austro-Hungarian forces is excellent. Officers and men who come to this point speak of the situation as highly satisfactory.

Better weather has set in in Galicia. The rivers are low, the fields comparatively dry and the roads are again passable, made so largely by the army engineers. During the first stages of the war the army wheel transportation cut deep into the surface of the roads and the many hoofs converted them into thick mires. The better weather has been a boon for the troops and their animals. It is said to be easier to guard against the discomforts of cold than against those brought on by hot weather. Fall rains in Galicia and Poland are attended by very low temperatures, so low in fact that the higher elevations of the Carpathian Mountains are covered with snow though none of them exceed 7000 feet in altitude, and most of them are much lower.

WAR LOSES NOVELTY.

The war has lasted long enough to have lost the quality of novelty. Everywhere one sees signs of confidence. In the larger and smaller cities building operations are going on; particularly peasants, men and women alike, plow the field or harvest the crops, and the active railroad traffic is only in part of a military character.

Almost the only reminder of war is an occasional Red Cross train going to or returning from the front. There is, however, a rather lively military passenger traffic on the regular trains, and one notices that all bridges, tunnels and stations are guarded by soldiers. This is the case throughout the parts of Austria and Hungary which are traversed on the way to the Galician front. In upper Hungary one sees large droves of cattle, intended for feed for the men in the trenches.

Now and then, too, one meets small groups of stolid and massively-built Hungarian peasants in charge of a man in uniform, recruits of an army which may be said to be still in the process of mobilization. Dragoons in red trousers and blue tunics were in the act of serving soup to those seated at three long tables in the main hall of the Casino of a small Galician town. There was a general hubbub of conversation and a smell of roasting mutton under the low, beamed ceiling, mingling with the odor of cigarette smoke and coffee.

OFFICER READS NEWS.

From the head of the center table came sharp raps of a fork against a glass and simultaneously an officer rose. The equivalent of the word "order" was shouted in several of the ten languages spoken in Austro-Hungary, and silence ensued.

"Gentlemen," said the officer as he pulled a typewritten sheet out of his breast pocket, "there is no news today, but I will read you the various official communiques. Before doing that I will say that there may be some news this afternoon and that the party of photographers and artists now at the front is expected back today; should have been here yesterday, in fact. As soon as this party is back with us you gentlemen will go to the front."

The dragoons filled the last of the tin plates with soup and the midday meal of the press quarters of the Austro-Hungary army in Galicia was in full progress. That night there was a similar meal and next morning a breakfast of coffee and rolls was served.

During the day the correspondents were taken to the near-by military headquarters and a full twenty-four hours of life in one of the modern well-regulated and carefully-supervised press quarters at the front had passed.

The press department of the Austro-Hungarian army in Galicia is a large establishment. It exists for the purpose of taking care of about thirty-five Austro-Hungarian newspaper men, working in about ten languages; several Germans, four American correspondents, among them a woman; one Dane, one Italian, a Swiss and a Turk, who is about to make his appearance.

About a dozen officers and three score men are in charge of the institution. There are a number of telegraphers and two field post officials—the department, in fact, is no small matter. To it belongs about twenty vehicles for the transportation of the correspondents and others and a like number of army transport wagons. Automobiles are scarce at present, because the hard going over the Galician roads during the recent rainy weather has made their retirement to the repair shop imperative. Last, but not least, there is the medical staff of the press department, consisting of a physician and several trained attendants.

DIVIDE UP QUARTERS.

Long before the press men arrive at a new station the houses of the better class—and that really means little in Galicia—are divided among them by the quartermaster and his assistants, who merely "notify the landlord of the coming of his guests" and then chalk the following legend upon the main door of the house:

"One officer, war press department," or two, as the case may be. The same is written on the door of the room which the correspondent is to occupy.

The principal buildings of the town where the press quarters are now located are the church and the school. There are a dozen or so of indifferently paved streets, flanked by one-story buildings. Today at least, with not a cloud in the sky, the place presents a rather picturesque, if not attractive, spectacle. The red tile roofs appear warm in the sun that is not warm and the whitewashed exterior forms an excellent background for the field gray or "pike green" of the Austro-Hungarian uniforms and the red trousers of the press quarter dragoons.

The Associated Press correspondent has been quartered on people who seem well-to-do. The house is somewhat Mexican in appearance—low, one-story, and has a patio populated by a cow and several noisy chickens. To one side there is a huge stack of beechwood, eloquent testimony of how cold the Galician autumn and winter are. There is also a stack of cabbage in the hallway and under the various roofs hay and straw have been stored.

PEOPLE NOT WORRYING.

On the whole, the family seems well prepared for a severe winter and about the war nobody seems to worry, though the Russians are not very far away. There has been no cholera in the little town, but, as a precaution, the Austro-Hungarian military authorities have seen to it that plenty of slacked lime has been applied wherever the ground has been contaminated by those sufferers from the disease who passed through these parts on the way to the hospitals. The railroad station, for instance, suggests an oddly local fall of snow—lime everywhere.

It is thought that with the ground frozen the disease will disappear. Meanwhile everybody is cautioned against the drinking of unboiled water—a precaution which some render more efficacious by drinking no water at all. Cholera germs are known to be constitutionally averse to making their habitat in alcoholic beverages. There is no drunkenness, however.

GERMANS CUT RUSSIAN CABLES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A dispatch to the Central News from Copenhagen says the cable between Frederica, Denmark, and Libau, Russia, and between Frederica and Petrograd, which are the only direct cables between Denmark and Russia, have been cut in the Baltic Sea, 170 miles east of Bornholm. It is supposed, the correspondent says, that the cutting was done by German warships. The only communication with Russia now is by way of Sweden.

SITUATION IS IMPROVED, BERLIN CRITICS DECLARE.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—Information given out today by the Official Press Bureau follows:

"Military critics of the Berlin newspapers consider that the successes of the Austrians November 25 and of Gen. Mackenzie on the following day have made still more favorable the position of the Germans. The Russian reinforcements appear to have come from Ivangorod—which Maj. Moraht, military critic of the Berliner Tageblatt, calls a daring attempt on the part of the Russians if they wished to hold their position on the Vistula River—and from Galicia. The latter movement may be followed by an advance of the Austrians over the Carpathians and toward the River San. Reports from Vienna are to the effect that the conflict along the greater part of the front has assumed the character of a stubborn and long-drawn-out battle.

"Fighting in the west has almost been lost sight of in the last few days in view of the important conflict in Poland and Galicia, the outcome of which is likely to assert an important influence on the whole situation.

"Further progress of the Austrian forces in Servia is reported by Vienna where it is said that the enemy has been forced back near Lazarevats, on his center, which has been broken through. Further successes are also believed to have been won along the Kalubra River south of Valdevo, the Austrians now being before Kosgovici. The Turin Stampa reports that high Egyptian dignitaries are being expelled by the British, intensifying the excitement of the natives in Egypt.

"The Bulgaria National League declares that Bulgaria should remain neutral until the end of the war.

"On French prisoners there have been found bullets with the tops bored out and filled with white phosphorus. Wounds inflicted by such bullets are extremely dangerous, as the phosphorus causes burns.

"A mutiny has broken out among Servians in the Drina division of the army. Servian deserters are arriving in Bulgaria."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Pursuant to the general policy of strengthening the military garrisons of the Hawaiian Islands as rapidly as proper quarters can be provided for them, the War Department has arranged to send the Ninety-first Company of Coast Artillery, now at Jackson Barracks, Louisiana, to Fort Kamehameha. The troops will sail from San Francisco, January 5.

TO KEEP WARSHIPS IN SOUTH AMERICA.

ENGLAND DECLARES IT IS IMPRACTICAL TO WITHDRAW NOW.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Since the United States indicated that it was willing that England should deal direct with Colombia and Ecuador concerning alleged violations of neutrality, the British Foreign Office has taken no further action. Nevertheless the denials that a German wireless station is being operated in Colombia and that islands belonging to Ecuador are being used by the Germans for naval operations are not accepted as finally disposing of the case.

The suggestion of South American governments that the belligerents withdraw their warships from South American waters is declared by English officials to be impracticable. The same view is entertained concerning the plan for the creation of a neutral zone off the coast of South America. This, it is contended, would afford an even better chance to warships to lie in wait for steamers engaged in the overseas trade.

The Foreign Office is eager to take action which would relieve South America shipping from its present serious handicaps, but doubts the effectiveness of measures so far proposed.

COPENHAGEN (Denmark) Nov. 28 (via London.) E. D. Winslow, the American Consul-General at Copenhagen, received a dispatch today saying that the American freight steamer Joseph W. The Fordney left New York November 7.

ENGLISH TAX BURDEN.

The People are Reported to be Bearing it with a Remarkable Degree of Stoicism.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—England is accepting its new burden of taxation with a stoicism which could only be bred of war conditions. In normal times the announcement of David Lloyd George's latest budget would have caused a storm that would have overthrown the strongest government and probably ten years of cautious advance would not have prepared the people for such radical increase in the burden of taxation.

Even the half-penny tax on a glass of beer would likely have caused the death of half a dozen governments and the doubling of the income tax would have met with the fiercest opposition.

But war changes all things and not the least astonishing thing is the plan seriously proposed by Arthur Henderson, labor leader in the House of Commons, and acquiesced in by the Chancellor of the Exchequer that workingmen's wages be taxed to replace indirect taxes such as the tea and sugar duties which now fall so heavily and unevenly on the working class. An income tax on wages and the free breakfast table has long been a battle cry of tax reformers, but such a proposition would scarcely have been seriously proposed in the House of Commons in normal times.

DARING EXPLOIT OF CAVALRYMEN.

Dragoons Destroy Aeroplanes and Take German Autos.

But Ten Left of Squadron After the Assault.

Conceal Themselves in Town and Finally Escape.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The French War Office supplemented its official statement today with an account of the exploits of a squadron of dragoons during the early part of September.

"During the night of September 9," the account reads, "a lieutenant of dragoons who had become isolated with his squadron in the midst of the German lines and had taken refuge at a farm, learned of the presence of a park of German aeroplanes on the road leading from Viviers to a factory between Soissons and Compeige. According to the gossip of peasants, the aeroplanes had landed about 7 o'clock in the evening and had been joined about 10 o'clock by an automobile convoy, consisting of from seven to nine machines which had kept company with them during their flight.

"The lieutenant decided upon an immediate attack. It was then half past two in the morning. It proposed that two platoons on foot should approach the convoy and fire three shots. A mounted platoon would hurl itself upon the automobiles and charge with their lances those who sought to escape. Another mounted platoon was to remain in reserve.

"The two platoons on foot approached within forty meters of the automobiles and when challenged opened fire. Ccarcely had the fire ceased in conformity with orders than tthe mounted platoon charged at a gollop, shouting 'vive la France.'

"Unfortunately the Germans were only partially surprised and a rapid-fire gun opened fire. Three French officers were killed and the platoon literally annihilated. Not one of the troopers reached the automobiles. Seeing this the lieutenant in command of the two dismounted platoons also ordered an assault. The German machine gun was silent, the gunners having been killed.

"The dismounted troopers opened fire at a distance of fifteen yards. The Germans who were crouching along the edge of the road, replied with great courage.

"While this was going on a detachment of engineers threw themselves upon the aeroplanes. With sore blows from pickaxes they destroyed the motors, the gasoline reservoirs and the running gear of the German machines. Three automobiles which contained a supply of gasoline caught fire and threw a glare over the scene.

"Before closing the engagement, for the French losses had been great, the courageous commanding officer wanted to engage the automobile in the center of the group, from which the orders to the Germans had been issued. While the reserve platoon was drawing back with the comparatively few men remaining in it, the French lieutenant, followed by only three cavalry men, made his way up to this automobile and found himself face to face with two men, one of whom was an officer. The officer fired on the group of four men with an automatic pistol. The three cavalrymen fell. The lieutenant received a bullet through the arm but not before he had been able to discharge his revolver against the chest af his adversary who sank to the ground.

"The other German in the automobile landed on the French lieutenant heavily with the butt of a musket and the blow sent him spinning into the gutter. He lay there semi-unconscious for a few moments, but recovered and with the assistance of another wounded man, dragged himself to a field of beets.

"Our losses were numerous. Of the three platoons engaged only ten men escaped unscathed. They hid in a village and for three days lived within the German lines, their deliverance coming only on the 13th of September when a division of French infantry victorious over the enemy, marched into the town."

"Toward half past six of the morning of November 18, a sergeant of one of our air squadrons, having on board his aeroplane a lieutenant observer, was returning from a reconnaissance along the front. He was about over the French lines when he saw a German flying machine going in the direction of Amiens. He at once started in pursuit, but the speed of his machine was slightly inferior to that of the German and it was impossible for him to overtake the enemy. In front of Amiens the German executed a series of evolutions to make possible the throwing of bombs. These evolutions made it possible for the French machine to come up.

"The lieutenant opened fire on the German and discharged about 100 bullets from his machine gun. This fire slightly damaged the German machine, but the lieutenant was not successful in striking either the pilot or any vital part of the mechanism. Nevertheless the German machine descended to the ground.

"The French sergeant then approached another German aeroplane, this one of the Albatross type which was flying over Cailly, preparing to attack. The pilot of the Albatross, in a skillful and desperate maneuver, made a rapid half turn and precipitated his machine at full speed on the French aeroplane. The French sergeant, to avoid collision, threw his machine back at such an angle that the rapid fire gun was detached from its fastenings and fell down inside the car. By the time the Frenchman had recovered his equilibrium, the German machine had flown away.

"At about this time, another French aviator sergeant, who had just landed on the aviation field of Amiens from a reconnaissance along the front, perceived the machine of the enemy in the air over the city. Accompanied by a mechanician he took the air again and lifting at once to a considerable height, he started in pursuit of the German machine, which had eluded the Frenchman by the desperate expedient of charging him. The second French machine came up with this German just as he was getting away and was successful in preventing him from getting within the German lines. He followed him as far as the region of Mont Lidier. The mechanician in this car fired ten rifle shots at the German machine without succeeding in crippling it. In the meantime the French machine had received three bullets, one of which had gone through the gasoline tank. Lack of ammunition made it necessary to abandon the pursuit.

"On reaching the ground, the mechanician, who had gone aloft in such a hurry that he had not properly dressed, found one of his hands frozen.

"This same day a French aeroplane carrying a corporal and a lieutenant observer went up to reconnoiter in the environs of Bombierre and encountered a German aeroplane.

"The pilot and the lieutenant, although armed only with recolvers, at once delivered an attack, but a bullet from a machine gun fired by the German machine crippled one of the wings of the French flyer, which was compelled to come to the ground with speed. It was only by the exercise of great ability on the part of the pilot that a successful landing on the Amiens aviation ground was made. The French machine was not seriously hurt."

Police officials subsequently visited one home and advised that attentions to the pastor cease.

FURY OF BATTLE WILL BE SHOWN ON SCREEN.

Practically Every Phase of Fighting Appears in Motion Pictures Taken in Midst of European Conflict that will be Shown for Week at Trinity Auditorium—Half of Proceeds to Red Cross.

WHAT war actually is will be shown vividly to the people of this city. Beginning Thursday evening motion pictures of the great European conflict will be shown at the Trinity Auditorium for a week—actual pictures of the armies at their grim work in Belgium. And half the proceeds will go to the Red Cross, to help relieve the sufferings incident to the mammoth struggle.

The pictures were taken by a newspaper staff photographer. He caught practically every phase of the fighting in the western theater of war. There are pictures of infantry in action, of artillery fire, of soldiers falling and comrades pulling them from trenches; and of Red Cross workers helping the wounded, Germans and allies alike, after the battle. Also there are refugees, thousands of them, ever present, hurrying from the advancing Teutons, and then miles of ruined cities, burned villages and shell-furrowed fields.

There are 4500 feet of film, divided into four reels. The battles of Alost, Lierre, Aerschot and of Malines and the fall of Antwerp are shown.

Most of the weapons of war are there. An armored motor car is seen covering a Belgian retreat. Machine guns drawn by dogs dash by; ambulances and ammunition wagons. Priests and nuns help the wounded while weary soldiers with their little spades dig trenches that will shelter them from the murderous shell fire.

Probably the most dramatic episode shown is the exploding of a shell, tearing to pieces a house just back of the firing line at Termonde. The soldiers are first seen in a field near the house. Another house is burning, after having been struck by a shell. The ruined roof is plainly visible.

The Belgian soldiers fire at the unseen Germans and advance. Just as they pass out of vision of the camera a mass of smoke shows about the houses. Simultaneously the stones, bricks and tiles of a house are seen flying up into the air. The shell starts this house burning also.

The pictures were passed with enthusiastic praise by the motion-picture censors of Chicago and were subsequently shown there for the first time in this country, to more than 30,000 persons. They are to be exhibited here for the first time on this coast.

They were taken through courtesy of an exclusive right granted by the Belgian government for motion pictures in the Belgian war zone.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 28.—A review of the war published in a newspaper of Cracow dated November 19, and found in the Austrian trenches, describes the Austrian troops as suffering terrible hardships from their continuous fighting, marching and trench-digging.

The same paper says that Adam Didur, a bass singer who has appeared in New York, is now an Austrian prisoner in Cracow. He is soon to be brought before a military court, according to this newspaper, for a hearing on charges which involve an infraction of the military regulations.

A dispatch received here from Warsaw says the Russian commandant at Lodz is compelling the local merchants to keep their shops open. Many German military trucks, loaded with gasoline, have been brought into Lodz.

EFFECTS OF THE WAR NOW FELT IN BERL

Prices of Foodstuffs are Soaring and [illegible] Poor are Suffering.

Three Hundred Thousand Prisoners, Taken in Battle, Must Also be Fed and They are Becoming a Serious Factor in the Economic Situation — East Prussian Granaries Devastated by the Slavs.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The effects of the war on the prices of provisions had, until late in October, hardly made itself apparent.

In the last few days, however, a sharp general rise has set in, embracing practically everything to eat except meats, which, owing to German's unusually large stock of swine, have risen but little, and in some cases not at all.

Vegetables have practically disappeared from the market. Some lentils are to be had, but only inferior culls. Beans are scarce and hulled peas are not to be had. Prices of peas and lentils have risen from 7 cents, the price before the war, to 15 cents, and it is predicted that they will shortly cost much more.

The government recently confiscated all coffee held at Hamburg by English warehouses, but even with this, the supply is running short and prices have increased markedly. Fresh oranges or lemons are rarely to be had, there are no bananas and pineapples, except the canned stock, and with the entrance of Turkey into the war, the supply of dates and figs will probably be cut off.

Cold-storage stocks of eggs have been greatly reduced and it will be but a short time before there will be none to be had. The Berlin Chamber of Commerce points to the somewhat surprising fact that Germany produces only 5 per cent. of its egg supply, the remaining 95 per cent. coming from Russia, Galicia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Italy and Denmark.

Potatoes have reached prices which are a hardship to the poorer classes, for whom they form the chief article of food. Last year at this time they cost 50 cents for 110 pounds. Today the price is $1.25. Great quantities of potatoes must also be devoted to the production of denatured spirits to take the place of gasoline, which has disappeared from the market, because of the army's needs.

The rise in grain prices was such that, as has been reported, the Federal Council was obliged to [illegible] limit to them. The prices [illegible] however, are very high. [illegible] Wheat, $1.69 per bushel, [illegible] reached $1.71;) barley, [illegible] $1.44. Another factor is the [illegible] more than 300,000 prisoners [illegible] in Germany, who must be fed [illegible] dition to the regular popula[illegible] number, too, is growing daily.

Still another disquieting [illegible] the fact that in East Prussia [illegible] granary of Germany," [illegible] thousands of acres have been [illegible] waste by the invading Russians [illegible] over, the invasion came [illegible] the farmers were preparing [illegible] their winter crops, [illegible] or to harvest the autumn [illegible] result was the immediate [illegible] great quantities of foodstuffs [illegible] compulsory idleness of [illegible] farms. NEW BRITISH WAR LOA ATTRACTIVE TO

[BY A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The new war loan of £350,000,000 ($1,750,000,000) which was issued today has several features likely to make it attractive to the general public. The fact that the government decided to make 3½ per cent. at 95 will allow trustees to participate, a special clause being inserted in the prospectus to that effect. Ordinarily trustees may not buy stock at over par which is redeemable at par within fifteen years; and if the issue had been 4 per cent. at 99½ and it rose to a premium, trustees would have been barred from participating.

The loan being redeemable in such a comparatively short time—ten to thirteen years—at par—gives the investor a bonus of five pounds sterling. An important feature from the market and investors' viewpoint is that for three years the Bank of England guarantees to advance to any holder of the stock its full value at 1 per cent. under bank [illegible] sidered by the [illegible] idea as it indicates [illegible] government, provi[illegible] gency power, and [illegible] inconvenient fluct[illegible] fact, the loan will [illegible] and nearly actual [illegible]

Eating When Others Are Through

Is Not Gluttony, But Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Enable You to Have Such an Appetite.

In these days of high pressure most men and women eat very little and a good old-fashioned eater sits at table after all have left it.

The best way to get such an appetite is the Stuart way—the natural way.

Landlady: "Ever since Jones took Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets I've lost money on him."

If your stomach can not digest your food, what will? Where's the relief? The answer is in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because, as all stomach troubles arise from indigestion and because one ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is able to thoroughly and completely digest 3000 grains of food, doesn't it stand to reason that these tablets are going to digest all the food and whatever food you put into your stomach?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are carefully made to supply every element lacking in a system afflicted with dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, stomach trouble, etc., and to aid healthy systems to digest difficult food at unseemly hours.

Just carry one of these little tablets in your purse or pocket. After every meal, no matter when eaten, you have always at hand the assistance that nature will relish and thrive upon.

In this manner one may eat all manner of food, attend late dinners, etc., and feel no serious results afterwards.

Thousands of travelers always have a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in their grips and are thus enabled to eat unaccustomed meals at any and all times.

Surely there is nothing so well adapted to sufferers from food follies as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the greatest proof of this fact lies in the assurance that one can purchase a box at any drug store anywhere in this country.

A small sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be mailed free to anyone who will address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

THE ALASKAN RAILWAY.

Plans for the Government Owned Road will be Formulated Soon by Lane's Commissioners.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Plans for the government railroad to the Alaskan coal fields will be formulated soon by the commission named by Secretary Lane to investigate possible routes. Commissioner Edward W. Edes established headquarters for the commission here today, and said detailed work on a report would be begun early in December. Commissioners Edes, Mears and Riggs have just completed field surveys and will recommend a route to Secretary Lane, who will transmit the report to the President, charged by Congress with constructing the road.

In addition to original routes the commission will consider the taking over of the Copper River or the Alaska Northern railroad.

SHIP CRADLE TO THE SAYRES.

USEFUL ARTICLE MAY COME IN HANDY IN COURSE OF NEXT FEW WEEKS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LANCASTER (Pa.) Nov. 28.—The Misses Alice and Blanche Nevin, aunts of Francis Bowes Sayre, President Wilson's son-in-law, today shipped to Mr. and Mrs. Sayre at their home in Williamstown, Mass., a beautiful Lancaster-made cradle, in anticipation of an interesting event. The cradle has been in course of preparation for several months, its artistic and elaborate design being the work of Miss Blanche Nevin, the noted sculptress.

Of course, the cradle is white. It bears, in addition to carefully-executed designs of the painter's best handiwork, handsome carvings and scrollwork, elaborately fashioned after the drawings by Miss Nevin.

A customer of the First National Bank today refused to accept it when he presented a large check at the paying teller's window to get his usual supply of money to meet his weekly pay roll.

The teller shoved him a stack of double eagles containing $500, and the customer snorted:

"Here, here, nothing doing with tthat. I'm for rag money after this."

"What's the matter with the gold?" asked the teller.

"What's the matter with it? Plenty," came the answer. "You shove this coin out to me at face value and then, when I come back with it you pull out your weighing machines and I get about ninety cents on the dollar."

The paper money was supplied.

GOLD MINER ACQUITTED.

Man Arrested in Illinois on the Charge of Murder is Set Free in Juneau, Alaska.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—William R. Rodgers, an Alaskan gold miner, who was arrested at Libertyville, Ill., last August on the charge of having murdered his prtner, Frank Wixen, was acquitted by a Federal jury in Juneau, Alaska, on Thanksgiving Day. The jury deliberated only ten minutes. This information was conveyed in a message to Rodgers's sister, at whose home in Libertyville he was arrested. Rodgers's plea was that he shot and killed Wixen in self-defense.

The murder occurred in May, 1913, on a lonely claim on Christmas Creek, forty-five miles west of Haines, Alaska. The men, it was said, quarreled over a trivial subject. Rodgers, who is 52 years old, is returning to Libertyville.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

Commercial.

BIG TRADE EXPANSION IS SHOWN BY EXPORTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Secretary Redfield told the House Appropriations Committee today that the commercial expansion of the United States was evidenced by the fact that the total of exports for November showed an increase of $63,000,000 over November last year and undoubtedly would have shown $140,000,000 increase if cotton and copper had been exported. Part of the increase in exports he attributed to the war.

Mr. Redfield and Postmaster-General Burleson urged their estimates of appropriations for inclusion in appropriation bills to be reported in December. Mr. Redfield explained estimates that exceeded the current appropriation. He said the South American field should be looked after for marketing American products and that banking connections should be established in that market.

Postmaster-General Burleson said his estimates were below this year's appropriations and that he had saved $62,000 by concentration of work and reorganization of the personnel of the dead letter and other offices.

The $3,000,000 estimate for the proposed agricultural census was favored by Secretary Redfield. It will be explained Monday by Director Harris of the Census Bureau.

BIG SHAKE-UP ON THE ESPEE.

Thirty-two Employees of the Company Discharged.

Irregularities in Accounts are Found by Detectives.

Brakemen, Conductors and Stewards Involved.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 28.—As the result of an investigation covering a period of six months conducted by J. H. Sheehan of the Southern Pacific's secret service bureau, thirty-two employees of the company have been permanently discharged for irregularities in their accounts. There are now eighty-five other employees under investigation and more dismissals will probably follow.

The men involved are train conductors, brakemen, dining-car stewards and hotel employees on the lines from Ogden to Sacramento and Oakland, Oakland to Los Angeles via the San Joaquin Valley, Mojave to Owenyo, Hazen to Susanville, and Sparks to Mina. The charges are for accepting fares for less than tariff rates, commonly known as short fares, drinking intoxicating liquors, frequenting places where liquors are sold while on duty, and falsifying meal checks and accounts.

It was discovered that there was no general ring engaged in the practices, the irregularities being carried on by employees individually. Among other things it was ascertained that confederates were used in various towns for the purpose of soliciting "short fares" for brakemen who, in turn, introduced them to the conductors. In falsifying dining-car checks, one check would be used over again several times, the first figures being erased and the amounts withheld.

The following is a table of rates, regular and short:

Between	Reg. fare.	Short fare.
Oakland and Fresno	$ 5.75	$3.00
Oakland and Sacramento	2.50	1.00
Oakland and Stockton	2.30	1.00
Stockton and Sacramento	1.45	1.00
Sparks and Carlin	11.60	5.00
Sacramento and Sparks	6.00	3.00
Fresno and Los Angeles	8.25	5.00

In "short fares" the conductor would collect the cash from the passenger on train and withhold the amount.

Momentous.

ARBITRATION BY NEW LAW.

NINETY-EIGHT WESTERN LINES ARE AFFECTED.

Representatives of Employees, Railroad Managers and the Government Meet in Chicago Tomorrow as Result of Interposition of President.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—What is said to be the most momentous arbitration case in the history of the country, brought about by the interposition of President Wilson, will begin here next Monday morning.

The case is that of the employees of ninety-eight western railroads belonging to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and their employers, represented in the proceedings by the Conference Committee of managers which was named for the purpose by the Association of Western Railways.

The arbitration was arranged under the provisions of the Newlands law. Ninety days are allowed to hear the evidence and ten days addition for the delivery of an award. The arbitrators are: W. L. Park, vice-president of the Illinois Central, and H. E. Byram, vice-president of the Burlington road, selected by the railroads; F. A. Burgess, assistant grand chief engineer, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and Timothy Shea, assistant president, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, selected by the employees; Judge Peter C. Pritchard of the United States District Court at Richmond, Va., and Charles Nagel, St. Louis, former secretary of Commerce and Labor, selected by the government through the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation. The number of men involved is 55,000, and the railroad mileage affected, 140,000

W. S. Stone, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, will represent the men before the board, while the twelve members of the Conference Committee, with A. W. Trenholm as chairman, and with legal counsel including James M. Sheean of Chicago, will appear for the roads. Stone and Carter say that they will not require the aid of lawyers. An immense quantity of statistics has been prepared for presentation, and in addition, it is expected about twenty witnesses will be called by each side. A statement given out at brotherhood headquarters today says:

"In a general way the members of the two brotherhoods are asking for a standard rate of wages and a standard day with special rates of pay for overtime. They ask for a five-hour day in passenger service with overtime based upon a twenty-mile an hour running time. In freight service they desire a ten-hour day basis. In hopes of standardizing wages among the employees on freight engines and trains in western territory, the brotherhoods have suggested that pushers, helpers, men on mine runs, belt lines, transfer lines, wrecking trains and other unclassified service should be paid on a basis of through freight pay."

Details of the demands of the men were thoroughly threshed out last spring by the two parties. They could not agree and the men voted overwhelmingly to strike. The war in Europe broke out, however, and President Wilson persuaded them to accept arbitration. It was only recently that the government appointed its members of the arbitration board and the proceedings were delayed on that account.

DECLARES WIFE KISSED PREACHER.

ALLEGED EPISODE IN LOS ANGELES NOT SUFFICIENT FOR DIVORCE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Irma I. Laugenour, wife of the president of the Yolo Lumber Company, was denied a divorce today from William R. Laugenour by Superior Judge Graham.

"If divorces could be obtained on evidence such as was introduced in this case," said Judge Graham in denying the decree, "undoubtedly half the people of California would be divorced."

Mrs. Laugenour alleged cruelty. She said he had accused her of giving her warm kisses to a Los Angeles preacher. One of her allegations was that her husband had once sworn at her. She admitted she had called him names more than once.

In rendering his decision, Judge Graham said:

"After careful consideration of the evidence in this case, I find that the plaintiff failed to establish her charge of extreme cruelty. The quarrels were not serious and the evidence disclosed that both sides were at fault. If divorces could be obtained on the charge of evidence introduced in this case, then undoubtedly half the people in this State would be divorced.

"There are two minor children involved here whose interests are of great moment, and I am satisfied if the parties of this action exercise a little forbearance, fortitude, yield a point here and there and get into double harness and pull together, they can make their home what the matrimonial contract contemplates it should be."

REMOVE REGULARS FROM COLORADO.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A request from Gov. Ammons of Colorado that Federal troops be withdrawn from some of the coal strike districts was received today by President Wilson and referred to Secretary Garrison, who will discuss the question with the President next week.

DIES IN SUICIDE PACT.

Japanese Merchant at Marysville Strangles, but His Bride of Two Week is Likely to Recover.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 28.—Taro K. Iso, 30, a Japanese merchant, this city, is dead from strangulation, and his bride of two weeks, Mrs. Hatsuyo Doi Iso, 19, is hovering between life and death at a local hospital tonight as the result of a suicide pact. Despondency caused by business troubles and the fact that the parents of the girl objected to the marriage, are given as the cause of the act.

Shortly before midnight last night, Iso shot his wife through the right breast, and as she fell to the floor prostrate, turned the gun on himself, but the father of the girl knocked it from his hand. Iso was taken to the County Jail and the woman to a local hospital.

This morning Iso inquired as to the condition of his wife, and when informed that she was still alive and had an even change for recovery, he appeared depressed, declining to comment. Half an hour later the jailer visited his cell and found his limp form hanging from a drain pipe extending over the top of the place. Although not dead at the time, he died shortly after.

He used a sash which he had tied about his waist as a cord by which to hang himself.

The Hundred-year-old Frigate Makes Its First Trip Since 1868. Everybody Salutes Her.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VALLEJO (Cal.) Nov. 28.—The 100-year-old frigate Independence left Mare Island navy yard today on its first trip since 1868, when it was brought to the island after service as a training ship at San Francisco.

Vessels and whistles ashore saluted the old craft as it was towed down the channel to San Francisco Bay to be docked and made into a coal carrier by Capt. John Rinder of Berkeley, who recently bought the Independence at auction for $3515.

Man Whose Son Escaped Just Before the Reform School Fire is Put Under Arrest.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PENSACOLA (Fla.) Nov. 28.—George Colwell was arrested today at his home in Jackson county on charges of arson in connection with the burning, ten days ago, of the Florida State Reform School at Marianna, in which ten lives were lost. He is held without bond. It is alleged Colwell's son escaped from the institution a few hours before the fire was discovered.

IDENTIFY HANALEI VICTIM.

Body in Morgue at San Rafael said to be That of Mrs. Hope A. Britting of San Francisco.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—The body of one of the victims of the wreck of the steam schooner Hanalei, which had lain in the morgue at San Rafael since last Tuesday afternoon, was identified today as that of Mrs. Hope A. Britting, a widow who had resided at No. 1567 Willard street, San Francisco. The identification was made by J. A. Troup, a former lodger at Mrs. Britting's residence.

Mrs. Britting had been visiting Mrs. E. Patrick of Eureka.

She left property here valued at about $15,000. According to Troup she had pawned about $5000 of jewelry for living expenses while awaiting a settlement of her husband's estate.

William A. Bryant, an uncle living in South Africa, is believed to be the only surviving relative.

SHIRTS FOR THE ALLIES.

Two-Million-Dollar Contract in St. Louis will be Awarded Early this Week.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—Bids for 1,700,000 flannel army shirts for the allied armies were submitted by several local firms to representatives of the British War Department here today. It is believed the contract, which is to be given early next week, will amount to more than $2,000,000.

A contract for 7000 sets of harness costing $175,000, was granted to a St. Louis manufacturer today by representatives of the allies. Shipments will begin next week. Another firm announced tonight it had just shipped 43,000 suits of underwear for army use, to Amsterdam, and 12,000 blankets to Mexico.

Soundproof Cells Constructed on Blackwell's Island.

Screeching Anarchists may Keep it up All Day.

Unmanageable Inmates will be Quickly Isolated.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 28.—New York is soon to have an addition to its prison equipment especially designed for anarchists, I.W.W. agitators and other lawbreakers, who have laughed at previous attempts to restrain them in the workhouse and penitentiary on Blackwell's Island.

Under the supervision of Dr. Katharine B. Davis, commissioner, work has begun on a new disciplinary building on Riker's Island. Since the Tannenbaum "uprising" on Blackwell's Island last year, officials of the department of correction have been studying various schemes to prevent further revolts among prisoners and the Riker's Island building, it is hoped, will solve the problem for all time. It will have separate cells for eighty prisoners, all of whom will be drafted from other city institutions if they show propensities for stirring up trouble among their companions.

As soon as there is an outbreak in one of the other prisons, the leaders are to be separated and placed in solitary confinement on Riker's Island, where they never will have an opportunity to agitate anything. For the worst of them there will be soundproof cells. If a prisoner finds it impossible to quiet down even after his transfer to the island, he will be placed in a room through the walls of which no oratory can penetrate.

CONCRETE AND STEEL.

The building is to be constructed of concrete block and brick and steel frame. It will have two wings, connected by an administration house. Nothing just like it exists in the city's present equipment. The building will be only one story high. The cells are to be arranged in rows and will connect with open-air cells, each separated by heavy iron bars. Each room will measure 8x12 feet and will be equipped with cot, washstand and other facilities. It will have its own window and the door will be an iron grill.

In the case of the twenty soundproof cells, extra heavy walls will be built with layers of cork or some other deadening material inserted in the concrete. These cells will have three doors, one of wood, one of iron and one on the ice-box pattern, to keep the noise within from filtering through.

Members of the department of correction believe the disciplinary building will be far more humane than the "cooler," in which the more refractory prisoners are now punished. It will provide a means of isolating the unmanageable inmates without causing them the physical suffering which has brought the "cooler" into disrepute in many quarters.

CONVICTS AT WORK.

A squad of 100 convicts has been put to work on the foundations for the Riker's Island structure, while other prisoners are at work turning out the concrete bricks and blocks at the city's plant on Hart's Island. It is believed that practically the entire work can be done by convicts under the supervision of experts.

LORD KITCHENER AND THE NURSES.

DISAPPROVES OF MANY NOW AT THE FRONT.

Director of War Office in England Secures Hundred Nuns to Take up Work of Mercy—Scarcity of Eligible Men Makes Maids in Society Desperate.

BY LADY MARY.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—I was visiting at the Convent in Carlisle Place the other afternoon when Lord Kitchener called and asked for the Rev. Mother. "Reverend Mother," he said, "can you let me have immediately a hundred nuns as nurses for the front?" After a moment's thought she realized she could do as he desired, and forthwith it was arranged that they were to leave within a week.

If he could K. of K. would have nuns only as war nurses, having the highest opinion of them in such a capacity. No doubt there are admirable lay nurses, but in the eyes of Lord Kitchener and heaps of the officers and men who served in South Africa in the last war the whole of the splendid profession was prejudiced by the behaviour of a goodly number of those who were out there at the time. A certain high officer is reputed to have called the South African war nurses a "pack of demoralized hussies" and less complimentary names still were given them by other officers.

The same afternoon that he called at the convent Lord Kitchener went on to visit the Duke of Roxburghe, who was then at Mrs. Rupert Beckett's hospital and the King and Queen also dropped in. If the duke has not already gone to the front he is going directly being simply wild to get into harness again. He is really a born soldier and as modest as he is brave. I hear he is to get a V.C. one of these days and he has already had the Legion of Honor bestowed upon him.

Officers and men who have followed him tell of the mercies he has rendered to all sorts of people and even animals. When the bulldog, which is one of the pets of his regiment, was wounded by the bursting of a shell he carried him across to the veterinary camp in the thick of the firing as cool and as unconcerned as if he were in his own drawing-room. But altogether most wonderful things have been done by both officers and men for their pets. I am told that not one of the German regiments has a pet, though one of the Kaiser's dachshunds does accompany him.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, who feels that the Duke has done his duty for his country, was in hopes that he would not go to the front again. The anxiety about him has given her insomnia, which she shows in her tired eyes very much, indeed, and, as a matter of fact, she is looking years older. She used to bring the little heir across to see his father every day while the Duke was in the hospital, carrying him upstairs in her arms herself, the nurse being left in the waiting-room.

MIGRATION OF BRITISHERS.

There is to be a great migration of smart Britishers to New York, Washington and the Colonies this winter. Many American hostesses of standing are glad to get an opportunity of extending hospitality to prominent people at this side. I know several smart girls, who are delighted with the prospect of flitting about in American society.

Especially does the notion appeal to mothers with grown-up daughters, for men become scarcer every day. It is no exaggeration to say there will hardly be a marriageable man out of khaki in England in three months' time. Chaperons and mothers are desperate over it all. A fashionable woman with three young and pretty daughters appealed pathetically to me the other day and asked if I knew any Americans among the "400" who would be willing to introduce her daughters into the best American society. In tears she said, "something must be done." She was surprised to learn that it is very much more difficult to get into the very best set in New York than the exclusive coterie here, simply, because of the fact that you can purchase your way through in Great Britain, where there are so many hard-up aristocrats about, while in New York, money is practically no consideration.

The American man has become a tremendous asset in British society and one who would have been given the cold-shoulder a few years ago finds now he can, if he chooses, marry almost any smart aristocratic or titled girl.

STORY OF NEW DOG.

Quite a pathetic story is being told about a new dog which Lady Lowther, wife of Sir Gerard Lowther, has adopted. It appears it belongs to one of the Belgian refugees who managed to smuggle it over. It was sent to a dogs' home and was very ill because it was not fed on the raw meat which some form of trouble from which it suffered necessitated. Lady Lowther heard of it from a Belgian she has in her service and forthwith went off and offered to adopt the little beast until its real owner was in a position to claim it. Now it is having the time of its life and is fed on the fat of the land.

The smallest full-grown black cat ever seen is owned by one of these poor Belgians. It is nearly ten years old and was in Antwerp for the worst of the trouble. It used to be called "Hans," but it now has a new name, and it is learning to answer to "Mack." A little Belgian girl brought it over in a basket. Lots of people are delighted to adopt for a time or for ever the numerous pets which the refugees have brought with them.

MANIA FOR INVENTION.

Several rich people have developed a perfect mania for invention and chemistry, hoping they may evolve something that will "do" for the enemy. They have set up laboratories and workshops in private houses at tremendous expense. Indeed, not a few people who live in the immediate vicinity of these amateur inventors and chemists are in more terror of an explosion through their experiments that of actual Zeppelins. One of Lord Salisbury's sons has been allowed to reopen his late famous grandfather's laboratory at Hatfield. The late peer made a hobby of chemistry and it appears this grandson of his is following in his footsteps, only he means to do something great.

Paris Singer is another exceedingly clever amateur chemist and has rigged up for himself a fine laboratory at Oldway, his seat near Paignton, now a military hospital. He has a wonderful explosive, they say, which he hopes soon to perfect. I am told Jack Churchill, Lady Randolph's second son, has invented a bullet which is to penetrate and explode the gas container of the Zeppelin. Wherever you turn you are told of amateur inventions for war purposes by which their sponsors swear. Society women, too, are fascinated by the new craze and Lady Evelyn Guinness, a remarkably clever woman with money to burn, is one of those who has a laboratory of her own.

A peculiarity of the moment is that nobody wears full dress in the evenings. Men don dinner jackets and women demi-dress, which has always been so popular with Americans and French women. I happened to be present lately when Lady Randolph Churchill and her sister, Mrs. Leslie, were ordering further new dresses for their mourning for Mrs. Leslie's son, and they gave instuctions that their dinner dresses were all to have high transparencies at the neck. The fashionable dressmaker then told me she had not made a full evening dress gown for at least two months.

MAYBE BRYAN WILL RESIGN.

Washington Political Gossips Get Rid of Mr. Wilson's Secretary of State by Appointing Him Leader of the Prohibitionists in Some Future Presidential Campaign.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 28.—Some of the politicians, wishing as they think, have been prophesying Mr. Bryan's departure from his department by the resignation route in March, next. The Commoner has come back at the brethren with a denial, but this has not staggered them in the least, for they say they know whereof they speak, and not only this, but that A. Mitchell Palmer, defeated candidate for the United States Senate from Pennsylvania, is to sit in the seat of state.

There was a belief in Washington which it has taken some days to unsettle, that this story of Mr. Bryan's intention to retire was of Democratic origin. On the face of it, it would seem to be folly for Democrats to suggest any such thing, for the sequel of the yarn was that Mr. Bryan was going to champion the cause of prohibition and perhaps lead the gentlemen with dry throats in a fight for the Presidency.

Many men here feel that before long the Prohibitionists are going to cut much of a figure in national elections, and there are some political leaders who are willing to predict that before long, perhaps before the next general election, the Prohibitionists will have a formidable party.

Phonetics Makes a Duchess

Mr. Bernhard Shaw's late play dealing with the production of speech sounds, wherein he shows the possibility of a lowly flower girl being transformed into an apparent Duchess, principally through training in pronunciation of words, is a reminder of the importance language is given in the eyes of the world.

Without good teeth correct speech is impossible. So watch them. Beware of bleeding or receding gums, teeth slightly sore or loose and a bad breath, as they are indications of Pyorrhea.

Our specialties are treating pyorrhea and making teeth without plates, giving a full set of solid teeth without plates or ordinary bridgework, if two or more roots remain in either jaw.

We also make plates to restore expression and prevent shrinking gums. By our analgesic method we can extract, crown, fill or even remove a live nerve without pain.

Catarrh Ten Years Cost Me A Lot of Money.

Peruna Promptly Cured Me.

Mr. Charles S. Many, 12 Water St., Ossining, N. Y., writes: "I had catarrh for ten years and tried a great many kinds of medicines, which cost me a lot of money but did me no good. Instead of getting better I seemed to get worse. My eyes were bloodshot, my nose smelled so bad that I was ashamed to go in company. I was night guard at the prison and I would get so dizzy that I would have to catch hold of something to keep from falling. I read about Peruna in the New York World, and thought I would give it a trial. I used about ten bottles, and I am cured of catarrh, and the dizzy feeling has left me and I am not bothered with it any more. I keep Peruna in the house, and when I feel a cold coming on I take a little bit of it and it does me good."

RUSSIANS TURN TABLES ON GERMAN INVADERS

BY AN ASSOCIATE EDITOR OF "THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL."

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 28.—The opposing armies in Belgium and France have passed another day without developing important fighting. The cessation of civil traffic on the railroads in Belgium shows that the Germans are transferring troops for some purpose, while the big transport fleet of Great Britain shows that she is also taking measures to oppose any aggressive move on the part of the Germans.

The appearance of German submarines in the English Channel has resulted in renewed activity of the British fleet in bombarding Zeebrugge. This port gives Germany a base for her submarines, 250 miles closer to the Straits of Dover than is their main base at Emden, in Germany. The advantage that the Germans gain by this shortening of their steaming radius is seen in the activity of their submarines in the waters to the south and east of England. In order to protect the present movement of British troops to France, the British navy is exerting especial efforts to destroy this German submarine base at Zeebrugge. By destroying the German harbors of refuge in Belgium and by tightening the cordon at the Straits of Dover, they hope to re-establish the safety of their line of communication across the English Channel.

PETROGRAD STATEMENT.

The official statement from Petrograd confirms the earlier rumors concerning the fighting in Poland. When the Germans made their dash east of Lodz and Lowicz, they reached the main railroad running from Warsaw to the southwest. The Russian center fell back before their onslaught and permitted the Germans to advance to Koluszki, where the branch railroad to Lodz joins the main line. The Germans were thus enticed into a trap while the Russian forces closing in behind threatened to cut off their main line of retreat.

The Russian victories at Rzgow and Brzeziny forced the Germans to fall back fifteen miles. Lodz was abandoned and they took up the defensive line running from Sieradz on the Warthe, through Zdunskawola, Zgierz, Strykow and Glowno to Lowicz. For at least four days the Russians have been pounding on this line and have made an advance to Szadk, five miles north of Zdunskawola.

Meanwhile the Russians seem to be pinning their hopes upon a flanking move along the Vistula River. Such strategy gave them the advantage in the earlier campaign against the Germans in this region and is one in which their large superiority in cavalry will greatly aid them. While the Germans have been kept busily engaged on the front between Lowicz and Sieradz, this new Russian advance has forced its way across the Bzura River and has reached Gombin, twenty-five miles northwest of Lowicz.

The Russians have now turned the tables on the German [illegible] and threaten them with the [illegible] danger from which the [illegible] just escaped. LOS ANGELES BELGIANS SEND A CHECK FOR RELIEF.

Belgian war relief fund of Los Angeles has mailed to F. the Belgian Consul in San a check for $2800, the collected up to date for relief distressed Belgians. The mem- of the fund are all Belgian resi- of Los Angeles. The officers are: president, Ngr. P. J. president, James Moor- vice-presidents, Charles Winsel Leon Marzy; secretary, E. de treasurer, Eugene Genis; Committee, Mmes. A. Buis- George Christiaens, J. David, J. A. Donato, L. Legrand, Marry and J. Viole.

money collected by the fund is through the Belgian Consul in Francisco to the Belgian Minister, Ravenith, in Washington.

the 25th of the present month steamship Isabella of the Luckenbach line left the port of Los Angeles for New York via Panama with seventy-five cases of clothing for the Belgian refugees in Holland and England. The clothing was all donated by friends of the Belgians in Southern California and the committee hereby expresses its heartfelt thanks for the generosity of the donors. A steamer leaves every ten days and the committee hopes to be able to make shipments of necessaries for the refugees as long as the war lasts, or as long as there is a Belgian in need as a result of the war.

Belgians here report they have received letters from friends and relatives in the stricken country in which the need of food and clothing is accentuated. These letters are authority for the statement that the Germans are taking everything from the Belgians and that even the coal there is loaded on cars and shipped into Germany.

HINDENBURG PROMOTED FOR DARING SUCCESSES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MSTERDAM (via London) Nov. 28.—A dispatch from Thorn, West Prussia, gives an army or- issued by Gen. Von Hindenburg, mander of the German army in Poland, stating that in the fighting lasting several days, troops brought to a standstill the of the numerically superior army."

army order repeats the con- of a telegram sent by Emperor congratulating Gen. Von Hindenburg on his new success; him and his troops for the protection they afforded to the eastern frontier, and promoting the general to the rank of field marshal. The army order concludes:

"I am proud of having reached the highest military rank at the head of such troops. Your fighting spirit and perseverance have in a marvelous manner inflicted the greatest losses on the enemy. Over 60,000 prisoners, 150 guns and about 200 machine guns have fallen into our hands. But the enemy is not yet annihilated. Therefore, go forward with God for our King and for the Fatherland, till the last Russian is subdued and at our feet. Hurrah!"

INVASION OF CANADA FEARED BY THE BRITISH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

UFFALO (N. Y.) Nov. 28.—Ex- rdinary precautions have been taken to guard against a pos- raid by Germans or German sym- across the Niagara River. A nent guard of thirty militia- has been stationed at Fort Erie, ly opposite Buffalo, and the river front from there to Nia- Falls and Queenstown is pa- day and night by between 500 600 members of the newly or- home guard regiments. Automobiles and motorcycles are used by the men on patrol duty.

These measures, it is said, were taken in response to demands from civic organizations along the Canadian side of the Niagara, who insisted in communications to the Department of Militia that a movement similar to the Fenian raid was not a remote possibility. Maj.-Gen. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defense, recently paid a flying visit to the territory. Soon afterward the guard on the Welland Canal was doubled and today the river patrol was established.

HERRICK'S ADIEU TO PARIS.

Retiring American Ambassador and His Wife Board the Steamer Rochambeau at Havre for New York.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Myron T. Herrick, the retiring American Ambassador to France, accompanied by Mrs. Herrick and the members of his family, left Paris for Havre this morning, where they will take the steamer Rochambeau for New York. A special car was placed at their disposal by the French government. Nearly all the Americans remaining in Paris, both men and women, crowded the Invalides station to bid farewell to the retiring diplomat. Among them were William Graves Sharp, who succeeds Mr. Herrick as Ambassador, and Alexander H. Thackara, American Consul-General. There were present also several prominent French officials and some well-known British residents. The French officers included Gen. Gallieni, Military Governor of Paris.

Sir Austin Lee, acting for the British Ambassador at Bordeaux, handed to Mr. Herrick a letter from Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, thanking him for the services of the American Embassy to British subjects. As a token of appreciation, Mr. Herrick was presented with several pieces of silver plate by members of the British colony here.

A deputation of French officers gave Mrs. Herrick an enormous bouquet of roses, which were added to the great collection of floral contributions which half filled the Herrick car.

QUEEN STAMPS ROYAL FOOT.

OFTEN DISPLAYS IMPATIENCE WHEN ANNOYED.

King of England May Give up Other Palaces to be Used as Hospitals for the Wounded—Maxine Elliott Going to Fighting Line as a Nurse.

BY LADY MARY.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—When the Queen gets annoyed she has a little way of stamping her foot which is highly characteristic. She will do it at anybody. The other afternoon at Devonshire House she did it several times when she was examining the socks being made up in bundles to be dispatched to the front for the soldiers and found that careless knitters had let stitches drop in several cases. She has no patience with carelessness.

She stamped her foot very hard the first time she saw the Prince of Wales smoking a pipe, but she has got used to his large brier one which looks so incongruous in his small mouth. He selects the very biggest pipes he can buy. I met him at the head of a detachment of his regiment the other day in High street, Kensington, smoking the biggest pipe you ever saw. It appears to be a privilege of royalty to smoke on duty. If it isn't the Prince was taking French leave.

It is being said that the King and Her Majesty are going to give up Windsor Castle for the wounded—the rank of file as well as the officers. They have already given Balmoral, and three other royal houses in Scotland. If necessary they say they will present Buckingham Palace, too, and put up at Kensington Palace themselves, a place of which the Queen is very fond.

MAXINE ELLIOTT A NURSE.

I met Maxine Elliott coming out of the rooms of a famous Mayfair hygienic specialist, the other morning, where she was having her hands treated to stand the use of the numerous chemicals which have to be resorted to in nursing and which injure the skin of the hands often permanently, for the fair Maxine is off to the wars as a full-fledged nurse. I believe the clever specialist, who has found a means of making the skin of the hands proof against the havoc of antiseptics, is an American and all the fashionable nurses going out are being treated by her.

She puts on what resembles another layer of skin which in time peels off. The process is lengthy and expensive. It was done for Millicent, Duchess of Sutherland, among many others. Every time Lord Kitchener hears that some fresh society woman is going off nursing he says "things," for he does not believe in amateurs of any profession. He is going to put a stop to any more going out and would have vetoed Maxine Elliott were it not that considerable influence was brought to bear. She is all-powerful in British society and could get into the firing line if she wanted to. She has been inundated by photographers with offers to "take" her in her nursing togs, but she won't allow it.

LADY ACHESON WEARY.

The same day poor Lady Acheson was in Bond street looking very weary, for she is still anxious about Lord Acheson, who was more seriously wounded than was at first supposed. She was buying the black opal charms which are among the new ones that people swear by. Every week some fresh charm comes out and gets thousand of votaries. The black opal one comes from Australia and it has plenty of fire in it. Another of the new luck-bringers is a Japanese god made of ivory and stained black. It is a weird little thing with eyes that haunt you and the story goes that not one of the men who have carried it to battle has been killed. Sir John French swears by the four-leaved shamrock Ethel Levey sent him some weeks ago. I am told Lady Randolph Churchill sent anonymously to her late husband an Egyptian mascot, for it seems she thinks it would be a pity were disaster to overtake so good-looking a young man. Perhaps it is true that she still cares for him. She has at any rate declined several tempting "offers" since she has been free.

Her new house in Brooke street is a dream of wonderment and quite the most costly establishment she has yet had, but no doubt she will be tired of it in a few months, for she sheds houses with every new London season.

EVERYBODY AT HOME.

Everybody stays at home these evenings, the women knitting, and the men talking war. Little friendly dinners are arranged in people's own houses and the dishes are all named after the generals of the allied army and places of interest where fighting has taken place. Restaurant dinners and suppers are for the moment out of the question owing to the hours at which public places have to close. At the luncheon hour these places are more crowded than ever, the women wearing their smartest clothes—notwithstanding all that is being said to the contrary. The Grand Duke Michael and the Countess Torby are giving a series of luncheons at the Ritz, and there are invariably Americans at their hospitable board. Before Sir Ernest Cassel left London h ewas lunching one day with His Imperial Highness and his family. Sir Ernest was frightfully indignant anent the new law regarding "aliens" and he told his friends that London would see very little of him in the future. It is said that he is going to sell Brooke House when a chance arises and that it is quite possible Lady Veta Brady and her millionaire husband may buy it.

GERMAN NOT TAUGHT.

At the express wish of smart mothers, German is no longer taught to their children at the fashionable schools. The boys are studying strategy and tactics and the girls are learning more about geography than they ever did before. Princess Mary dropped German several weeks ago, much to her delight, for she always hated it. Russian is being taught instead, and even adults who do not know French are studying day and night to acquire it, it being considered nothing short of a disgrace these times to be ignorant of this language.

The kinema show grows more and more pipular, and it is to be the entertainment par excellence for the Christmas holidays. Those who can afford it have a kinema exhibiting war pictures in the drawing-room after dinner. Everyone who is anyone, too, has a tape-machine in the drawing-room or lounge so as to be able to learn the latest developments taking place at the front. I hear the Devonshires heard of the death of Lord John Cavendish in this way. A good deal of gambling goes on, on the quiet. Very often a few enthusiasts take a house in the suburbs and the votaries travel to and fro by the tube, which is quite a fashionable mode of going about these times and, by far the safest. Princess Mary and Mlle. Dessau, her French governess, often use the tube and the metropolitan railways.

A cast of Mrs. Grahame White's little hand was shown me the other day. I believe Mrs. White is now in the United States and intends to re- used to be at parties here her hands were the admiration of all who saw them. Not only are they tiny, but they are beautifully shaped, and her nails are dainty and pink. She has a way of putting her hands to her hair, which is probably unconscious, but it gives good scope for displaying these enviable possessions. She always has to have her gloves made for her, but being a wise woman of her generation, she covers them only when absolutely necessary. The man who took the cast of Mrs. Grahame White's hand told me her husband was prouder of it than of his achievements as an aeronaut.

GERMAN LOSSES IN ONE BATTLE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LEMBERG (Galicia) Nov. 28.—In operations lasting three days in the vicinity of Strykow, fifteen miles northeast of Lodz and Lushin, an equal distance to the south of this city, the Germans lost upwards of 17,000 men, a heavy battery of artillery and twenty-eight machine guns, according to authoritative information made available in Lemberg today.

In the same fighting the Austrians lost 16,000 men, in addition to twenty machine guns.

The German operations in this locality are declared by Russian military observers to have been absolute failures, and the chances of their escaping further disaster is regarded here as slight.

CANADIAN TROOPS GOING TO EGYPT.

What Does Your Mirror Say to You

If Your Face Is Not Fair You Are Not Fair to Your Face. Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers and Banish Pimples, etc.

Before beauty can ever be realized it must have a complexion that adds to its luster, that makes a magnificent face contour radiate an artistic color. The charm of all beauty rests chiefly in the clear skin, the pure, red blood, the soft, cream-like complexion.

"It is an Exquisite Joy to Look in My Mirror Now—Stuart's Calcium Wafers Gave Me Back My Clear Complexion."

Stuart's Calcium Wafers act directly upon the sweat glands of the skin, since their mission is to stimulate the excretory ducts. They do not create perspiration, but cause the skin to breathe out vigorously, thus transforming perspiration into a gaseous vapor. The calcium sulphide of which these wafers are composed consumes the germ poisons in the sweat glands and pores, hence the blood makes a new, smooth skin in a surprisingly short time.

You will never be ashamed to look at yourself in a mirror, once you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Nor will your friends give you that hinting look, as much as to say—for goodness sake, get rid of those pimples.

There is no longer any excuse for anyone to have a face disfigured with skin eruptions, when it is so easy to get rid of them. Simply get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store and take them according to directions. After a few days you will hardly recognize yourself in the mirror. The change will delight you immensely. All blemishes will disappear.

All druggists sell Stuart's Calcium Wafers at 50 cents a box. A small sample package mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

CARRANZA FORCE MOVES ON GUAYMAS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Nov. 28.—Private advices received here today say that Carranza forces are moving on Guaymas both on land and water.

It is reported that Gen. Iturbide and the deposed Governor, Rivero Sinaloa, command the land troops.

Word received from Mazatlan says that a decree has been issued making Obregon money legal tender and imposing as a penalty for refusal to accept it, a fine of $1000.

MUST STAND TRIAL FOR TREASON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAULT STE MARIE (Ont.) Nov. 28.—Robert Sayre, recently arrested here on a charge of high treason, was today committed for trial at the spring assizes of the High Court of the Algoma district. Death is the penalty for high treason.

It is alleged that Sayre smuggled six Austrians from Canada into the United States to aid them in returning to the Fatherland, in violation of military restrictions established at the beginning of the European war over Germans and Austrians in this district.

THE CHECKERBOARD OF THE WAR.

BY HARRY CARR.

ONLY those blessed with supernatural powers should attempt to diagnose the state of the war this week. The most stupendous battle of all history is going on at Germany's back door.

The bulletins are so unreliable and contradictory that it is simply wastage of time to guess at the events. Both sides claim the victory and both admit that the battle will very likely be the turning point of the war. It will go down as one of the decisive battles of the world and will affect the history of all nations and of civilization.

The hope of the Germans is that the result of the battle will be an enforced retirement of the Russian army. Officers familiar with the German-Russian frontier calculate that it will require about two months for the Czar's army to re-form and return to the attack if decisively defeated. Even the most optimistic of the Teutons do not pretend that a defeat for the Russian army will be a final disaster. It is impossible to hunt down and corner the Russian army.

With a two month's respite on the eastern frontier, Germany will be enabled to hurl her troops back to the other theater of war. Everything is at a standstill in that quarter. They are waiting in trenches for the outcome of this battle. A renewal of the German attack in France and Belgium will probably take the direction of a further attempt to capture the coast towns of Calais, Dunkirk, etc. If Germany has any real intention of invading England, the capture of these cities will be the opening of the way.

To the Russians, this battle is just as important. Victory will mean the bracing up of the center and safety of the line of communications, enabling the Russian forces to direct their full strength against the German right in Silesia and against the left in Koenigsberg. The activity of the Russian navy in the Baltic indicates that the Russians are intending to close in on Koenigsberg.

One of the features of this battle has been the brilliant cavalry fighting between the Uhlans and the Cossacks. By another week we will very likely have real and definite facts.

Mexico.

he says is needed to pay troops and the expenses of police and government because the Carranza administration left the treasury empty. The Zapata commander in his proclamation explained that the method of raising money by taxation was preferred to the indiscriminate confiscation and levies which the Carranza officials had practiced.

VILLA STILL DELAYED.

Nothing was known by the Brazilian Minister at the time he filed his dispatch late yesterday as to the time when Gen. Villa or his forces would arrive. Previously he telegraphed that agents of Villa and the convention were working in perfect harmony with the Zapata officials.

The situation in other parts of Mexico is described in other reports as quiet with the exception of Tampico, where the approach of Villa forces from San Luis Potosi has terrorized some people. Reports are current that Gen. Luis Caballero, Military Governor of the State of Tamaulipas, who commands the situation at Tampico, is now aligned with the conferees, and if this materializes, a peaceful entry of the Villa troops is likely.

Wireless reports from Tampico received today said the situation outside of the city in the oil fields was disturbed as bandits belonging to no faction of the Mexican controversy have apparently obtained control of Panuco. While they have looted many Mexican stores, they have not injured Americans or their interests so far as reported. The American Consul and naval authorities at Tampico are arranging to care for any refugees who may come into Tampico from the Panuco oil district.

Dispatches received Friday night from Vera Cruz carried a report that Gen. Blanco had been arrested by his own officers and was being conducted to Vera Cruz. No explanation was given of the events that led to his arrest.

LITTLE JUNKET BY CARRANZA.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE AND A. P.]

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 28.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza is in Jalapa tonight and is expected to remain there for two or three days to become acquainted with the people of that district. He was accompanied by Gens. Obregon and Aguilar. Gen. Heriberto Jara was left in command of the garrison here.

Gen. Lucio Blanco, who was the last of the Constitutionalist leaders to evacuate Mexico City, is now here as a prisoner at the disposition of the military authorities.

John R. Silliman, President Wilson's representative in Mexico, will not join Gen. Carranza here, but will remain in Mexico City, where he will conduct his work in conjunction with the Brazilian legation. Such dealings as the Washington government may have with Gen. Carranza while he is here will be carried on through Consul W. W. Canada.

TWO WOUNDED IN NACO, ARIZ.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NACO (Ariz.) Nov. 28.—[illegible] lets from the Naco (Son.) [illegible] two more persons on the American side today. A trooper of the [illegible] Cavalry was shot in the thigh and a Mexican woman was shot in the [illegible].

An unusual number of [illegible] rifle bullets came to the American side during the renewal of the attack on Gen. Hill's Carranza garrison by Gov. Maytorena's Villa troops.

Hill's men set up a one-pounder sixty feet from the United States Customs House. This drew most of the Maytorena fire, with the result that the shower of lead and iron was divided between the Mexican and American towns with impartiality.

It is reported that Maytorena has planted two new guns near the international boundary [illegible]. Arrangements have been completed by which some forty seriously wounded soldiers of Gen. Benjamin Hill's Carranzista defenders will be moved to Douglas, Ariz., today for [illegible].

PAUL FULLER'S VIEWS.

no better example of this found than the transforma- Paul Fuller's report between his data was collected here to the public. with all its superlatives, is the keynote of his alleged report, according to Washington.

Pessimism is the keynote of his real report, unless Americans in Mexico are absolutely wrong in their judgment of the man's character. My opinion, from what I saw of the man and the things he saw, is that his report is diametrically contrary to that credited to him.

I mention these things simply because they form part and parcel of what Americans in Mexico are thinking, and striving to overcome.

Americans down here do not want intervention. They know what that means. But they also do not want continuation of the insipid and stupid and weak-kneed policy the American administration has so consistently pursued in dealing with Mexico.

News of the Democratic loss at the recent election, eagerly accepted as foreshadowing Wilson's defeat at the next Presidential election, was greeted here with joy. Everybody, figuratively, went around patting everybody else on the back.

Wilson is a popular man in Mexico, I don't think.

The big fear here is that those Americans who reside any distance from the Rio Grande will not know the truth. Washington seems to Americans here to be nothing more nor less than a bureau for the suppression of the truth concerning Mexico by distribution of those things so aptly described by a short and ugly word of four letters.

RESULT OF FALSEHOODS.

Results of these falsehoods are seen in the premature return of the Americans to Mexico. They come as fast as train and ship can bring them—on Washington's optimistic publicity devices.

And while they, with fortitude, and an air of rampant cheer, plunge into social life to drown their economic troubles, this social experience is staged in the vortex of chaos, where the rack of your host's walls are laden with ready rifles and pistols, in strange contrast to the festive air of the little housewarming.

Guns are not only within easy reach, but doors and windows are heavily barred and a guard sits in the vestibule of every American home in the capital all night—an old precaution most advantageous at the present.

Zapatistas battle on night after night in the suburbs, within a stone's throw, one might say, of the National Palace. That uneasy feeling that some night they are going to make up their minds to come into the heart of the capital ever pervades the home of foreigner and native alike.

Zapatistas may not be as bad as they are painted, but they are painted pretty black and it is the paint the public knows.

Even as I write this, there is a motor at the door bearing an American business man, who tells us he has just heard Zapatistas have taken the Zocolo. If he had said he himself had seen it, we might be aroused but second or third-hand information in Mexico is not worth the attempt at verification.

This particular rumor, I surmise, has inception in the alarm of last night, when reports of a proposed Zapatista attack on the city itself stirred the Constitutionalist troops to that activity which is awakened here about every fortnight and proves so inconvenient to everybody who must be on the streets after dark.

And it is into the midst of this that Washington's optimistic falsehoods are inspiring Americans with interests in Mexico to return here.

The Washington administration does not realize the enormity of this policy, I feel certain. No man of even ordinary intelligence would advise women or children to return here yet. While Washington is not advising in so many words, the trend of optimistic expression is wholly distorting the facts.

That this look at the silver-lined side of the dark clouds is having a nation-wide effect in the States is no better emphasized than by the fact that all of the big business houses in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Denver, St. Louis and throughout the Northeast and Canada are addressing representatives and customers here in such terms as this:

"Now that peace is settling over Mexico and—" etc., etc.

These business men and business-houses in the United States really believe that it is all over but the shouting down here and that the only thing needed to boom business is the circular letter.

BUSINESS IS LOSING.

Mexico City has been inundated with that sort of thing. The truth of the matter is that not a single business-house here is making a cent more than expenses and that some of them are actually running at a heavy loss in the hope that they will be able to tide over until something definitely pointing to peace is accomplished.

No man who has $10,000 or $15,000 invested in machinery or stock or appointments for showrooms can afford to simply "clear out."

Nor can the banker wreck his bank nor the miner let his mine go to pieces or fall into the hands of renegades. That sort of thing is not only contrary to all logic, but impossible with a race where manhood mean manhood.

Americans now comprise the major part of the entire foreign population. Europe has drawn to almost her last man here for her armies. British and French and German clubs are desolate.

The return of American women and children is easily explained—the old history of husband and father being unable to get along without them. Also, they are indispensable to his sanity down here.

The coming of the men began with the arrival of a venturesome few whose interests here absolutely necessitated their presence. Yet, even that presence has not saved many of them—they have returned to find themselves bankrupt, felled to the foot of the ladder that is almost impossible to ascend the second time.

Their depression should be the pathetic thing. It is not. It is their wonderful courage in the face of a great adversity that trails into the future as far as perception can discern.

They are broke. But they smile. And while they have lost all faith in Washington "Wilson," they have not for one moment lost faith in God, or the United States itself. It is the administration, not the government. And administrations are but transitory

Washington's recurring blunders have drained all the optimism from the spirits of these returning Americans, but one cannot but admire the remarkable trust with which they have plunged back to the danger zone; they seem to be fatalists, to a man.

They only hope that Wilson has not been resorting to that trick of national politics—that he is not holding up his sleeve the trump card of "war President."

Now that the difficulty over the Tampico incident has almost passed, they do not want war. But they fear war is Wilson's schedule for the tail end of his administration, that he will plunge the United States into an international conflict for no other reason than to assure his re-election—on the theory that the American people would reseat him to compel him to finish what he began.

Whether there is any other foundation for this belief than mere deduction, I do not know.

But I do know that the very day the troop transports landed in Vera Cruz, when all the world believed we were to advance immediately toward Mexico City, the military plans at that time did not encompass an immediate advance but outlined a campaign to begin six months from that time.

That time is almost up.

Americans in Mexico know this and are anxiously watching every move Washington makes.

MEXICO EXPECTS WAR.

As for the Mexicans themselves, they cannot be convinced that the United States does not intend, sooner or later, to wage war against Mexico. This feeling manifests itself, not in the obvious, but in an under-current of anti-American feeling that must some day have an outlet.

Not only among personal friends I have made of many Mexicans here, where I see their true feelings, but from the rostrum of both the Mexico City and the Aguascalientes conventions, I have heard what Mexico and Mexicans think of Americans.

There is nothing insulting in their opinion. It is simply that patriotic fear, that deep-rooted conviction, that the United States wants to see the Stars and Stripes clear to Panama.

They do not seem to realize that even if this were true, Europe is the tribunal before which the Monroe doctrine is ever in the docket, that Europe's greedy eyes are on Mexico, that Europe would not willingly tolerate such expansion on the part of the United States.

Europe may wish to see the United States develop Mexico. But Europe would not sanction our territorial expansion.

Europe perhaps would back the United States, morally at least, in a movement that would mean only temporary intervention, for pacification and foundation of a sane government; but Europe would issue a loud cry were we, out of the Monroe doctrine, to develop a movement that would permanently envelop Mexico.

Roosevelt is the bogey of Mexico. I really believe that the Mexicans would rather see Porfirio Diaz monarch of the United States than to see Roosevelt elected again. They fear his ambitions. He is pointed out as the greatest American enemy of Mexico. And this is not only the fear of the present leaders, but it was the fear of all Mexicans.

PUTTY TINT IS THE LATEST.

But a Sand-paper Colored Gown Would do Just as Well.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Stucco gowns or clothes with a touch of sandpaper or putty tint are the latest style, according to the weekly bulletin today of the Fashion Art League of America. White hats and white-topped boots or spats should be worn with these creations. Skirts should be short and flaring for slim figures or slightly bell-shaped for stout figures and medium short in length, says the bulletin. The short coat is given preference. "The black hat is giving way to the more popular shades, while white will replace these colors before midwinter," advises the fashion guide. "The styles are wavering between the large and small shapes."

AUSTRIANS FLEE FROM CZERNOWITZ.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BUCHAREST (Roumania) Nov. 28, (via Petrograd)—Advices received at the Roumanian capital from Mamornitza say:

"After a violent bombardment and attacks from the Russian troops the Austrian forces have precipitately abandoned Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina, fleeing in disorder toward Dornavatra with the Russians in pursuit.

"The Russian advance guards marched into Czernowitz at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of November 27. They met with an enthusiastic welcome from the Roumanian and Ruthenian people of the city.

I TREAT NO DISEASES EXCEPT THOSE OF THE RECTUM AND BOWELS.

COLD TOO MUCH FOR WILLIAMS.

GREAT TENOR'S RECITAL AT TRINITY TRAGIC FIASCO.

Dr. Edward Kellog in Constant Attendance While Singer Risks Permanent Destruction of Voice in Futile Effort to Conquer Affliction. Audience Shows Sympathy.

The Evan Williams recital at Trinity Auditorium yesterday afternoon proved to be one of those tragic fiascos which now and then occur, for the great tenor tried to do something in which no man has yet succeeded—conquer nature.

A heavy cold had laid hold of that silver throat of his, and try as he might, he could not rise above it, and a programme, which otherwise would doubtless have been one of the treats of the season, was worse than nothing in consequence.

After the first number Dr. Edward Kellog, the specialist, was sent for, and stayed with Williams during the remainder of the concert, but one must be right to sing well, and though the physician may have saved Williams from the permanent disaster his efforts of yesterday courted, they could not put the gold back into the voice nor lend to it, even for a moment, that power and clearness for which it is famous.

The audience was sympathetic to a degree. It showed by its applause how sorry it felt, and Williams, defying the invisible clutch which all but strangled him into silence, even essayed encore numbers.

It would be injustice indeed to Williams to consider yesterday's concert as subject for serious review. He did his best, jeopardized his voice in fact, in Spartan effort to please, but it is always a moot question in cases like these, if he might not better have announced frankly that it was impossible for him to sing, and have postponed his recital until a later date.

ANGELENO FINDS FUN IN THE WAR.

DISPATCH BEARER WRITES OF BIG STRUGGLES AS SEEN ON ALLIES' LINE.

There's some fun in the great European war. So declares Ray North, formerly a resident of this city, in a letter to his father that was presumably smuggled out of the censored zone.

Young North, who is 23 years old and was at the outbreak of the war a student of the piano in London, is an American by birth, son of W. N. North, of the Noel apartments, Santa Monica. He enlisted in the British army late in July as a motor-truck driver. But, when it was found that he spoke German and French fluently, he was made a motorcycle dispatch bearer and attached to headquarters of the Fourth Division ammunition column.

Writing under date of November 4, from some point in France—he was not permitted to tell where—he says:

"I am getting along great out here, seeing all the fun and getting the best of grub. We have had some rotten weather, but it is all right now, though it is getting cold. I have plenty of warm clothes and blankets. I have had several bad spills on the bike, but nothing serious. . . . As I am writing this I can hear the continual roar of guns and once in a while some rifle fire or the bark of a machine gun. I was in a large town yesterday afternoon when the Germans began shelling it for no apparent reason whatever, as there were no troops in the town. I have seen this done several times before.. I have been under shell fire quite a bit, but have not yet experienced rifle fire, but I am not afraid of that, because the Germans, except for a few sharp-shooters, are very poor hands with a rifle.

"Their shell fire is not up to much because the great majority of their shells burst far too high."

Mr. North also received a field service post card, which is usually all that a soldier of the British expeditionary army can send out to the folks at home. There are printed lines telling of the condition of the writers health, whether he is at base or at the front, whether he has received letters from home, and if he intends to write. He is allowed to score out the lines he does not need, but may write nothing on the card but his name.

CAPTURE PAROLE BREAKER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

IMPERIAL, Nov. 27.—Joe Moyes, under an alias, was arrested in Imperial yesterday by officers and landed in the County Jail to await the action of the warden at San Quentin. Moyes is the man who in August, 1902, was sent to San Quentin from Ventura county on a sixty-year sentence for murder. Nearly two years ago he broke his parole, since when he has been hiding away from place to place. He had been suspected by the officers here for some some. Moyes has another murder to his credit since breaking his parole, so the officers say.

GERMANY LONG PREPARED FOR THE PRESENT WAR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—That Germany has long been preparing for the present war and in 1913 a retired general of the Prussian army made a secret visit to the United States and informed prominent Germans of detailed plans of the proposed attack, was the assertion tonight of Dr. J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, who spoke at a reunion of the Toronto University Alumni Association of Chicago.

"I have it from excellent and undisputable authority that in May, 1913, the German General Von Bernhardi, retired, made a secret visit to the United States and divulged plans of the proposed European war which is now on," said Mr. MacDonald. "He visited New York, Chicago and other cities west of the Mississippi, and then went to the Coast. On May 26, 1913, he held a secret meeing of some 300 Germans in San Francisco, called by the then German Consul there.

"At this gathering he outlined the plans of the present [illegible] which he proclaimed [illegible] with an attack along [illegible] Alsace-Lorraine, from [illegible] would be made to [illegible] the real intent, the German [illegible] said, would be to [illegible] through Belgium.

"The general outlined the [illegible] number of days it would take to [illegible] to Paris, the cost and number of [illegible] necessary to get there and when Paris had capitulated a levy would be [illegible] for its redemption.

"After France had been [illegible] the German army would [illegible] Russia. It was pointed out [illegible] German officer that Great Britain [illegible] expected to remain neutral [illegible] the time would shortly come [illegible] Great Britain would be attacked.

"This general is most [illegible] ported to have stated, 'Law [illegible] makeshift, force is the real [illegible] for strong nations.'"

Dr. MacDonald said he [illegible] make public the name of [illegible] formant, but that he attended [illegible] meeting at which Gen. Von [illegible] is said to have revealed the [illegible] plans of the German attack.

AGED EDITOR INJURED.

Former Executive of Local Papers Knocked Down by Bus—Shoulder Blade Broken.

Thomas D. Gardner, 72 years of age, an inmate of the Little Sisters' Home for the Aged, was seriously injured early last night when he was knocked to the pavement at First and Mott streets by a 5-cent bus driven by Walter Corneau of No. 150 North Townsend street. Mr. Gardner was treated for a fracture of the left shoulder blade and many lacerations of the body and face.

Mr. Gardner is well known among the newspaper men in the city. During the year 1875 and again in 1885 he was editor of local papers. Mr. Gardner spent the night in the Receiving Hospital, where he was taken following the accident.

Forest Blaze Destroys Ranch Property at Santa Paula—Items of News in Brief.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA PAULA, Nov. 28.—The Mahan brothers suffered losses of more than $4000 to their Las Posas ranch property in the forest fires. An implement house containing $1000 worth of new implements, a new barn containing 250 tons of hay, and much household furniture which had been moved to the center of a large, bare field, were destroyed, and strenuous work for several days was necessary to save the house itself.

While Lincoln Hall was attending a farm bureau demonstration, two barns, containing about $2000 worth of vehicles and feed were destroyed by fire of unknown origin at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

MRS. BLAKE'S DIVORCE.

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 28.—Dr. Joseph A. Blake's wife secured a divorce from him in Connecticut yesterday on the grounds of desertion.

It was only a year ago last September that Mrs. Blake began an action for $1,000,000 against Mrs. Katherine Duer Mackey, wife of Clarence H. Mackey, president of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, charging alienation of affections of Dr. Blake. After proceedings had been carried on for several weeks the suit was dropped, as was also a second suit in which Mrs. Blake sought a separation and $1500 a month alimony.

Since Mrs. Blake began her first action Mr. and Mrs. Mackay have also been divorced.

She threw up her hands in such a way that the one shot passed through her face, shoulder and thumb.

BURGLAR SHOOTS AT PROFESSOR.

ATTACK MADE IN HIS HOME—GOLD ROBBERY SAID TO BE SPURIOUS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 28.—A burglar surprised by Prof. George P. Skinner in his home on Eighth street late last night fired through the panel of the kitchen door and the bullet passed close to Mr. Skinner's head. The thief, who had looted the entire upper story of the house while the family was out, escaped through a rear door. Later it is believed he entered a saloon in the west end of the city and changed clothes. The burglar secured a watch and other valuables from the Skinner home.

GOLD ROBBERY "FAKE."

The preliminary hearing of Clarence Loyst and Winfield M. Scott, charged with robbing the United Greenwater mine at Dale of a large amount of gold bullion, will be held in the Justice Court at Dale early this week, the date having not as yet been set. Supt. John McGee of the mine states that there have been no robberies in the past two years at which $150,000 or any other amount of gold has been stolen, denying entirely the allegations of the Landwehr interests. McGee says that the gold stolen by Scott and Loyst did not represent more than $700.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER.

Pablo Belarde, for the past thirty years a fruit peddler at the Colton depot of the Southern Pacific and one of the best-known Spanish residents of the valley, was today acquitted on a murder charge in connection with the killing of Juan Costillo at Colton several months ago. The jury rendered its decision without leaving the courtroom, following the motion of the District Attorney and the instructions of the court. It was charged that the evidence was perjured. Belarde killed Costillo in self-defense, the evidence showed, and the court declared it justifiable homicide.

Forty-eight members have passed away in the lodge's history, eight within the past year. Rev. Ralph P. Smith of Redlands will deliver the oration, while Lyman M. King of Redlands will give the eulogy. Special music will be included in the programme.

NEWSPAPER MAN IS DEAD.

Members of the Vignes Family and Prominent Fraternal Worker Passes—Death Calls Another.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Nov. 28.—John Louis Vignes, 51 years of age, passed away tonight at his home in this city following a short illness. He was in the newspaper business for many years and was at one time connected with the circulation department of The Times. Mr. Vignes was prominent in fraternal circles, being a Shriner, thirty-second degree Mason and a Knight Templar.

He was born at the old Vignes homestead, Aliso and Vignes streets, Los Angeles, the son of Ferdinand Vignes, a Southern California pioneer. Besides the widow, he leaves five daughters, Mrs. Bert Walp, Mrs. Oliver Swenningsen, and the Misses Marie, Antoinette and Amelia Vignes; two sisters, Mrs. George Armitage of Altadena and Mrs. Edward Hayes of Los Angeles, and a brother, Ferdinand H. Vignes, of Los Angeles.

Death removed another prominent personage in taking Mrs. Eliza A. Sears, mother of the late Richard Sears, of Sears, Roebuck & Co., of Chicago, who died late last night at her apartments on Chestnut avenue. Her death followed a stroke of apoplexy. Mrs. Sears came to Long Beach two weeks ago from Minneapolis, her home, accompanied by her daughters, the Misses Kate and Eva Sears. She was a sister of Mrs. A. C. Case of No. 605 Cedar avenue, Long Beach. The remains will be taken to Minneapolis.

The judge in Mexicali, however, insisted that the bonds be raised to $2500 gold. The decision of the court was laid before Secretary Bryan in a telegram reciting the facts in the case, and requesting the State Department to institute proceedings which would restore the men to liberty.

The Mexican authorities do not dispute that the Chinese were the aggressors in the affair, but refused to release the Americans except on heavy bonds, which is considered graft. Messrs. Lewis and McGee are now on the American side and will remain there until the State Department is heard from.

AFTER HARBOR PIRATES.

Old Offender, Possible Leader of Gang, is Sent to County Jail. Launch is Found.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Nov. 28.—William Gannon, who was recently given a suspended sentence of thirty days for harbor piracy, could not resist the temptation to return to his old haunts along the water front at night. As a result, he was committed to the County Jail this morning by Judge Chesebro, following the conviction and confession of Tully Helper and Jack Dawson.

The latter two were caught stealing rope from the government dredging stores at East San Pedro by William Koscke, the night watchman. When they were taken before the justice they admitted the theft, but said that Gannon was the instigator of the job and that he had gotten away.

Gannon had been convicted of stealing rope from the Globe Milling Company's wharf. He made a strong plea for clemency and Judge Chesebro gave him another chance. This morning he made another plea, but the court would not listen to it. After he has served his sentence it is probable that more serious charges will be filed against him.

The police have been making a strong effort to break up the gang of harbor pirates that have been working the water front for several months. Launches and yachts have been the particular prey of these pirates, who strip engines of brass fittings and accessories and carry away canvas and fishing gear.

Jubelt & Parker, Redondo Beach fishermen, picked up a launch adrift off Rocky Point last night that is believed to be the Roosevelt, which was stolen from Joe Kossaroff of No. 132 Utah street, Los Angeles, at Santa Monica a few days ago. The launch had been disguised and was towed into port here for identification.

George B. Cooke, city health inspector for the harbor district for the past two years, has been transferred to Los Angeles. He will be succeeded here, December 1, by R. A. Brown, who formerly held the position.

OLD HOME FARMER RESIGNS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOLDIERS' HOME, Nov. 28.—After nearly a quarter of a century spent as home farmer, Frank Gidley has resigned, being succeeded by C. H. Witherow of University, Cal. During his time as home farmer, Frank, as Mr. Gidley is known among "The Boys," has had under his immediate charge more workers than any other department at the home. It was with tears in their eyes that many of those with whom he had at one time or another wielded a hoe extended their regrets that Father Time should command that he rest for the remainder of his days.

A Wonderful Opportunity

Given by The Times, to Secure a Great Historical Work.

A host of readers of The Times have secured Larned's History of the World by means of our coupon offer printed elsewhere in today's issue, and they are voicing a genuine enthusiasm in their appreciation of the remarkable opportunity. They are showing the work to their friends and urging them to lose no time in obtaining the best history of the world ever published, at a cost that makes it almost a gift. This is the latest work by Josephus Nelson Larned, who wrote the famous History for Ready Reference, in more general use than any work of its kind ever published. The years of industrious toil spent on that wonderful production laid the foundation for the history which The Times is now offering to its readers. There are five volumes in a beautiful de luxe style of binding, nearly 2000 pages, and over 150 illustrations in half tones and colors. The History coupon printed elsewhere in today's paper explains the generous terms of our distribution.

The books are now on display at The Times main and Branch offices—First and Broadway and No. 619 South Spring street.—[Advertisement.

CHINESE LIKE HEN'S TEETH.

There is'nt a one to be Found in this City When Officers Look for Opium.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Nov. 28.—About $100 worth of opium, pipes and other articles used by a Chinaman in partaking of forbidden fumes were taken today in raids conducted by officers of the State Board of Pharmacy.

The officers found that Santa Ana has no Chinatown there not even being a Chinaman within the city limits. On the English ranch outside the west city limits is a garden run by Wing Wong, and in Wing's house opium was found, all of it contraband, probably smuggled from Mexico, where it can be bought for $12 a can. Gin Jim was smoking some of the precious stuff. He said it cost him $45 a can.

"I smoke'um long time. No smoke'um, I get heap sick."

Gin pleaded guilty and was fined $300. He went to jail.

Another Wong Own was brought in from a wash-house at Orange. He is charged with having an opium pipe and will be tried on December 7. Chinese houses at Anaheim were visited, but no opium was found.

EXTRA-FINE fruit, vegetable and alfalfa land can now be bought in Calipatria Farms of Imperial Valley for $65 an acre ($13 an acre cash.) See Carl F. Schader, 610 Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles.

POISON CASE TOMORROW.

Sensational Charge Involving Poisoned Candy Will be Put Before Jury in San Diego.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 28.—The trial of Mrs. Georgia Simmons Burke of Winslow, Ariz., on a charge of sending a box of poisoned candy to Mrs. William H. Digg of San Diego, will begin Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The jury was selected yesterday and consists of Herman M. Schueltheiss, Peter Smith, William S. Kuhn, Arthur Shepard, R. C. Moore, John T. Burke, Fred W. Rankin, R. C. Clugston, H. M. Virtue, W. H. Dyer, John T. Backensto and Joseph Wurzell.

Mrs. Burke was accompanied by a nurse and her sister from Los Angeles and her husband, William Burke. It is known the defense has subpoenaed several medical experts from Los Angeles to testify as to Mrs. Burke's condition. The principal defense will be that of temporary insanity. The defense will also attempt to disprove that Mrs. Burke administered the poison "with intent to kill."

The trial of Mrs. Burke promises to be the most sensational and bitterly fought criminal case since the Schank firebug trial four years ago.

Chief Deputy District Attorney McKee and Asst. Dist.-Atty. Hardin will handle the prosecution.

THE TIMES has arranged a daily automobile paper delivery service between Los Angeles and San Diego, delivering papers at San Diego about 7 a.m. daily. Wheeler & Palmer are operating big touring cars in this service, and will carry passengers from San Diego to Los Angeles daily. Persons desiring to make this trip can arrange for it through The Times Agency at San Diego, No. 436 B street.

Man Cited in Court Says His Rattlesnakes are Lazy.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 28.—The failure of rattlesnakes to manufacture sufficient venom was the excuse given by J. T. Burton in Justice Keating's court yesterday for non-payment of his board bill in a suit brought by the Hotel Marquette.

He stated his business is that of extracting venom from rattlesnakes, which he sells at $10 an ounce for medicinal purposes. On account of the snakes not biting well at present, he says he could not get sufficient venom, and also that his patrons don't always pay up on time. He fully intends to pay this bill, he said, as soon as the rattlers begin biting again. The case was allowed to go over and the man was placed on probation.

Criticises Reclamation Policy.

S. C. Graham, president of the City Club, addressed that body at the regular Saturday luncheon yesterday at the Union League Club, condemning the government's reclamation policy, which provides that certain water must be utilized only for a certain area and is not available for other areas. Mr. Graham, who was formerly a mmeber of the Public Service Commission, talked on "Irrigation, Hydro-Electric Power and Water Transportation."

No Paid Ads.

It has been decided by the Executive Committee of the 1915 Grand Lodge Reunion, B.P.O.E., to be held next July 11 to 17, in Los Angeles, that the official programme for that week will be published by this committee, and it is decided that no advertising will be contained therein. It has been definitely decided that there will be no solicitation for paid advertising from anyone for the said official programme for this Grand Lodge Reunion.

To Last Rest.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today at the Bresee chapel for Ashley Sawyer, a real estate dealer 64 years old, who died Friday at No. 329 South Hope street. Burial will be in Inglewood Cemetery. He had lived in Los Angeles twenty-two years. Mrs. Sawyer and these children, all of Los Angeles, are living: Harry and Ruben Sawyer, Mrs. R. Costerson and Mrs. M. R. Kester. Mr. Sawyer was superintendent of construction in Colorado on one of the first transcontinental railroads.

For the Hospital Boys.

Mrs. J. B. Banning, No. 945 Westlake avenue, Mrs. T. B. Brown, No. 1853 West Twenty-fifth street, and Mrs. Charles Lantz, No. 2622 South Figueroa street, are a committee in charge of the work of sewing garments for boys of 12 in the Children's Hospital. Anyone who has time to do some of this needed sewing is asked to send name, address and telephone number to any one of these ladies. Garments will be cut and work delivered if requested. Contributions of either time or money will be appreciated.

Debate City Manager Plan.

William Mulholland, chief engineer of the aqueduct, voiced his opposition to the proposed city manager plan at a meeting of the Sunset Club at the California Club Friday night, when he said that the proposed plan does not offer a stabilizing form of government. Herbert J. Goudge favored the plan, as did Dr. John R. Haynes, the latter also favoring the amendment calling for proportional representation. James A. Anderson said that while a change is necessary, he does not believe the proposed city manager plan meets the demand.

Big Game Hunters.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. England, No. 836 South Grand avenue, who left this city January 27 on a tour of the world, arrived safely at Stanley Falls, Congo State, South Africa, September 17, according to a letter received yesterday by Manager Robertson of the steamship agency of the California Savings Bank. Owing to the war, they were detained at Aden two weeks waiting for a steamer. They state that it has not rained in Aden in ten years. In Zanzibar they traveled many hundreds of miles on elephants. During the trip they bagged many wild animals, including lions and hippopotami.

Run Down by Auto.

Run down by an automobile in front of No. 846 South Main street late yesterday afternoon, W. M. Bosler, 61 years old, of No. 2951 La Salle street, was painfully injured. L. E. Hardy, an attorney who lives at No. 321 North Normandie avenue, was driving the machine and was placed under arrest by Patrolman Cook. Charged with reckless driving he was taken to Central Station, but secured his release upon giving bond for his appearance tomorrow. The officer says Mr. Hardy was driving at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour.

HAND IN HAND.

Death Comes to Man as He Waits in Line to Pay His Share of County Taxes.

'Tis a trite saying that nothing is sure but death and taxes. That death is the surer was demonstrated at the Courthouse yesterday morning, when George Haylock was stricken with apoplexy and died while he was standing in line in the Tax Collector's office awaiting his turn at the window.

Mr. Haylock was a cigar merchant, living at No. 233 East Main street, Compton. He came to Los Angeles to transact business. When he left home he was apparently in the best of health.

Several men rushed to his side when he fell, but he died instantly.

They will be joined today by their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Martin of Columbus, who remained over a day in Grand Canyon. Other guests at the same hotel are Detective A. P. Burmingham of Chicago; E. Sarkin, dry goods dealer of New York City, and George H. Brewer, merchant of Mexico City.

Grant of Kansas City, and Henry Clark, grain broker of Chicago.

ANOTHER "JITNEY" BUS.

Driver is Seriously Injured When Auto Truck Smashes into His Little Machine.

J. E. Brazelton of No. 1315 Norfolk street lies in the Receiving Hospital seriously injured, as the result of a collision of his "jitney bus," which he was driving, with an auto truck. The accident occurred late yesterday afternoon at North Broadway and Pritchard street.

With one passenger Mr. Brazelton was turning from North Broadway to go south on Pritchard street when the truck, driven by George Wyman of No. 518 East Twelfth street, crashed into his machine. Both machines were turned over, the bus being almost totally demolished. Mr. Brazelton received a gash over the right eye and the hospital physicians said he is probably injured internally.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Nov. 28.—[Reported by W. D. Fuller, Observer, temporarily in charge.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.97; at 5 p.m., 29.94. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 61 deg. and 62 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 73 per cent.; 5 p.m., 66 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 4 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 8 miles. Highest temperature, 70 deg.; lowest, 60 deg. Rainfall for season, .52 of an inch. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The area of high pressure, noted Friday morning over the Dakotas, has made a rapid movement eastward, and its crest now overlies the lower lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley. This area is giving generally fair weather to all the country east of the Rocky Mountains, except in the States adjacent to the Gulf of Mexico, where the disturbance shown Friday still prevails. The heaviest rainfall reported from that section, 1.80 inches, fell at New Orleans. Much cooler weather prevails along the Atlantic coast. The storm that was observed Friday morning in the Pacific Northwest is still central in that region, but a southern extension of this disturbance developed rapidly since that time, giving rain in measurable amounts as far south as San Francisco, and threatening weather generally in the Southwest. It is not likely that the full force of this storm will be felt in Los Angeles and vicinity, but the weather will probably be somewhat unsettled Sunday.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday; light, variable winds.

For California south of the Tehachepi: Fair Sunday.

STATE FORECAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—Weather forecast:

San Francisco and vicinity: Fair Sunday; light northwest wind.

Sacramento, Santa Clara and San Joaquin valleys: Fair Sunday; light northwest wind.

California south of the Tehachepi: Fair Sunday; light west wind.

ARIZONA FORECAST.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. — Forecast for Arizona: Fair Sunday and Monday.

with its growth grows Los An- for nowhere else on the face of are conditions more surely for the nurture of the es- among the arts than in South- California, say, from Santa Bar- south into the highlands of Low- fornia. Here is found sun- nized with the static elec- damaging to films, and that variety of background so necessary to assure diversity of plot and continuity of interest.

Guerdons of gain have accrued in many ways to the Southland as a direct result of its climate, its sunlight, its manifold scenic attractions. But none of these had been plowed more than scantily to fructification in assured and ever-increasing income until some starry genius in the motion-picture line came, saw, and remained, the pioneer of a host.

It is a host that today makes 85 per cent. of the motion-picture negatives produced in this country—5,460,000 feet, or more than 1000 miles, of film being the yearly output here. From these are run off more than 40,000 miles of "positives" for production before screen-play audiences in practically every country of the wide world. As for investment, the value of plants in territory contiguous to Los Angeles is over $3,000,000, the yearly running expenses of the fifty-two companies is $5,720,000, of which $4,680,000 is for wages to 14,000 employees.

PUTTING MILLIONS IN.

And the tale is not yet told. The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, with the first unit of its wonderful plant in the hills of the San Fernando Valley, just beyond Cahuenga Pass, completed, is planning further investments that will raise the eventual total to $4,000,000; the New York Motion Picture Corporation is spending $1,000,000 on a film-play city known as Inceville; the Selig Polyscope Company has plans drawn for a $1,000,000 plant, and so on through the list, every one is building or planning to build.

And the reason is apparent—the demand for films is increasing. It has more than doubled in one year and with the prostration of the motion-picture producing business in Europe, the demand for American-made films is steadily increasing. There is a largely increasing demand for our films in South America and in Australia, both of which were formerly dependent on France and England for reels. In fact, America now has but one competitor for the world's trade in "flickers"—Italy.

FIELD ONLY SCRATCHED.

In spite of the large place that Southern California now holds in the motion-picture producing business, the field has only been scratched, say the producers, such men as I. Bernstein, general manager of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. The next step, they say, the logical step is the erection of plants here to make the "positive," that is the productible reels that are run off with the negative as the model. As they phrase it, it is axiomatic that the pitcher will go to the well, the manufacturing plant to the source of the raw product, and Southern California is the mine from which pay ore in the motion-picture business is being drawn in ever increasing quantities.

Mined is a good word, for it was only after years that were long, only in a business like the film business that has produced millionaires over night, that pay ore was finally found in auriferous perfection here in that desideratum of all things in film making-sunshine that can be depended on to be on the job with near mathematical regularity.

"Southern Italy is the only place on the globe that can vie with Southern California in light," said Mr. Bernstein yesterday. "With the judicious use of canvas diffusers, you can make any sort of light possible for interior scenes, under sunlight conditions. Out of doors here you can do anything.

"But in checking over the relative desirability of Southern California and Italy for film-making, the balance is all in favor of the Southland. You can work more days a year here than any other place known," said Mr. Bernstein.

Also a desideratum as much sought as light, Southern California shows a mere chemical trace of static electricity, which is so ruinous to films. To put it plainly, we have no thunderstorms.

Though light—real sunlight—won

The new Universal City, between Cahuenga Pass and Lankershim, in the San Fernando Valley. Here handsome buildings of steel and concrete are reared for permanent use, with broad boulevards and beautiful grounds, on a highly picturesque hillside ranch. It will be the most advanced motion-picture city in the world. This first unit, which cost a million, is about completed.

STRANGE COINCIDENCE.

Dr. Burdette and Eugene Baldwin, Famous Friends of Peoria Trio of Notables, Expire Same Day.

Twelve hours before the recent passing of Dr. Robert J. Burdette, his life-long friend and former associate, Eugene F. Baldwin, died in Peoria, Ill. They had been members of a famous trio of that city, completed by Robert Ingersoll, the philosopher, orator and lawyer. They were the closest of friends when they lived in Peoria.

Mr. Baldwin and Dr. Burdette worked together on the Peoria Evening Review. Throughout his life, Mr. Baldwin remained a newspaperman in Peoria, having a large following. Dr. Burdette went to Burlington, Iowa, where he first attracted national attention with his wit. But they continued to correspond, and had many pleasant reunions. Neither knew of the fatal illness to which the other was succumbing.

HEWLETT SEEKS HEAVY DAMAGES.

EMBEZZLEMENT CASE FALLS; HE CHARGES MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.

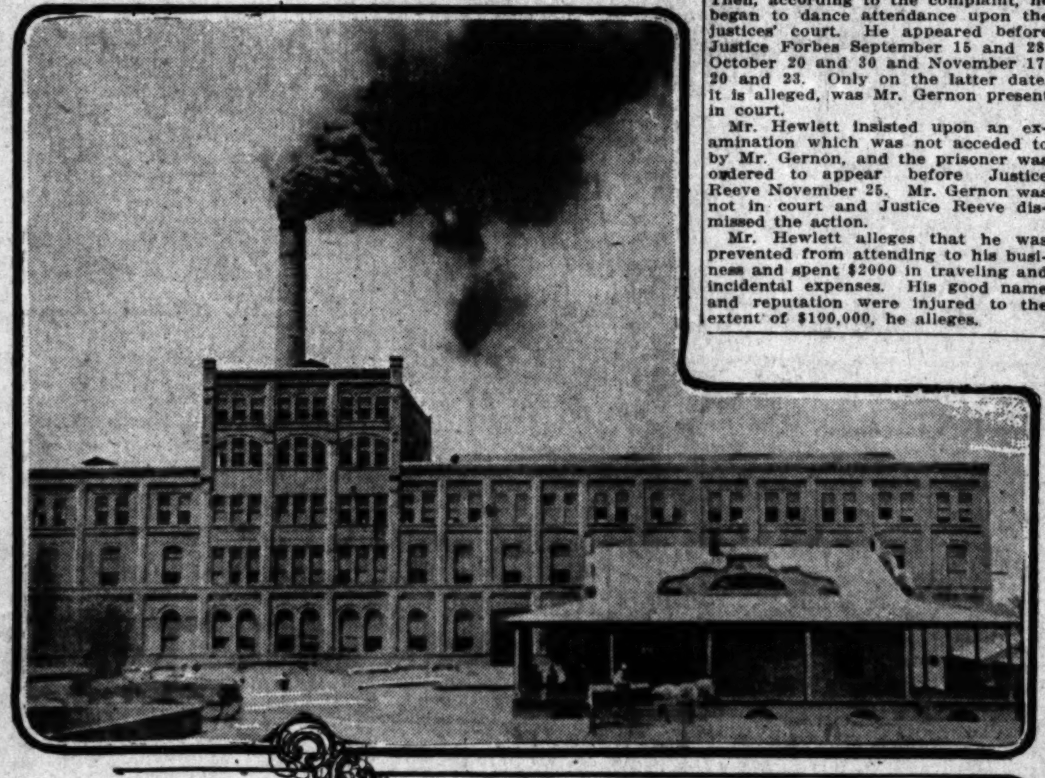
Growing out of the arrest of Eugene E. Hewlett of Pasadena on the charge of having feloniously obtained approximately $40,000 from Reginald H. Gernon, and the subsequent dismissal of the case by Justice Reeve, Mr. Hewlett yesterday filed suit against Mr. Gernon for $102,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution.

It is alleged in the complaint that Mr. Gernon swore to a complaint before Justice Forbes September 8, last, charging him with the felony, and obtained a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Hewlett. In doing so, Mr. Hewlett alleges that Mr. Gernon acted maliciously and without probable cause.

Mr. Hewlett was arrested in New Mexico September 12 and was in the custody of an officer two days. He put up $5000 bail and was released. Then, according to the complaint, he began to dance attendance upon the justices' court. He appeared before Justice Forbes September 15 and 28, October 20 and 30 and November 17, 20 and 23. Only on the latter date, it is alleged, was Mr. Gernon present in court.

Mr. Hewlett insisted upon an examination which was not acceded to by Mr. Gernon, and the prisoner was ordered to appear before Justice Reeve November 25. Mr. Gernon was not in court and Justice Reeve dismissed the action.

Mr. Hewlett alleges that he was prevented from attending to his business and spent $2000 in traveling and incidental expenses. His good name and reputation were injured to the extent of $100,000, he alleges.



How the Southwest produces cane sugar.

Above is the $1,000,000 factory and refinery of the Western Sugar Company at Glendale, near Phoenix. It has a capacity of 800 tons a day and has recently been remodeled to permit the manufacture of sugar from cane as well as from beets. Below is a typical stand of cane in the Salt River Valley where 3000 acres will be planted early next spring. Cane grows taller and heavier in the southwestern desert than in any other portion of the United States and extensive experiments have proven that the grower can be sure to net $30 to $70 per acre annually.

Millions in It.

CANE SUGAR ADDED TO SOUTHWEST PRODUCTS.

Big Arizona Factory will Start First Grinding this Week.

Experiments Show Cane Can be Profitably Grown in Irrigated Desert Regions—In Imperial Valley, Where Conditions are Exceptionally Favorable, a Net Profit of Forty to Seventy Dollar s Per Acre is Indicated.

THE factory of the Western Sugar Company at Glendale, Ariz., will begin next Thursday to grind sugar cane—the first cane ever made into sugar in the United States west of Texas. This year the company planted and will harvest 750 acres of cane. Three thousand acres will be planted this winter in the Salt River Valley, and the company's officials believe the industry will be so profitable that it will increase rapidly.

That sugar cane can be grown successfully and profitably in the irrigated regions of the Southwest has been demonstrated by experiments carried on for the past three years by the company. The factory was built and equipped to make sugar from beets, but special machinery has been added to adapt the plant to the manufacture of cane sugar. This adds four months to the operating season if sufficient cane can be obtained. The factory has a capacity of 800 tons of cane daily and represents an investment of $1,000,000.

The growing experiments have shown that the best results are obtained from the Mexican white and striped cane and from one type of Louisiana cane. The average sugar content was higher than in the South and a little lower than in Hawaii. R. P. Davie, vice-president and general manager of the company, says the average production in the Salt River Valley is about thirty tons to the acre, as compared with an average of twenty to twenty-five tons in Louisiana. Some tracts of good soil in Arizona, well cultivated, produced as high as fifty tons, and one small tract of less than two acres yielded sixty-eight tons per acre. The cane on this small tract weighed a pound to the foot and thirteen stalks weighed 100 pounds.

METHOD OF CULTIVATION.

Land is prepared for cane by deep plowing, and pieces of cane are laid in the furrows and covered with three to five inches of earth. The new growth sprouts from the joints, and replanting is necessary only every three or four years. Thorough cultivation is the only secret of successful cane growing. Water is run in furrows, and in Salt River Valley it is found that one irrigation a month in the spring and every ten or fifteen days in the summer will produce best results.

From three to four acre feet of water, according to character of soil, will be required. The cane is planted in December and cut late in the fall. It is practically a twelve-month crop, like cotton. The cost of planting and cultivating is $10 to $12 an acre, and the cost of cutting and gathering the cane about $1.50 a ton.

Imperial Valley landowners have watched the result of the experiments in the Salt River Valley, where conditions are similar, with much interest and many of them, convinced that sugar cane growing is profitable, are preparing to plant cane seed this winter. They will probably get the seed from the West Coast of Mexico.

IMPERIAL ADVANTAGES.

Climatic and soil conditions in Imperial Valley are even more favorable to cane growing than in Salt River Valley, where it is necessary to take precautions against frost. The temperature at Phoenix drops occasion-

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Roberts, Who were married at noon yesterday. The bride was Miss Winifred Fullerton.

WEDDING HURRIED UP BY POOR FOOD.

BANKER-CLUBMAN FINDS FARE OF BACHELOR TOO BAD; TAKES BRIDE.

Poor food as furnished a bachelor in a country community hurried the marriage of Earl Lee Roberts, a Southern California banker, contractor and clubman, to Miss Winifred Fullerton at noon yesterday. The scene was the First Baptist Church, where the young persons met for the first time about five years ago.

Recently Mr. Roberts was appointed to the vice-presidency of the Bank of Lancaster. After a few months passed in the town where high-class restaurants and marble-front hotels are as common as jack rabbits on Broadway in Los Angeles, Mr. Roberts suddenly decided the only solution of the difficulty lay in matrimony.

Of his numerous girl friends, the most appealing and lovely was Miss Winifred Fullerton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winifred Scott Fullerton of Los Angeles. Since both were willing, it did not take long to decide on the date of the wedding. Friends were hastily informed of the impending affair, numerous prenuptial entertainments were started and all came suddenly to the end of the programme when the two were joined in matrimony at high noon yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. B. Fox of the First Baptist Church, who was assisted by the Rev. Mr. Reardon, retired, and also a lifelong friend of Mrs. Roberts. Miss Eunice Garrett, a girlhood companion, was the maid of honor and Roy Murray of Phoenix, Ariz., was the groomsman. A large number of friends had heard of the event and were gathered at the church.

Mr. Roberts is secretary of the John Roberts Company, contractors, who have built numerous large buildings in San Diego, Oakland, Los Angeles and other California cities. He has recently become heavily interested in Antelope Valley property and is vice-president and manager of the Bank of Lancaster. His fraternal affiliation are numerous; he is a Shriner and holds other Masonic degrees. The Cuyamaca Club of San Diego and several other clubs carry his name on the membership roll.

Mrs. Roberts has been president of the Woman's Missionary Club of the First Baptist Church and has for several years been connected with educational work in Los Angeles. After a honeymoon up the Coast, the bride and groom will make their home at Lancaster and there endeavor to solve the pure food and poor food problem.

RUMOR OF DEAL QUASHED.

Revived Report of Negotiations for Purchase of Associated Denied by Company's Heads.

The time-worn rumor of a deal for the absorption of the Associated Oil Company by the Standard Oil Company has again been revived. There is noticeable the usual absence of really coherent details.

An interview by a Times representative at San Francisco with William F. Herrin, president of the Associated, and W. C. Sproule, a director, elicits the declaration from them that there is not a particle of truth in the report that negotiations for the sale of the Associated are pending or that they ever will be considered.

Although this assertion is contrary to the general predictions which have been voiced in stock market circles, its positiveness ought to quell for a time at least the persistent reports of a deal involving the Southern Pacific subsidiary.

Usual monthly dividends have been declared by two subsidiaries of the Associated, Amalgamated and West Coast oil companies. The Amalgamated's dividend, which, at the rate of $1.25 a share, aggregates $62,500, is payable December 24 to stock of record December 19. The West Coast disbursement at the rate of $1.50 a share, aggregates about $15,000, and is payable December 15 to stock of record December 10.

BANDITS SLASH SLOW VICTIM.

ALMOST IN FRONT OF MAN'S HOME THEY ROB AND DEFACE HIM.

Within a stone's throw of his home at No. 837 Center street, B. Martinez was held up by three men early yesterday morning. They took from him $85 and a gold watch, and one of the bandits slashed him several times about the face with a knife.

"When they told me to throw up my hands, I was so scared that I didn't understand," said Mr. Martinez, "and I was slow in complying. I guess they thought I was going to resist and the first thing I knew blood was streaming from some knife wounds about my face."

Mr. Martinez reported the matter to the police and he was removed to the Receiving Hospital where his wounds were dressed. He said two of the bandits are Mexicans and the other an American.

E. L. Rodririguez of No. 1442 West Thirty-seventh street also is the victim of a hold-up man. He was robbed of a gold watch and $5 at Sixteenth and Flower streets last night.

JURIST'S BEAUTY MARK.

He is Having Mole Removed from Face and was Unable to Attend Case Here.

Judge Conley of Madera county, one of the best-known men on the bench in this State, has lost his beauty mark. A mole on his right cheek had stayed by him many years. Finally, after thousands of the curious had asked him why he did not have it removed, he consented to an operation in San Francisco yesterday.

Information touching on this matter was conveyed to George Whiteleather, clerk in Department Sixteen, yesterday. The loss of the beauty mark was only an incident of the letter which explained why Judge Conley could not be present yesterday and fix the findings in a damage suit.

CIVIC CENTER MEETING.

The Normal Hill Civic Center League will hold a public meeting on Tuesday evening in the kindergarten-room of the old Normal building, when J. D. Burks will talk on the proposed amendments to the city charter. Musical numbers will be given by Miss Sontag, Miss Hughes and Wilhelm Albers. All persons living in that section of the city are invited to attend.

WOMAN IN PULPIT.

And There Will be no Drowsy Eyelids at the Church of the Messiah Tonight—Novel Services.

Charles Dana Gibson once sketched a picture of a woman in ministerial garb occupying a pulpit, and beneath it placed a caption to the effect that the church will be crowded. His idea will find a living exemplification this evening when Miss Pauline Williams will take the place of Rev. Stanley R. Fisher in the pulpit of the Church of the Messiah, Washington street and Van Ness avenue.

Although she will not preach, she is scheduled to entertain the audience with a dramatic interpretation of "King Robert of Sicily," Longfellow's famous poem, preceded by a recital of "The Gobbler," by Edwin Markham.

This novel form of Sabbath services is in line with the policy adopted by Mr. Fisher in providing entertainment for his parishioners on Sunday evenings, instead of the regulation discourse.

CAT AS A POLICEMAN.

"Puggy" has no Pedigree, but She Knows How to Prevent Burglaries by Rousing Household.

"Puggy" is nothing but a common gray cat, who never possessed such a thing as a pedigree, but her owner, Harry Long of No. 160 West Fifty-first street, probably would not trade her for the best kind of a watch dog or a policeman.

Her reputation was acquired last Friday night, when a burglar began to prowl about the Long premises.

Mr. Long was awakened during the night by the cat coming into his room and mewing in an unusual manner. At first he endeavored to persuade her to go away, but without avail. When her mewing failed to obtain the desired results, the cat sprang upon the bed and began to claw at Mr. Long's hair in gentle but decided fashion.

He then arose and followed her into the adjoining room, just in time to catch a glimpse of a man vanishing from one of the windows. The latter was evidently making an effort to enter the house, but was frightened away when Mr. Long appeared.

CONVENT BENEFIT.

A linen sale for the benefit of the Convent of the Good Shepherd will be held at that institution, on the corner of Pico and Arlington streets, Monday to Wednesday, inclusive, this week. The sale will be in charge of the sisters, who will be assisted by the Ladies of the Good Shepherd Auxiliary. The articles on display will include those of a decorative and useful character, made by the girls of the convent and the sisters.

CEREMONIAL SESSION.

Al Borak Temple, Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan, will hold a ceremonial session at Turnverein Hall on Friday evening, during which a large number of new members will be initiated. In connection with this part of the ceremonial a great programme of entertainment will be offered. Active preparations will begin at once for the meeting of the Imperial Palace in this city in July, bringing delegates from every State in the Union.

Entered at the Postoffice as mail matter of Class II.

AT FIRST HAND.

Princeton has sent one of its heads to Belgium to report on conditions there. While there is no doubt about Belgium's distress, an alert, clear thinker may discover methods that will facilitate the immense task of relief.

A CLEVER MAN.

This Villa of Mexico seems to be organized through agents as well as soldiers. The dispatches say that his agents in Zapata's army have charge of Mexico City. A few intelligent civilians who have taken care of the business deals of his campaign appear to have had as much to do with Villa's success as any other element in his making.

PLANTING THINGS.

In Los Angeles Friday 90,000 school children each planted a rose that will next year bloom in fragrant welcome to the great overflow of guests from everywhere. This was the first civic fall-planting day and the institution is one to perpetuate. In an hour a child may plant a tree that will spread its delightful branches over their children's children at play.

WISDOM.

Imperial Valley is wise to reject a dual telephone system where one is adequate. There are many cases where a single service is not a monopoly but common-sense economy. There is no reason in the plan of supporting two expensive concerns where one is enough. A community can always protect itself in case of abuse, but it need not saddle itself with a double burden in order to do so.

GOOD WORK.

We have neither the words nor the music for it, but it is our disposition to pay a tribute to the Woman's Orchestra of this city. It is the oldest organization of the kind in America, and we do not doubt that it is the best. It is twenty-three years old, but you must not imagine that any of the present members have been playing music that long. Anyway, they are good for the city and it is a joy to hear them.

THE BIG TEST.

Two big men were talking about two other great men and what their relative worth seemed to be to the world. On the face of things the results obtained by each appeared the same, yet both these self-appointed critics felt there was a distinct difference in the big fellows they had on the carpet. "This man," said one of them, "compels my admiration; he makes me think how wonderful he is. The other makes me want to be better; he makes me think how wonderful life is." That should settle the argument. Oh, if we could all make others think more of themselves, if we could make them believe more and more how worth while life is, we would be very great inside of ourselves regardless of how we seemed to be expressed.

HARD TO TELL.

A defeated candidate for the United States Senate in Arizona advises the farmers of the rich and beautiful Salt River Valley that they are under no obligations to pay all that the Tonto Basin project cost, but only the amount of the original estimate. We hear rumors that something of the same feeling exists in the Yuma Valley under the Laguna dam. In both cases the Reclamation Service engineers gave at the outset an approximate of what the initial expense would probably be per acre for placing a given territory under irrigation. In each instance the actual cost to complete the project was greater than the estimate. These achievements are superb. Each reclaims a wonderful valley. Few things in this world are bigger or brighter than the Salt River Valley. The land under the Yuma project is less in area yet glorious in fertility. Whatever the cost of these projects, it is worth it to the land. It has occurred to us that perhaps the government could extend the time from ten to twelve or fifteen years, or even twenty years at so much per year, but we doubt if there is any way by which the land holders can escape full payment in the end.

THE PROBLEM OF REVENUE.

Already there is apprehension in administration circles at Washington that even the extraordinary revenue which the war-tax measure is expected to provide will prove insufficient to cover the deficit in revenues from other sources, especially when, in 1916, sugar goes on the free list under a provision of the Democratic tariff law, and thus the remainder of the revenue from already reduced duties on that commodity disappears.

That there will be a heavy decrease in the revenue from the income tax is already certain because it is known that incomes have been greatly reduced and they are likely to suffer further reduction.

Imports will be diminished for a considerable time, for even the restoration of peace in Europe will leave productive capacity below the normal. That will be good for American producers, but revenue from customs duties will likewise remain far below what is needed. The effect of lower duties will be aggravated by lessened imports.

So the Wilson administration is facing the prospect that it will need to revise the war tax upward or issue bonds or restore higher customs duties within the next two years in order to provide the money required for the maintenance of the government.

MAUDLIN SYMPATHY FOR CRIMINALS.

There are crime worshipers in India, votaries of Siva, stranglers and harlots dedicated to the rites of demonology. But in America women and men who move in good circles come now and again with worshipful sentimentality to drop their tears, extend their bouquets and words of sympathy to felons and sodomites hurled into cells by an outraged law.

And criminal law is nothing more nor less than decency crystallized into statutes. It has the tacit sanction of every respectable person; its merits are self-evident, legal axioms. As the thief must be restrained, so the ravisher must be rendered impotent to injure society, and the sodomite—abnormal or degenerate, whichever it pleases your taste to call him—checked in his abominations.

But the viler the offense, it seems the more copious the tears of some of our snivelers. Love notes for murderers, candy and tokens for burglars and stranglers—"cave men," they are called with accents of admiration—and indignant protestations against the exposure of sodomites.

Away with the justification of such outrages! We know what Havelock Ellis has said of this degeneracy; we know Kraft-Ebing's scholarly investigations and conclusions; we have pondered on Edward Carpenter's classic, erudite inquiries. These men have explained. They have not justified. Homo-sexuality is a fact; so is kleptomania. License is not accorded the thief because he has unfortunately inherited a criminal tendency—why should it be extended to sodomites who enlist and seek to train the young and innocent in these indescribable abominations?

There are those who say Caesar was such a man; others would find consolation in the suspicion that James I also was one of them; the more classical will tell you the crime is justified in Plato's "Phaedrus," and Oscar Wilde has long been glorified on the pedestal of his excesses. Bah!

Lombroso tells us that genius is a sign of degeneracy—and that is a scholarly lie, most gratifying to fools who know more of the shame of genius than of its glories—but none have dared whimper that degeneracy is a sign of genius.

And it is on Lombroso's postulate, inverted, that certain men and women dare speak with a shameless face on behalf of the sodomites whose infamy has disgraced a community. Perhaps our self-respecting ladies and our so-self-respecting gentlemen fancy themselves broad-minded in condoning and seeking to hush up the cases of the Long Beach "social vagrants." Perhaps these ladies and gentlemen, with a mere smattering of knowledge to the effect that homo-sexuality is a tendency, think of themselves as heroic figures in their championship of sodomites. Oscar Wilde has been defended in a hundred books and by ten thousand lips; women have wept over his punishment and certain men—not superior to suspicion themselves—have called him a martyr.

May God damn such vicious sophistry as inculcates the sentiment for foul crimes and fetid abominations! May an indignant and real self-respecting commonwealth rise in anger, if needs be, to silence the justifying sympathy for wretches who acknowledged their iniquities.

These sympathizers, mouthing a mere fragmentary sentence touching on pathology, not only lay bare their ignorance of the deep fundamentals of sexual aberrations, but flaunt their insolence and justification of violence against the laws of man, the laws of Nature, and the laws of God.

It is notorious that rich men, powerful men and men with pulls sometimes escape the consequences of their evil practices and nefarious deeds through the suppression of the news by a servile press. But no matter how rich or influential or insistent a sinner may be, if he has committed an egregious offense against society The Times will not spare him. All concerned will please take notice. And let the heathen rage and the heathen's wealthy relatives gnash their teeth and cry "brutal journalism." Huh!

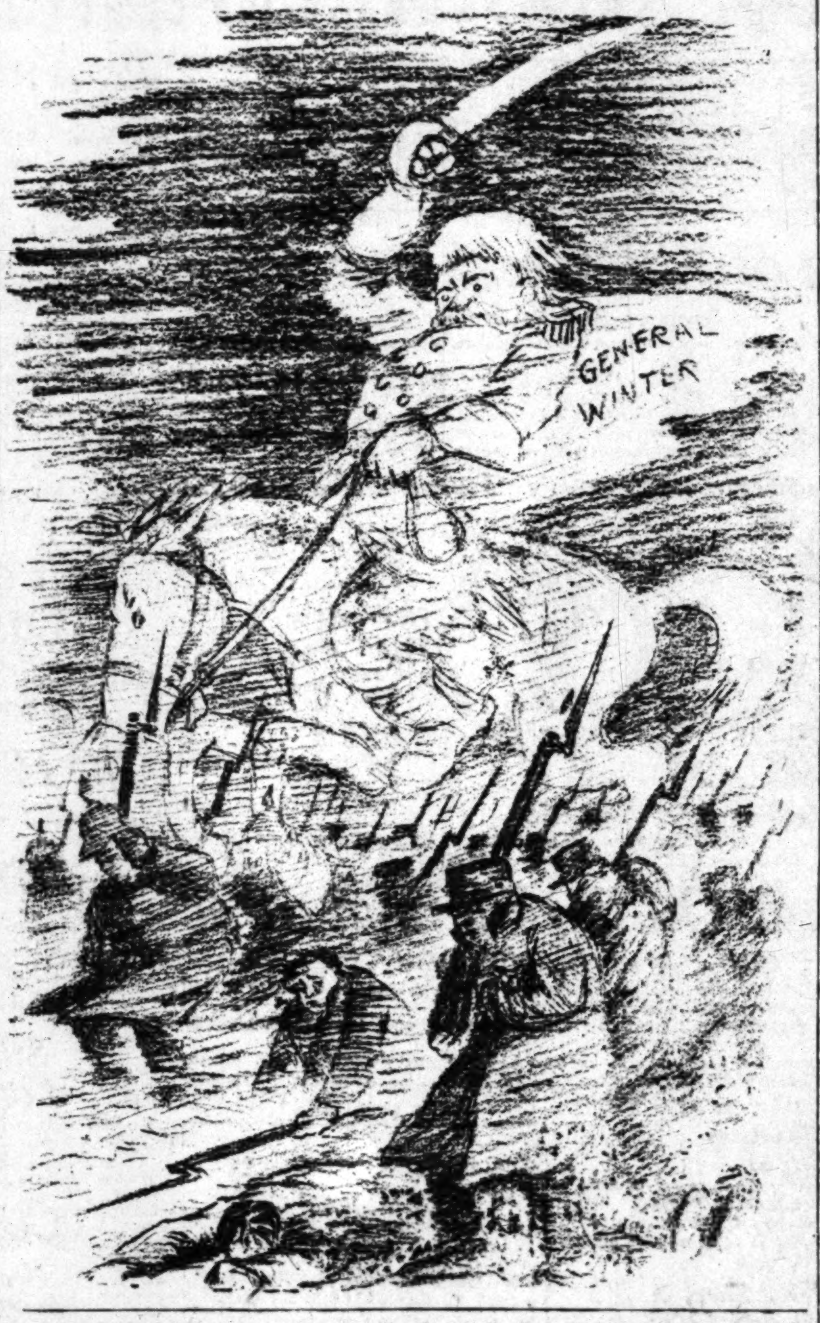
Every enemy of degrading vice from the days of Lot down to those of Editor Stead (who pilloried Oscar Wilde and his princely associates) has been assailed, vilified and abused—but what sincere and manly journalist cares for the assaults of the shameless sympathizers with the most monstrous abomination known to men? Go to it, ye apologists for degeneracy and defenders of infamous lust! If this be "brutal journalism," make the most of it!

FALLING STARS.

On the battlefields of Europe officers and privates are falling every day—perhaps, a few weeks ago, the star of some home. A veritable planet in the military system was that "little red-faced man, Bobs," who died a visitor to his Indian troops on the blood-stained soil of France. His bones rest with those of others of the mighty dead in the magnificent cathedral of St. Paul at the top of Ludgate Hill in London. The same day a German soldier, just a plain fighter in the ranks, fell in the mire near Nieuport. Him "they buried darkly at dead of night, the sods with their bayonets turning." He rests in a rude ditch with hundreds of others, within sound of the moaning English Channel. The hearts of both the great man and the obscure have ceased to beat, but in mourning homes beside the Thames and the Rhine women shed tears and old comrades grieve for general and private alike.

The doors of the silent halls of death are open wide now to many newcomers who have gone to a sweet and lasting repose after the rude shock of battle. Uplifted from the earth by strife, they have paid the final debt nobly. No man can die better than with his face to the foe, giving his life for what he deems to be the true cause of his fatherland. To us in this peace-blessed land it is sickening to contemplate the slaughter and to know that thousands upon thousands are robbed of the glory of performing pure and serious work in the glorious arts of peace. But the soldier, overcome by the passion of patriotism, is willing to die if by so doing he can in any way advance the fortunes of his country.

In Command in Europe.



An eastern poet once unburdened his sad soul of its tragedy by exclaiming: "Last night I heard the plaintive whip-poor-will, and straightway sorrow sent its strongest dart into my heart." Sorrow has aimed at many thousands of hearts these autumnal days, and bullets will continue to sing their death songs till those in whose hands rest the powers of peace and war bid the European struggle to cease. And the darts strike both the heirs to the seats of the mighty and those who come from humble homes. Royalty as well as the cottager feels the wound. Among the slain is Prince Maximilian of Hesse, a nephew of the Kaiser, who carried himself so bravely at the front and fell near Caestre. Another Prince, this one of German descent but who fought for the British, belonged to the noble house of Battenberg. Prince Maurice Victor Donald, who participated with the King's Royal Rifle Corps in the fighting near the coast, died in hospital of wounds received in action a few days after his uncle, Prince Louis of Battenberg, was forced to resign as First Lord of the British Admiralty owing to the pressure of public opinion in England.

The generals have not been spared. Some weeks ago the cables carried a report that Gen. von Tripp was killed in the fierce fighting near Nieuport when the German positions were shelled by the combined French and British squadrons. And only a day or two ago the name of Gen. Stenger, who commanded the Fifty-eighth German Infantry, was included among the slain. Gen. Stenger was the victim of a report, generally believed to have been false, that he issued an order to his command to take no prisoners, but to shoot all, including the wounded, who fell into the hands of his men.

Among the British officers who are numbered among the dead are Maj.-Gen. Hubert Ian Hamilton and Sir Charles Douglas, chief of the Imperial General Staff. Sir Hubert, a member of the Distinguished Service Order, bears on his tomb the noble epitaph: "Killed in Action." Sir Charles Douglas practically died at his post of duty in the British War Office. His death came as a serious blow to his country. He was Kitchener's right hand, possessing both an intimate knowledge of the army and administrative capacity.

German and British alike sacrificed themselves on the altar of patriotism. It is not for us to say, at this stage, which side is right and which is wrong, but at least we may pay a tribute to the brave men of all the armies and to think sweetly of them as among those to whom may be addressed the words: "Soldier, rest, thy warfare o'er, sleep the sleep that knows no waking, dream of battlefields no more."

THE WAR AND THE JEWS.

The belated concessions which Czar Nicholas made to the Hebrews whom he and his forbears have oppressed for half a century has not kindled a desire in their breasts to shoot their Austrian co-religionists, and even in Germany where the Jews are respected and powerful, while they have responded loyally to government appeals for money, Kaiser William has not enrolled many of them in his army.

Not that the Jews will not fight, for the wars of history show that they have been among the bravest and most skillful fighters in the world. In our own country they are intensely patriotic.

The waters of the gulf stream flow through and alongside those of the Atlantic Ocean, but they do not mingle with it. Their indigo blue is so distinctly marked that their line of junction with the common sea water may be distinctly traced.

"This curious phenomenon in the physical world," said the late Senator Vance, "has its counterpart in the moral. There is a lonely river in the midst of the ocean of mankind. The mightiest floods of human temptation have never caused it to overflow, and the fiercest fires of human cruelty, though seven times heated in the furnace of religious bigotry, have never caused it to dry up, although its waves for 2000 years have rolled crimson with the blood of its martyrs. Its fountain is in the gray dawn of the world's history, and its mouth is somewhere in the shadows of eternity. It, too, refuses to mingle with the surrounding waves, and the line which divides its restless billows from the common waters of humanity is also plainly visible to the naked eye. It is the Jewish race."

The curious fact about the Jews is that those who reject their persons and character, accept their religious doctrine, and dogmas. The Jew taught the pure conception of a God which forms the basis of Christianity. The teachings of Moses, and David, and Solomon and Isaiah are the foundations on which the temple of Christianity was reared, and Jesus of Nazareth was the greatest Jew in all the world.

"A people of Semitic race," says another writer, "whose ancestors appear at the very dawn of the history of mankind, on the banks of the Euphrates, the Jordan and the Nile, their fragments are now to be seen in larger or smaller numbers in almost all of the cities of the globe. Though broken as if into atoms, and scattered through all climes, among the rudest and the most civilized nations, they have preserved, through thousands of years, common features and observances, a common religion, literature and sacred language."

Without any political union, without any common head or center the Jews have always regarded and still regard themselves as a nation. They began as nomads emigrating from country to country; their law made them agriculturists for fifteen centuries; their exile transformed them into a mercantile people. They have struggled for their national existence against the Egyptians, Assyrians, Babylonians, Syrians, and Romans; have been conquered and nearly exterminated by each of these powers, and have survived them all. They have been oppressed and persecuted by emperors and sultans and by Popes, Moors and inquisitors; they were proscribed in Catholic Spain, Protestant Norway, and Greek Muscovy, while their persecutors sang the hymns of their psalmody, revered their books, believed in their prophets, and even persecuted them in the name of their God. They have numbered philosophers among the Greeks of Alexandria and the Saracens of Cordova; have transplanted the wisdom of the East beyond the Pyrenees and the Rhine and have been treated as pariahs among pagans, Mohammedans and Christians.

There are today 5,400,000 Jews in Russia, 2,100,000 in Austria-Hungary, and 600,000 in Germany, while there are but 200,000 in Great Britain, 100,000 in France, and 48,000 in Servia and all the Balkan States outside of Roumania.

There are 1,100,000 Jews in the United States, very few of whom are in our prisons or our poorhouses. They are not dynamiters, or boycotters, or picketers. They do not strike. They do not patronize the soup kitchens, or stand in the bread lines, or enlist in Coxey's army or camp in the Los Angeles River bed, or furnish audiences for soap-box orators.

The expected raid of the Zeppelins over London has been postponed by reason of the war.

SCIENCE PROGRESS.

Mending Bones with Rugs.

[New York American:] Catgut woven in the form of a little rug with long fringed ends is the newest method for holding the ends of a fractured bone in place until they have had time to knit together.

The rug is woven on a hand loom, the gut first being wet so it can be woven more closely. It is made just a little shorter than the circumference of the bone and the fringed ends are used to tie it around the injured member just as you would a splint.

Experiments with these catgut rugs on a number of dogs have shown them to be superior to any other kind of splints in the treatment of fractures. When the fracture is mended the catgut is not removed, but is allowed to remain and become absorbed by the flesh. In a number of cases the absorption was so complete that by the end of three weeks not a trace of the splint could be seen.

In applying the catgut rug to a broken bone the rug is of course first carefully sterilized. Then the bone ends are exposed, the muscles gently separated from them and the rug introduced around the bone. Great care has to be taken in doing this not to injure or displace the bone's delicate membrane.

When the surgeon is sure that the line of fracture is at the exact center of the rug he begins tying the two opposite free ends of each of the longitudinal strands of catgut. Should it seem desirable to make the splint still stronger the ends remaining are quite long enough to wind and to tie again before cutting off.

As soon as the rug is in place the limb is put in a plaster cast and kept there for three or four weeks.

A Wireless Wonder.

[Evening Wisconsin:] Prof. Domenico Argentieri, the Italian priest whose recent claim of having invented a small portable wireless telegraphy apparatus capable of receiving messages from high-power stations at even a distance of 1250 miles raised a storm of controversy in Italy, has triumphantly demonstrated the genuineness of his invention.

At the British embassy in Rome, in the presence of a large gathering of public men and scientific experts, including Sir Rennell Rodd, he gave a series of astonishing experiments without bobbins, receiving poles or the other stock in trade connected with radio-telegraphy. A simple switch attached by an ordinary domestic electrocord to his pocket apparatus was what he used for interrupting wireless communications transmitted by the London Foreign Office. He also picked up others from Paris and from war vessels out at sea. Some of the messages were in cipher and their accuracy has been rigidly verified.

French, Russian and Japanese military and naval attaches also witnessed the experiments.

The Earth's Great Age.

[Science:] In order to estimate the age of the earth different phenomena may be used. First, the separation of the moon; secondly, the solidification of the earth's crust, then the condensation of the aqueous vapor and the formation of oceans. The quantity of salt dissolved in these oceans and the thickness of the geological layers, especially those of a calcareous nature, afford further arguments.

According to George Darwin, the moon was separated from our globe about 56,000,000 years ago. The age of the solid crust has been calculated by Lord Kelvin from the increase of the temperature in deep mines. In some regions the temperature is seen to increase about one degree for every fifty meters; in others, however, one degree for 100 meters. On the average the considerations of Lord Kelvin gave an age of 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 years in the solid crust of the earth.

The quantity of salt obviously increases in the oceans on account of the salt added by the rivers and of the evaporation of the water. The total quantity of this salt has been calculated and the quantities of the yearly supply of water are known for all the larger streams, as well as their percentage of salt. From this data we may calculate the annual increase of salt in the oceans and find how many years would be required for our present rivers to accumulate all the salt now found in the seas. According to Joly, about 90,000,000 years would be necessary. But obviously the rivers must exhaust the grounds which they drain, and formerly these must therefore have been much richer in salts. This consideration must lead us to diminish the number of years required in a very sensible manner.

The age of the geological strata has been deduced from their thickness and the velocity of the process of sedimentation. Sollas estimates the total thickness of about eighty kilometers and the average rate of deposition of the layers at thirty centimeters per century. From these numbers we may find an age of 20,000,000 years for the collective deposition of all its geological layers. Calcareous rocks have been built by organisms and mainly by corals and molluscs. These have made use of the lime added to the sea by the rivers. Dubois has calculated on the one hand the whole thicknesses of these rocks and on the other the yearly supply of lime from the rivers. He concludes that 36,000,000 or 45,000,000 years would be required to produce the whole of this system.

Adhesion of Locomotive Wheels.

[London Tit-Bits:] Attempts to overcome the slipping difficulty experienced with locomotives in damp weather have been recently made in France by directing water and steam on to the rails. Sand, it has been shown, generally shortens the life of the rails. By using water or steam jets the rails are cleaned. A mere wetting of the rails is shown to be useless. If, however, water is applied under pressure, and the rails thoroughly cleaned, increased adhesion is secured. Special fittings are suggested for the purpose of using either live or exhaust steam for feeding the water. The fittings should be carried by the axle of the wheels, and not by the framing of the engine.

The death of Prof. Samuel A. King, the pioneer airman, is announced, at the age of 86 years. He made successful flights as early as 1851, and in that day a balloon was a fearful and wonderful thing. For more than fifty years King traveled in balloons and he never was injured, although he had many narrow escapes. He was a feature of the Philadelphia Exposition in 1876.

Ohio is again at the front with a list of Presidential talent for the inspection of the country, including ex-Ambassador Herrick, Senator Burton, Gov.-elect Willis and Senator-elect W. G. Harding. And a number of the back townships have not yet been heard from.

Last Call.

BELGIAN RELIEF WORK NEAR END.

BUT THREE DAYS REMAIN BEFORE CAMINO WILL SAIL.

Total Contributions of Southern California up to Last Night Slightly in Excess of Eight Hundred Tons. Hope to Increase to One Thousand Tons.

With less than three days left to gather foodstuffs before the Belgian relief ship sails from Los Angeles Harbor for Rotterdam, the Chamber of Commerce committeemen yesterday prosecuted a rapid-fire campaign, drawing in all of the loose ends of donations from Southern California. As a result, eighty-nine separate consignments of supplies were started on their way to the wharf, where workmen are busy sorting and packing the variegated tonnage containing everything eatable from a tin of sardines to a sack of wheat.

Counting the cash contributions as turned into staple foods at wholesale cost price here in Los Angeles, Chairman Story of the Relief Committee and Secretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce last night figured that the total tonnage on hand was slightly in excess of 800 tons. It is confidently expected that, with hundreds of expected contributors to hear from before the ship sails Wednesday, the ultimate share of Southern California in the cargo will be over 1000 tons. The San Francisco committee is now loading its 3500 tons, and 1500 tons was the original allotment asked of the Southland.

Yesterday's cash contributions received at the Chamber of Commerce totalled $742.75, bringing the grand total of money received to buy food for the Belgians up to date $13,650, with signed pledges for several hundred dollars still not paid in. This is the cash donations only, the receipts of provisions amounting to some 200 tons. All outside cities and counties participating have expended their cash subscriptions for foodstuffs at home, and some of these outside contributions are exceeding original estimates.

San Diego, for instance, yesterday wired that it had shipped direct to Los Angeles Harbor forty tons of provisions gathered by the Union Relief Fund, headed by former Secretary of the Treasury Gage, whereas the original estimate for the southern bay county was only thirty tons.

MOVIE GIRLS HELP.

Barney Oldfield and two motion-picture leading ladies, Miss Irene Hunt of the Reliance company and Miss Marian Townsend of the Majestic forces, made a spectacular campaign yesterday through the downtown district, selling oranges donated by Chairman Story for the benefit of the food fund. The oranges were sold off rapidly at all sorts of prices, from 10 cents to $2 each, and some busy citizens tossed silver into the girls' satchels and refused either change or fruit. The "Orange Day" campaign was the idea of Mrs. Florence Canfield Whitney, chairman of the Woman's Auxiliary, who enlisted Barney Oldfield's services and managed the successful affair throughout.

MUST COME FAST.

If the relief ship Camino sails on schedule time Wednesday with a full cargo, the remaining contributions must be sent to the Chamber of Commerce rapidly tomorrow and on Tuesday. The bulk of the tonnage already is on the move, but all efforts are to be bent upon rallying the last possible pound of food.

Yesterday's cash donations, totalling $742.75, included, among others, the following: Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, collection, $144.12; officers and employees of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, $96.90, and Life Underwriters' Association of Southern California, $70.

Notice was received yesterday that the subscription list of the Westlake School for Girls had collected $65. Residents at the Bryson apartments, through the great activity of Manager F. S. Wise, yesterday sent to the Chamber of Commerce a drayload containing a ton and a half of fine provisions. Students of kindergartning at the State Normal School have decided to eliminate refreshments from their entertainments and by this self-denial gaing a monthly donation for life-saving in Belgium. Mrs. Emma F. Harmon, an octogenarian, yesterday brought to the Chamber of Commerce six volumes of her own verse, each with home-fashioned book marks and Scriptural quotations, for shipment with the food cargo.

Children have shown intense interest in the relief work for tne little ones and the women in Belgium. Miss Dorothy Roberts and her sister of Rivera yesterday sent a $1 bill to the fund, "to help two of the poor Belgian children." Pastors of many leading churches today will voice the "last call" for sending supplies to the Chamber of Commerce for the cargo of the relief ship, which will sail for Rotterdam on Wednesday.

THEIR VISIT SHORT.

Two Men Here but Fifteen Minutes when Arrested as Bunco Operators and Forced to Leave.

Arrested on suspicion of being bunco operators, Fred Smith and Fred Wilson were given suspended sentences in Police Court yesterday morning and ordered to leave the city. They had been in town only fifteen minutes when taken in charge by Detectives Carroll and Boyd, and were on their way to some other point in less than two hours.

The police records show that the young men were arrested in San Francisco and San Diego not long ago for being confidence men. If they return to Los Angeles they must serve sentences of 180 days in jail.

HOME CHARITY HARD PROBLEM.

NO MONEY TO TAKE CARE OF NEEDY, SAYS WHIFFEN.

Council Faces Alternative of Either Doing Away with Proposed Extra Police or Suspending Humanitarian Work for Month—Seek Ways of Keeping Men Employed.

Shall we appropriate money for extra police to suppress crime or give money to the poor and suppress hunger?

This is the essence of the problem, which stares the City Council in the face, as it has stared the Council in the face for the last three winters and probably many more. Dr. Milbank Johnson of the Municipal Charities Commission, called the Council's attention to the fact that there is no December appropriation for charity and that unless the Council makes provision about 800 families regularly cared for will have to go without.

He laid stress upon the fact that there seems to be enough money here for the unfortunate of Europe, but not enough for the home folks.

"If there is no money forthcoming," said Dr. Johnson, "it means the closing of the Humane Society for Children, the dispensing with social work at other institutions, for on next Wednesday the Municipal Charities ceases, as no funds are provided. United charities work does not begin until after the first of the year."

The Budget Committee was criticised for not looking ahead to this inevitable condition, but that did not help, because criticism produced no money.

The Finance Committee will meet with the Supervisors Monday to go over the situation and see if there isn't some way that relief may be afforded during December.

It will take about $3000 to carry on the charity work ordinarily done by the commission during December.

President Whiffen announced that he believed that the conference with the Supervisors will produce a fund that will take care of the situation. As chairman of the Public Safety Committee, Councilman Snowden said he would rather recommend no new policemen than to have the suffering continue without relief during one month.

President Whiffen said that one way to provide work for the unemployed will be speedily reached when the city and Supervisors get together to rush the work on the proposed motor-truck highway from the city limits to the harbor. He believes that a way can be found for the use of the outer harbor bond money to be used for the harbor end of the highway.

TO KEEP 'EM OFF OF THE MORMON ISLAND.

The Harbor Commission yesterday approved a resolution of President Woodman that will have the effect of preventing the Southern Pacific from entering upon Mormon Island at the harbor with any of its tracks.

Information had come to the commission that the Southern Pacific was preparing to extend its tracks over the tideland, known as location No. 152, and apropriating the island to private use.

"The city has for years been contesting this title," said President Woodman yesterday.

"Two years ago an expert was employed to draw plans for the improvement of said tideland location No. 152, in a general scheme for the improvement of the inner harbor. The city, by ordinance No. 27,118, approved March 14, 1913, dedicated these tidelands to public use, and described the purposes to which they were to be put. The Supreme Court has decided that this tideland location is held by the claimants subject to the city's right of usage, for the purposes of commerce, fisheries and navigation. These rights should be protected to the very fullest extent that lies in the power of the city, and any act conflicting with the city's declared purpose may seriously interfere with the city's right of usage.

"This is a matter that ought to be most seriously considered in all its different phases, and I suggest that the City Attorney be requested to immediately take such steps as may be necessary to protect the city, and not to permit encroachments upon these tidelands until when that interest is protected."

Turn in Aqueduct Water.

Residents of the south and west portions of Los Angeles will be glad to know that aqueduct water was turned back into the mains yesterday, after two months of use of the river water, which is much harder than the water from Owens River. Chief Engineer Mulholland said yesterday that it was necessary to turn out the aqueduct water two months ago for the purpose of leaching out the Franklin Canyon reservoir.

THIRTY DAYS FOR "CARUSO."

He is Colored and is Convicted of Being a Peeping Tom—"Just Too Much Curiosity."

"Prof." C. A. Heath, known as the "Colored Caruso," who was arrested Thursday night on a charge of peeping through the windows of the home of Mrs. Ida H. O'Neill at No. 1037 Crocker street was sentenced by Police Judge White yesterday to serve thirty days in the City Jail. He was captured by two women who caught him sneaking up to the window of a bedroom in which Mrs. O'Neill was preparing to retire.

Heath came to Los Angeles at the opening of the recent prohibition campaign, being employed by the "dry" federation. When arrested Heath said he was on the way home from the Wesley Methodist Church, where he had been leading a song service and upon seeing Mrs. O'Neill disrobing could not resist the temptation to get a closer view.

RIVER WATER. SUIT IS DELAYED.

The suits of Edgar M. Frost and George A. Hart against the city of Los Angeles to enjoin the city from bringing Owens River water into Los Angeles on the ground of its alleged impurities, will not be tried on Tuesday in Judge Works's court. Attorneys I. Ingle Carpenter and W. B. Mathews, representing the plaintiffs and the city respectively, appeared before the court yesterday and agreed to have the case continued each morning thereafter until Mr. Carpenter is free from the Boland-Tufts case now being tried before a jury in Judge McCormick's court.

GRISLY SECRET TOLD AT LAST.

whole nation was shocked about years ago when the disclosure made that several ambitious and medical students of Cincinnati stolen the body of Scott Harrison, of President William Henry Harrison and father of President Ben- Harrison, from the family ground at North Bend, Ind. A of the students and members faculty of the medical college arrested and an extended investigation was conducted, but the inside of the incident were not told until yesterday, when they were given in Angeles.

Pinckney French, a distinguished surgeon of the Middle West, came to Los Angeles two years from St. Louis, says he knows about the famous Cincinnati incident which resulted in Ohio and most other States in the Union passing laws which give medical colleges privilege of using the unclaimed of paupers for scientific purposes.

French was a student at the al college in Cincinnati at the of the exciting disclosure. He was not far from the cemetery the body was stolen from the of the distinguished man.

dramatic feature of the case was fact that Scott Harrison, Jr., aft- postmaster in Kansas City, ally discovered the body of his in the dissecting room of the . He had gone there as a member of a committee to investigate the of another body from the same .

"This happened more than forty ago, when I and all of the other connected with the case were and could not be expected to be ," Dr. French said yesterday in offices in the Exchange building. there is an extenuating element is the difficulty which medical had in those day in obtaining bodies for scientific purposes."

story of Edward Evans, a popular man, who died from the result of an accident and was buried in Harrison Cemetery, is closely related to the Harrison incident. It was persistent search of friends for remains of the dashing young man resulted in the startling discovery by Scott Harrison, Jr.

Immediately after Mr. Evans ap- in the rural community of ceberg, twenty miles from Cincinnati he became popular with the people of the neighborhood by of his good looks, pleasing and accomplished dancing.

When Mr. Evans struck a stump mowing machine and was thrown in front of the cycle and had severely lacerated, the young people of the district vied with each other in giving him attention. Blood developed and the young was sent to the city hospital in , where he died.

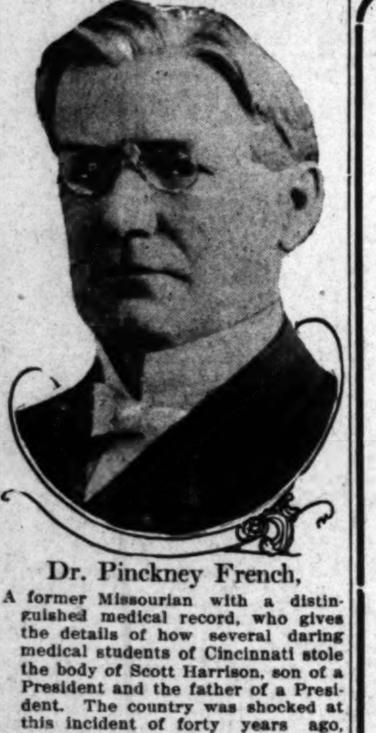
Then one night the college went across a vacant lot to the shed of an apple commission merchant and obtained an empty barrel. The body was placed in the barrel, sealed up and taken back and placed with filled apple barrels and was shipped out of the city.



Dr. Pinckney French,

A former Missourian with a distinguished medical record, who gives the details of how several daring medical students of Cincinnati stole the body of Scott Harrison, son of a President and the father of a President. The country was shocked at this incident of forty years ago, which is now cleared of mystery for the first time.

"Two circumstances led to the theory that the college had disposed of the body in the manner in which it did. A negro girl reported that she saw someone carry a barrel across the vacant lot to the college at night. A policeman, passing the college saw a barrel skid leaning against the side of the door. The incidents were put together by the police and resulted in the belief that a subterfuge had been used to dispose of the body. The commission merchant tried to trace the barrel with the body, but failed. Late in the winter somebody in Michigan opened a barrel which he had bought for apples and made a very startling discovery.

RESULTS IMPORTANT.

"As unfortunate as was the Harrison incident and as disagreeable as it was to all parties concerned, it is interesting from a historical point of view for the reason that it resulted in laws in every State in the Union making it easy for medical colleges to obtain bodies for scientific purposes without the necessity of resorting to desperate means."

Dr. French was one of the leading surgeons of St. Louis for twenty years. He was a member of the faculty of the Missouri State University for nine years and lecturer in the University of Illinois for two years. He was one of the organizers and a member of the first faculty of the Marion-Sims College of Medicine in St. Louis, which developed into the present St. Louis University.

The Board of Health Law, which has been in force in Missouri since 1884, was framed by a committee of which Dr. French was a member. He was surgeon for several of the railroads of the Middle West. He went abroad in 1885 and became associated with eminent foreign surgeons. Shortly after his arrival in Los Angeles he was elected president of the local Missouri State Society.

Several Hundred Dollars in Auto Supplies Are Stolen—Residence Is Also Entered.

Automobile supplies valued at $650 were stolen from the store of Harry Kreiter at No. 5820 South Main street early yesterday morning. When Mr. Kreiter arrived shortly after daybreak to open his store he discovered that burglars had been there before him. He reported the matter to the police.

Burglars also entered the home of Richard L. Winkle at No. 4838 Elmwood avenue some time during the night and ransacked the house. They stole a gold watch and $2.

Home Recipe For The Liquor Habit

Well Known Physician Who Has Treated Thousands of Cases Gives Out Simple Home Recipe to Be Given Secretly.

A well-known physician, located in the Middle West, who has treated thousands of cases of liquor habit, in a recent interview, made the following statement: "The cost of the drugs used to treat the liquor habit in the high-priced sanatoriums is very little. Here is a simple, inexpensive prescription that can be given secretly in coffee, milk, water or in the food, as it has no taste, color or smell: To 3 oz. of water add 20 grains of muriate of ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grains of pepsin. Put into coffee or food a teaspoonful three times a day. This prescription is perfectly harmless, can be filled at any drug store, and will be found very effective in the treatment of the liquor habit."

DOES YOUR HAIR SHOW YOUR AGE?

Of course white hair and gray always suggest age, but often faded, dull and brittle locks make us think even young people are old, while a lustrous, heavy head of hair is naturally associated with youthfulness and forces us to credit its owner with being young. Perfectly healthy hair is always beautifying and is very easily acquired if proper care is given to the hair and scalp. In washing the hair it is not advisable to use a makeshift, but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.—[Advertisement.

SAFETY FIRST AND SCHOOLS.

Railroad Official Tells of the Gory Toll.

Over Thousand Children are Killed Yearly.

Sad Tale of Harvest Reaped on the Tracks.

Speaking before school children of the Imperial Valley last week as a part of the Southern Pacific's campaign to carry the "safety first" propaganda to the people, Supt. Whalen of the Los Angeles division asserted that the children killed in trespass accidents on American railroads in twenty years would furnish mile posts for a trip around the world.

"There have been 25,000 persons under 18 years of age killed," he said, "while no one can calculate the number who have been crippled for life."

Mr. Whalen's talk, in part, follows:

"In connection with awarding the Harriman memorial medal to the Southern Pacific company for safety, I will state that this company's record of achievements and efforts involving safety, industrial hygiene and other correlative conditions during the fiscal year, 1913, showed that on the Pacific system, 1,373,815,327 passengers were carried a distance of one mile without the loss of a single passenger from train accident, and continuing the Pacific system's record for safety in continuity from the year 1908, involving movement of 8,000,000,000 revenue passengers a distance of one mile without one passenger fatality as a result of train accident.

SAFETY ITEMS.

"To obtain the end desired, the employees of the different divisions of the system have formed themselves into working organizations known as Safety Committees. Our slogan is "Safety First." We meet once a month on each division, at which time we consider the different accidents that occur during the month, studying their causes. We also consider suggestions made by the various employees. To put these suggestions into effect, our company has spent for the year ending June 30, 1914, $42,000, with pending expenditures of $85,000. Among these improvements, the result of one of the suggestions, this company constructed a subway at Los Angeles shops, costing $7000, that employees might go to and from their work under our tracks, rather than crossing over them, experiencing danger from passing trains. In addition in the line of safety, this company has spent $156,000 per year for special officers assisting in controlling the trespassing feature; $150,000 eliminating grade crossings; $44,000 pretectnig 112 additional crossings with alarm devices; $230,000 providing crossing protection; $17,000 installing forty wigwag signals, all of which, taken with the money expended carrying out safety suggestions, amounts to $724,000.

"This is not all, as our signal construction and reconstruction past year amounted to $246,400, maintenance and operation, $417,200, or total investment in block signals of $3,485,000. Eleven additional interlocking plants installed past year at cost of $160,000. Our fire-protecting equipment is valued at $510,000, and report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for January 1, 1914, shows that the Southern Pacific excelled all other lines in the United States in miles of road protected by automatic block system employing electric track circuits.

"Forty-one per cent. of all passenger cars owned are all-steel construction, balance being underframe and wooden. Nothing but steel cars have been ordered since 1906. Thirteen per cent. of all freight cars are all-steel and 53 per cent. have steel underframe. During past year 1224 shop machines and tools were furnished with protecting guards and devices; or a total of 1906 in two years.

THE REAPING.

"That there is need for such movement as I am asking you to participate and, in fact, help us in, I would cite you to the fact (here I would state these figures were taken from report of Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord at the first Co-operative Safety Congress, held in Milwaukee in October, 1912, he going back for a period of twenty years.) In that time there have been 86,733 trespassers killed; there had been 94,646 injured, making a total of 181,379 trespassers killed and injured on the railroads of the United States. Analyzing this total number, it shows there were 25,000 young people under 18 years of age, residing in the vicinity of accident, many of them under 10 years of age, 36,276 tramps and hobos, and 120,103 citizens of the locality in which accidents occurred, mostly wage-earners.

"When we stop to think that in twenty years there were 25,000 young people killed and injured on our railroads—enough to make a milepost for every mile of travel in a trip around the world, and that in nearly every city, town and village there is some child without an arm or a leg lost trespassing on the railroad, or a little grave in the cemetery of some child (perhaps an only child) killed flipping on the cars, and that during the last two years of the twenty-year period referred to fourteen trespassers were killed and fourteen injured daily, and that 145,103 were not tramps but young people and children and respectable citizens—mostly wage-earners of the vicinity in which the accident occurred, fourteen times as many trespassers killed every day and every year as there are passengers killed, I believe that you will see the need of such a movement as that launched under the name of 'Safety First.'"

STORE'S ANNUAL OPENING.

Social Hours Will be Observed at Feagans & Co.'s Tomorrow—Music and Souvenirs.

Tomorrow afternoon, from 2 o'clock until 5, Feagans & Co. will celebrate its annual opening in its handsome store in the Alexandria building.

During these hours no sales will be made, but a social affair will characterize the occasion and the time will be devoted to inspection of the handsome articles gathered from world markets for this event. There will be music, flowers and a pretty souvenir for each guest. The De Nubila Orchestra, under the personal direction of Pasquale de Nubila, will discourse during the afternoon and the lovely wares displayed will attract interested attention.

A feature of the interior decorations will be a formal dinner table under the direction of M. C. B. Nagel, the new maitre d'hotel of the Alexandria. With the many fine wares of the Feagans establishment to draw from, it is assured that this table alone will well repay one for a visit.

Among the novelties which will be shown are the "mate ring" for men and women, a new gift thought shown for the first time by this house. This is a stone, seal or signet ring—made in pairs to match, the one for the lady being an exact miniature reproduction of the one made for the gentleman. Some real blue gem diamonds are shown, others in canary color and still others in odd-shaped cuttings, diamond-shaped—or navette shape, as the French would say—pear-shaped and square diamonds.

Unusual articles in household silver will also be exhibited and many unique objects in bronze and other metal wares, with the never-failing artistic touch which makes such things desirable.

NATHAN NEWBY'S MAN.

United States Commissioner Williams yesterday ordered Grant Lincoln returned to Phoenix for trial on a charge involving alleged fraud on a land entry and patent. Lincoln is under indictment. Before his arrest on telegraphic advices from Phoenix, Lincoln was in charge of the political headquarters of Nathan Newby, who was a Democratic candidate for Congress.

HOUSE-MOVER'S TROUBLE.

Isaac A. McCrary, a house-mover of Long Beach, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday, giving his liabilities at $8871.80 and his assets $5543.50, of which $4500 is real estate.

the Southland—the grand prize in the motion-picture contest, the cosmopolitanism of Los Angeles, the varied scenery of the Southland also weighed heavily in our favor. Here we have skyscrapers for any sort of city scenes; we have a Chinatown from which to draw Oriental pictures; the canals of Venice for a touch of Holland; the seashore sands of Playa del Rey to furnish verisimilitude for desert pictures of a circumspect kind, or Death Valley if you want a real Sahara setting; waste and shore, lusk fruitfulness in the Imperial Valley, sterile wastes, everything.

For Alaska setting, Bear Valley, Mt. Lowe or Old Baldy furnish snow and enough. If you wish to take your company down to the sea in ships, there is the harbor at hand. Canyons, mountains, sylvan dells, stately homes, parked estates, stretches of waste, and even floods it has in plenty. It regard to this last a real Mississippi flood yarn was filmed in last winter by a certain company near Clearwater. Everything it has but slums and first-rate rivers, and the lack of these is not felt, for it is possible to shape up the first by knocking together a few "sets," and to make the latter sometimes in winter.

AROUND WORLD AT HOME.

In fact, you can go around the world in the Southland. One company for instance has a series that carries a well-known film idol around the world as a soldier of fortune, to the Orient, to Egypt, Capri, Monte Carlo, Paris, London and even to the frozen North, and except for the last picture all the atmosphere needed will be obtained with boards and canvas, deftly shaped by artists in the woodworking and paint-slinging line.

Going back to the history of the business, it is pertinent that California produced the first moving pictures. They were made on the estate of Leland Stanford at Palo Alto by one Edward Muybridge in 1872, with the famed race horse Occidental, once a butcher's hack, as actor. So the story runs, James R. Keene, the famous turf man, and Senator Stanford, both lovers of horses, had an argument. Stanford said that there was a time when a horse in the course of a race literally flew, that all its feet were off the ground at one time. Keene could not see it.

Muybridge, a San Francisco photographer, was called into consultation. He solved the riddle by rigging up a battery of twenty-four cameras in a studio on the race track, each equipped with a silken cord stretched across the course and which the horse broke as he breasted it. Thus were the first animated pictures obtained. Incidentally, Stanford was right. From this beginning the art went on developing, largely in France and England, until the present day.

EARLY BEGINNING.

In saying the first animated pictures were taken, a half-truth is spoken, for animated pictures are of hoary antiquity. By pasting or drawing a series of related action pictures on a cylinder and revolving the same rapidly, while a spectator looks on through two pin holes in a screen, the Middle Ages evolved what they knew as the wheel-of-life, a show wherein jerky actors went through various motions.

On the other hand the motion picture is a direct descendant of the pantomime, which for ages has been recognized as a legitimate type of drama. It is the pantomime molded into electric life, the human machine made articulate in pictures. Moreover, it is photography, a mechanical process, made capable of telling a story, into which are woven elusive effects of light and shadow of a subtility that the major art of painting cannot approach.

What will be the future artistic development of the motion picture is a puzzling question. That the art is broadening its scope is certain, the pictures at the first-class houses show this. That the background is coming to be more effectively used is also apparent, especially those out-of-door backgrounds that have made Southern California, via the motion-picture camera, the most advertised portion of the globe. Perhaps, as some think, the background in the pictures will come to be used to reflect the march of a life story, much as Thomas Hardy humanized Edgon Heath in "The Return of the Native," made it a screen reflecting the soul-fluctuations of Eustacia, the passionate. That the motion picture has come to stay as an amusement, an educational, a scientific force, is so certain that to argue the contrary would be childish.

PLANS APARTMENTS.

Los Angeles Man Buys South Pasadena Corner as Site for Income Improvement—Other Projects.

SOUTH PASADENA, Nov. 28.—Howard Stride of Los Angeles has purchased a lot at the corner of Bank street and Fremont avenue in this city and will begin immediately the construction of a large apartment-house. The property was owned by Jonathan S. Dodge. The consideration is not named.

Plans for the building projected by Mr. Stride are now being drawn. The structure will be two stories in height and will contain six four-room apartments. The estimated cost is $10,000.

The eighteen-room bungalow being erected on one of the terraces of the Los Terrados Hotel grounds just above the present building and overlooking the San Gabriel Valley, is being pushed to completion in order that it may be ready for the winter's guests. Another attractive addition to the same grounds is a huge electric sign bearing the name of the hotel.

A. C. Ong will commence construction on an up-to-date laundry on the southwest corner of Hope and Fair Oaks avenue in the near future. The building will be a red brick structure of one story, the facing to be of enamel brick. The interior fittings will be of white enamel.

W. C. McNeil has completed a four-apartment bungalow on Primrose avenue.

WILL OPEN BIDS.

The Board of Public Works will open bids tomorrow for the asphalt paving on Vernon avenue from Figueroa street to the westerly city limits. The asphalting of Vernon avenue, together with the paving of Santa Barbara avenue, on which work is now being done, and the paving of Western avenue, will constitute only a part of the fifteen miles of asphalt paving projected in the southwestern section of the city.

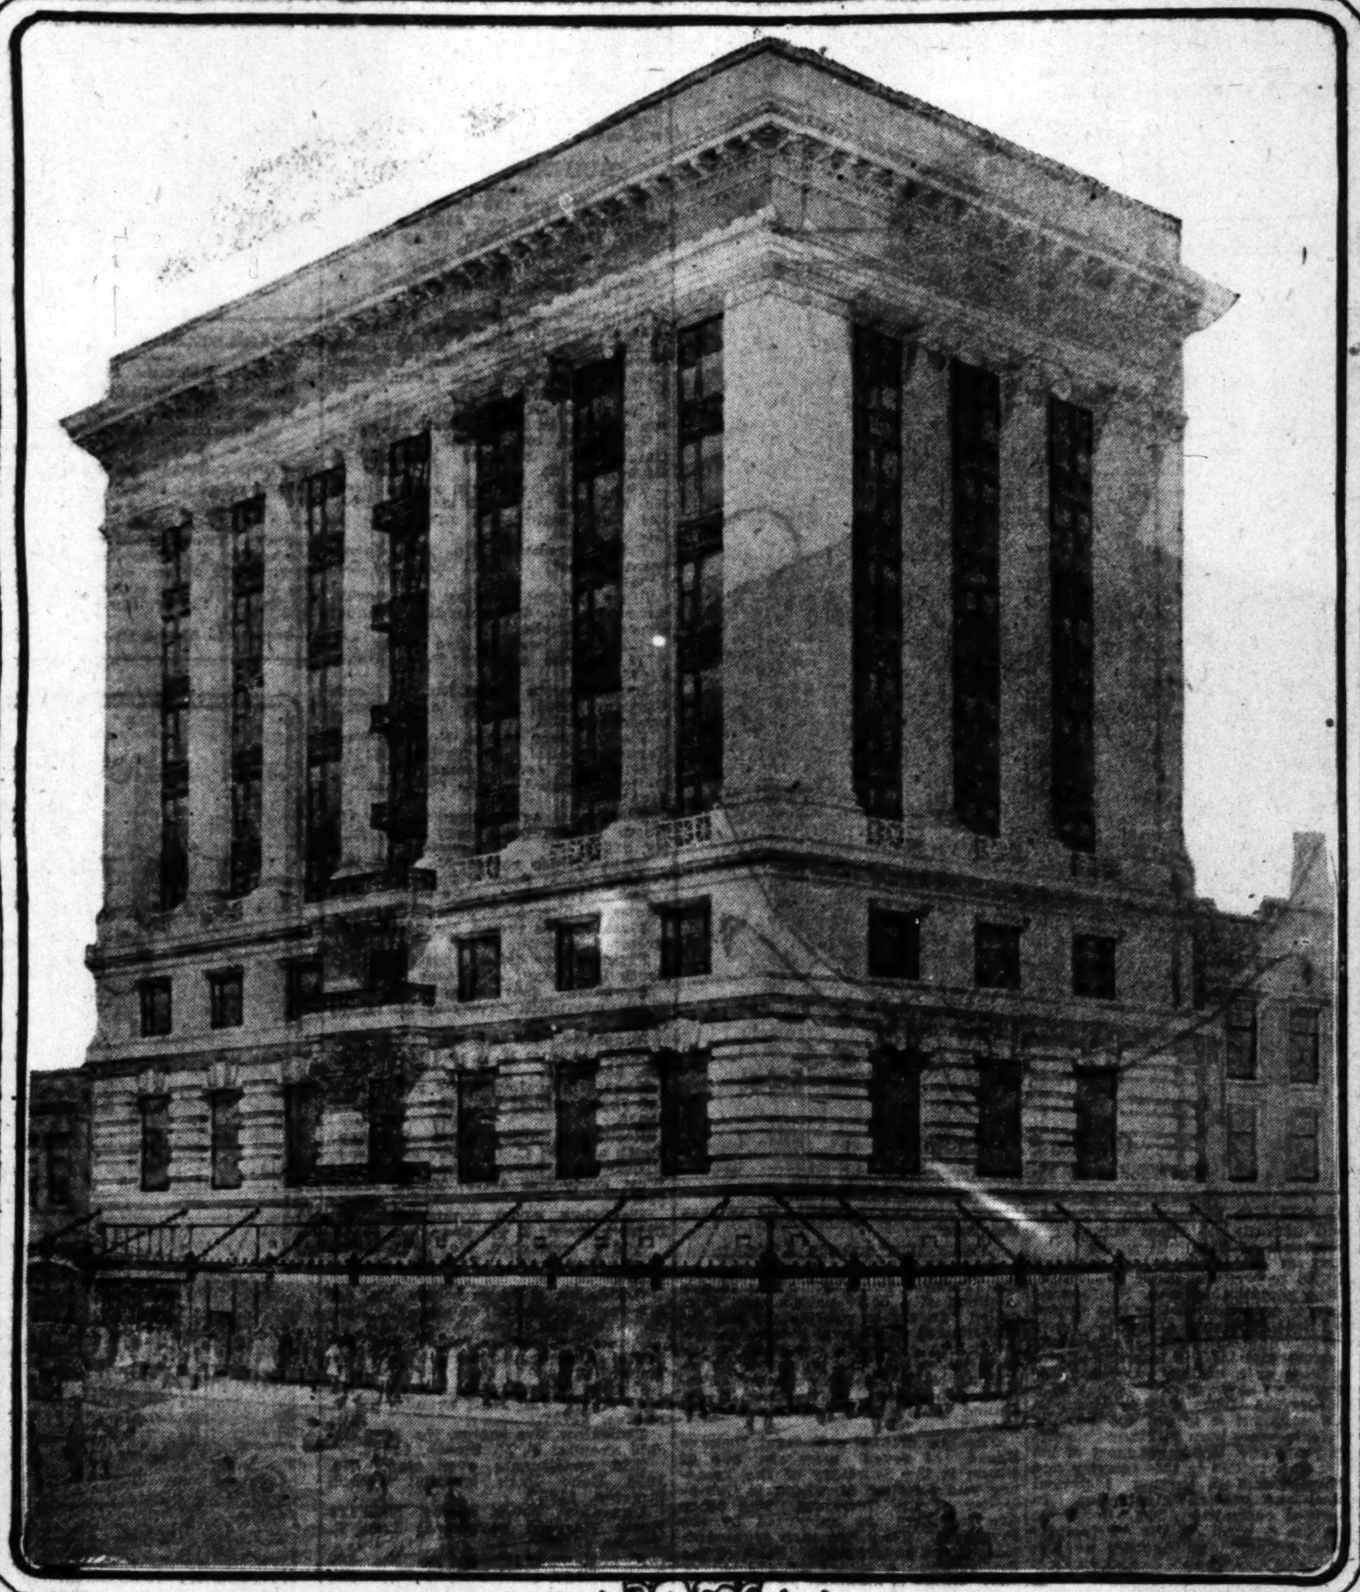
Accepted Design for Magnificent New Broadway Block.



Architects' perspective of Hulett C. Merritt building.

The sketch shows the stately classic building now being erected at the northwest corner of Eighth street and Broadway as it will appear when completed. The Pasadena capitalist expected at first to build a seven-story structure and had had plans prepared by Reid brothers of San Francisco for a block of this height. He changed his mind after the excavations had been dug and ordered that the designs be revised to include ten stories. The necessary changes in the street elevations have enhanced rather than impaired the architectural quality of the building, which will be one of the most beautiful and imposing office structures ever erected in the West.

TRADES NAVEL GROVE.

Redlands Man Exchanges Citrus Property for Los Angeles Bungalow. Costly Bank Building Finished.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 28.—Lewis Keep of this city has transferred his ten-acre navel orange grove on Buckeye street to Charles H. Hill of Los Angeles for a given consideration of $8000. The grove is one that Mr. Keep planted about a year ago, and the trees are now in fine shape. The ranch is improved with a six-room bungalow.

Mr. Keep took in exchange a bungalow on West Fifty-first street in Los Angeles, valued at $4000, the balance of the consideration being otherwise arranged. Mr. Hill is a brother of Fred Hill, manager of the I. L. Lyons & Sons packinghouse, and will be in the fruit business here.

The finishing touches on the new $100,000 home of the First National Bank were made today, when the old tile floor was replaced by a new one. Two bronze tablets, one facing Orange street and the other State street, were put in position. The storeroom next to the bank, until recently used as temporary quarters, has been leased to a confectioner.

Whittier Resident Exchanges Residence Property and Lots for Colorado Alfalfa Ranch.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Nov. 28.—A real estate deal consummated this week makes a former Kansas man the owner of a valuable residence property in Whittier, as well as of some fine residential lots in Pasadena. In the transfer J. H. Buckmaster of this city traded to E. J. Votaw his residence on West Philadelphia street and two Pasadena lots for an alfalfa ranch of nearly 1000 acres in Colorado, paying Votaw the difference in cash.

The Colorado property was figured in at $20,000 in the deal, and the California holding was held at $8000. The T. Howard Johnson agency of Whittier handled the transaction.

IMPROVEMENT ACTIVITY AT HUNTINGTON BEACH.

Contractors Start Main Line of Septic Sewer System—Extensive Paving Operations Under Way in South Coast City—Seal Beach Highway Being Rushed.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 28.—Contractors this week started work on the main line of the local septic sewer system, the first trench being dug at the edge of the mesa at the southeastern city limits. This is the first modern septic sewer system to be installed in a South Coast city and is a work of considerable magnitude. Eight thousand, four hundred and thirty feet of main line will be laid, in addition to the miles of laterals. The contract calls for completion in fourteen months.

Delaware avenue is now torn up for a distance of one and one-half miles. This is one of the streets which is being paved from the city limits, where it connects with the Orange county boulevard system, to the present paving in the business section. The street is being graded to a width of sixty feet. The paving will be a concrete base with an asphalt covering. In another section of the city the grading of Ninth street is now complete, in anticipation of the paving of this avenue.

By throwing a large force of men on the job, the contractors will be able to finish the first unit of the Ocean Front highway from Seal Beach to Los Patos within the next two weeks, long before the expected time. The bridge across Anaheim inlet is two-thirds completed, the five-mile stretch of road along the sand dunes is graded and the earth covering is being placed on the surface. The remaining three-mile stretch of ocean front to Huntington Beach will be constructed as soon as condemnation proceedings started by Orange county against the Bolsa Chica Gun Club are completed.

The Huntington Beach Company is grading and planting trees along Main street from its junction with the Orange county highway to the city limits. This street is 120 feet in width and the company is grading a double highway with a parkway of forty feet width in the middle.

SIGHTLY EAGLE ROCK PROPERTY TRADED FOR CASSIL PLACE HOLDING.

EAGLE ROCK, Nov. 28.—An important real estate deal was consummated here during the week, when Mr. and Mrs. James Ferdon exchanged their beautiful foothill home in this city to J. L. Miller of Hollywood, securing a large flat building just erected at No. 1547 to 1553 Cassil place in the latter place. The consideration is given at about $35,000.

The Ferdons came here six years ago and purchased what was then known as the "Ringaman" ranch, situated in a nook backed by high foothills in the southern part of the Eagle Rock Valley. They spent many thousands of dollars in improvements, these including driveways, gardens, and general planting. The place has come to be one of the attractions of the valley. Both parties to the transaction just closed have taken possession of the properties acquired.

PUTS MILLIONS OF NEW MONEY INTO HANDS OF THE PEOPLE.

Governor of Federal Reserve Board Answers Questions for Enlightenment of the People—Latest Banking Law of the United States Explained—New Currency.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

© by Harris & Ewing.

Charles S. Hamlin,

Governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A new kind of money has begun to circulate among the people. No money like it has ever been seen in the United States. Nor has any other sort of money appeared at the call of need—as this money is expected to do—straightway to disappear when the need no longer existed.

Financial experts had declared for many years that the currency system of the country was absurdly barbaric and very dangerous. The money of the nation, they said, was not elastic—it could not be stretched, at times, sufficiently to cover all regions. So there were periods of sectional feasts and famines.

The same idea was expressed when it was pointed out that the currency lacked in fluidity; money would not always flow freely except to large banking centers like New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, and so on. Speculators could usually get it for campaigns in Wall street. Business men sometimes could not get it for goods, materials and wages.

The debate over the currency was carried on in Congress, in conventions, in books, in magazines, and in newspapers for almost a generation. Now and then some obscure and ignorant person would get up and say: "If every banker in the United States had $1,000,000,000 in cash and would lock it up in his vault and refuse to lend it, inevitably there would be a tight money market. What we want is a law keeping bank safes open during business hours."

In the main, however, the discussion was carried on by political economists, scientific bankers, Secretaries of the Treasury in Presidential Cabinets, and statesmen who specialized in finance. "The man in the street," that threadbare and much-exploited individual who is supposed to represent the standard of American intelligence and prosperity, prudently kept out of the controversy. It was too deep for him, as he confessed.

IT WILL EVEN RUN UP HILL.

By and by debaters, widely separated at first, got together on common ground. Something had to be done and at once. "Now," they said in chorus at last, "let somebody go ahead." The consent and appeal was heard by H. Parker Willis; indeed, he had been trying to go ahead for a long time. Dr. Willis sat down and wrote a bill. The bill, amended, was enacted into a law by Congress. Thus the country was supplied finally with a new and necessary kind of money—money that is to appear abundantly when it is needed and to disappear when the need is ended.

The object of this article is to give the omnipresent and respected "man in the street," his wife and all his children of High School age, a clear understanding of the money which their Uncle Sam is now printing and circulating as a safeguard against business panics, bank panics, and unnaturally high interest rates.

The money is supposed to be elastic—that is, it will stretch from the bank in the village to the home on the farm. It is also supposed to be fluid, which means that it will flow up hill, down hill and on the level at any depth that may be required. Whether it will actually do these things the experiments of time will reveal.

First of all, however, something ought to be written about Dr. Willis. He is a remarkable man. Professionally, he is an economist, or one versed in political economy; otherwise, he is one who understands "the regulations and disposition of the internal affairs of a State or a nation, or of any department of government." That is a big order, as Henry Sydnor Harrison would say, but it is not too big for Dr. Willis, who, born in Massachusetts forty years ago, has spent most of his life at universities in this country and in Europe and in giving technical counsel and special information to important committees of Congress. He wrote a book on the "Principles of Accounting," and another on the "Principles and Problems of Modern Banking."

THEY GET $12,000 A YEAR.

The currency law, of which he was the author, would fill about twelve columns of a daily newspaper. It is called "an act to provide for the establishment of Federal reserve banks, to furnish an elastic currency, to afford means of rediscounting commercial paper, to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States and for other purposes."

The law creates a Federal Reserve Board of seven members, one of whom is the Secretary of the Treasury and another of whom is Comptroller of the Currency. The other five members are appointed by the President. They are men from outside of the government. Each of the five receives a salary of $12,000 a year, which is obtained by an assessment on the twelve Federal reserve banks. Dr. Willis is secretary of the board.

The five men chosen by President Wilson were Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, a learned lawyer and experienced financier; Frederick A. Delano of Chicago, a famous railroad president; Paul M. Warburg of New York, a banker with a world-wide reputation; William P. G. Harding of Birmingham, Ala.; one of the foremost bankers of the South, and Adolph C. Miller of California, an economist, who has been associated with the faculties of some of the greatest universities in the United States.

Each of these men has a suite of two offices in the Treasury building, a private secretary and a stenographer. Mr. Hamlin is governor of the board and Mr. Delano is vice-governor. The law requires that the five members shall "devote their entire time to the business of the Federal Reserve Board." The business of the board is to supervise and regulate twelve Federal reserve banks, which have been established in twelve reserve districts. The hands and the eyes of the board are to be on all the banks all the time. The members of the board are to see that the law is obeyed. They are to decide when any matter is in doubt. The gates of the new money dam are opened and closed on signals from them.

LIGHT ALSO FOR THE BANKERS.

Catechism is defined as "a form of instruction by means of questions and answers." When Mr. Hamlin was asked if he would permit himself to be catechised about the new currency he replied: "Certainly, but put your inquiries on paper so that I may look them over." Thereupon the interviewer, after trying to get into the mental state of the "man in the street," wrote out forty elementary interrogations.

There are bankers, even, who do not understand the new currency law. Most bankers are merely dealers in money, taking it in and then paying it out at a profit. The inquiries submitted to Mr. Hamlin were intended to elicit plain information from him about a subject that is of great importance to everyone—to the man who works for wages, as well as to the man who pays the wages, and also to the banker who supplies the money with which the wages are met.

"What," so ran question number one, "is the purpose of the new currency law?"

"The purpose of the law," Mr. Hamlin replied, "is to provide an increased fluidity for bank assets, an elastic bank currency and a stronger reserve system. The principal assets of a national bank, aside from its capital, consist of promissory notes. Business men borrow money at banks and give their notes and the new law opens a way by which the banks may get the money from the Federal reserve banks before the notes mature. This process is called rediscounting.

"An elastic bank currency is a currency that will meet the needs of business in all regions and during all seasons of unusual activity. When the corn, wheat and cotton crops of

THE ARCHITECTS' SOLILOQUY.

BY CLARA ALDEN PETTENGILL.

This town "ain't what it used ta wuz,"
For building companies now
Just gobble every kind of job,
When first it makes its bow.

No bungalow is quite too small,
No chicken coop too cheap,
No building too elaborate,
But at its throat they leap!

The clients credulously think
These philanthropic folks
Just hand out gratis plans, the same
As they would pass out smokes!

The fee may wear a different cloak,
But someone feeds the till,
That shells out thirty plunks each week
To draughtsmen Tom and Bill!

But some day you will wander round
To all these swell concerns,
And be surprised, indeed, to see
What tricks old Fate still turns.

For sitting on a draughtsman's stool
You'll see your friend of yore,
Octavius Morgan pondering
Just where to place that door!

And next to him is Edelman,
His forehead scowled in thought,
Intent on working out a plan
Some sanguine client brought.

Then Rhoerig, too, is docile now,
And condescends to smile,
For Barnett, sitting by his side,
Plays jokes most all the while!

And Judson works with all his might,
But Parkinson, poor soul,
Can't quite live down the fact that this Should have to be his goal!

And Elmer Gray is sitting there,
His pencil poised for work,
And next to him is Myron Hunt—
Just toiling like a Turk!

But just imagine my surprise,
When told they'd taken o'er
The Building Superintendent's job
Whose office was no more!

And when with tearful eyes I asked,
"Who usually sits there?"
They confidentially told me, "That Is Mister Backus's chair!"

Sales are reported by the Janss Investment Company, in the new San Gabriel Valley tract to the following: Carl D. Hessen, $1450; George Summers, $1950; Eugene Hess, $1450; W. H. Buch, $2150; A. C. Paradis, $1600; Miss J. Waters, $950; Miss M. Waters, $950; Fred Tolbert, $900; R. Hunter, $900; Miss B. Nichol, $950.

ANOTHER FINE HOME.

Work will soon be begun on another fine home in Windsor Square, according to an announcement by R. A. Rowan & Co., developers of the new Wilshire tract. The house will be erected for Eugene F. Kline, an attorney, who came to Los Angeles recently from Chicago. Plans and specifications for the residence are now being completed by the Milwaukee Building Company. The house will be in the old English style of architecture, and of frame and brick construction.

NEW MOVIE THEATER.

The Empire Theater Company has leased the motion picture playhouse just completed on Pico street, between Alvarado and Lake streets, and expects to open for its first performance next Saturday evening. The theater has a seating capacity of 660 and is said to have cost $50,000. The interior finishings are of a modern character and the theater is supplied with regulation stage, curtain and orchestra pit. The owner is Richard Arenz.

SOUTHWEST ACTIVITIES.

The sale of three houses and eleven lots is reported by the Los Angeles Investment Company. The transfers in Rodgers Park consisted of a bungalow to W. M. Parsons for $3250, and one lot each to L. A. Homer, S. P. Tyrrell, C. K. Bennett, J. J. Jackson, J. M. Griffith, Paul E. Boothe, H. T. Storm, V. G. Barbour, Charles Penney and R. P. Mann. In College Tract the sales were: James A. Becket, bungalow, $3725; William L. Masters, bungalow, $3500, and George H. Pratt, lot.

War, Women and Work.

Labor.

CONVICT SUES FOR HIS PAY.

Says Enforced Work Without a Wage is Slavery.

Constitutionality of Law is Undergoing Test.

Decision in Rhode Island may be Far-reaching.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) Nov. 27.—Arguments on the constitutionality of the law authorizing the State to make contracts selling the labor of prisoners without compensating them were heard before the Rhode Island Supreme Court.

On the ground that such enforced servitude on the part of a prisoner is slavery and that the State Constitution prohibits slavery without making an exception against convicts, the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor is pressing the suit of William Anderson, a former convict, against a garment company which holds a contract with the State for the labor of prisoners.

Anderson contends that the company should pay him wages for the work he did while a convict. The decision in his case may affect prison labor in a number of States.

ATTACKS WOMAN'S WAGE LAW.

Oregon Manufacturer Declares it is Destructive to Business and Unsupported by Public Opinion.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Briefs in the case brought by Frank C. Steitler, of Portland, Or., manufacturer, to have declared unconstitutional the Oregon compulsory minimum wage law for women, were filed today in the Supreme Court. The briefs urge that such legislation is beyond the power of a State; if unsupported by public opinion, would be destructive of business, and increase the cost of living.

Non-compulsory legislation in Massachusetts and Nebraska is approved in the briefs, but the compulsory legislation in Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California and Utah is condemned.

PROTEST PRISONER COOK.

Agitators of Seattle Oppose Employment of Convict to Prepare Food in the County Jail.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Nov. 28.—The Central Labor Union, Wednesday night, indorsed the protest of the Cooks' Union against the employment of a prisoner cook for the inmates of the County Jail. The prisoner cook is S. W. Boswell, formerly keeper of a saloon close to the City Hall. Boswell is serving time for manslaughter because he [illegible] automobile over a girl and [illegible].

Labor Notes.

The reopening of the converting mills of the Illinois Steel Company, South Chicago, has given work to [illegible] men. Old employees who have been laid off are given the preference.

The A. F. of L. has gone on record for a more general application of the eight-hour day in all trades before agitating for a six-hour day.

Because of the completion of the work started some months ago to overhaul and repair the equipment of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, about 1000 men, clerical as well as operating, have been "laid off."

The reopening of the Big Horn mine, on the south slope of North Baldy, will give employment by spring to from 300 to 500 men. The mine has been closed for eight years.

New York labor unions demand that the 18,000 aliens now working on the subways be dismissed. One contracting company has had to stop work. The work cannot be prosecuted without them. Contractors are threatened with proceedings under the labor law. Contractors are accused of paying the aliens less than union wage rates. Ninety per cent. of the alien workers are not American citizens.

An Absurd Demand.

The American Federation of Labor in convention at Philadelphia last week unanimously adopted a resolution calling on President Wilson "to insist that the Colorado coal operators immediately comply with the Federal plan of settlement" of the strike in that State, and "in the event they refuse," to take "such steps as are necessary to have a receiver appointed for the mines affected and to operate them in the interest of the people under Federal supervision until the civil and political rights of the people are established."

The attorney of the Bureau of Labor has rendered an opinion that no reason exists for the President to have a receiver appointed and the President has so notified the officers of the federation.

Enjoined Against Striking.

As though Indianapolis had not suffered enough from street railroad strikes, there has been recently another one under consideration by the Street Car Men's Union. So probable appeared such action that a temporary injunction has been issued by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson on the petition of the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company of Philadelphia, trustees under mortgage for the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal Company, which operates the Indianapolis street car lines.

The order is to be in effect until there is a hearing and decision on the petition for a permanent injunction against a strike. No time was set for the hearing.

W. D. Mahon of Detroit, President of the Street Car Men's International Union, and other international officials are named in the order, together with the officers and members of the local union.

A Spartan Mother.

[Indianapolis News:] Ignaz Reising and his wife, Sophie Reising, peasants residing in Geisselbach, Bavaria, sent their six sons and three sons-in-law into the war. When the soldiers marched out, somebody asked their mother why she did not cry like the other women present. "I wait till I have [illegible] cause for that," she answered.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

According to Bulletin No. 150 of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, the average full-time weekly earnings of workers in American cotton goods manufacturing in 1913 were 1.4 per cent. higher than such earnings in 1912, 14.7 per cent. higher than in 1911, and 15.3 per cent. higher than in 1910.

The full-time hours of labor per week in this industry were about the same in 1913 as in 1912. They were, however, 1.7 per cent. lower in 1913 than in 1910 and 1911, the average hours being the same in 1910 and 1911.

Rates of wages, or earnings per hour, in cotton goods manufacturing in 1913 were 0.7 per cent. higher than in 1912, 10.7 per cent. higher than in 1911 and 11.4 per cent. higher than in 1910.

In money the average full-time weekly earnings in 1913 were (principal occupations:)

The full-time hours of labor per week in 1913 were 0.4 per cent. lower than in 1912, 1.3 per cent. lower than in 1911, and 1.4 per cent. lower than in 1910.

Less Hours and More Wages.

Using 100 as the index number, relative full-time hours per week in cotton-goods manufacturing have fallen from 100 in 1890 to 92.4 in 1912; in the same period wages have risen from 101.6 to 164.1. On this showing, what need was there of the great Paterson cotton-goods strike of last year? Seven and six-tenths less hours of work weekly and 62.5 per cent. more wages. In the woolen and worsted goods industry the comparative figures are:

	Hours.	Wages.
1890	101.0	99.6
1912	94.6	149.1

And in silk-goods manufacturing:

	Hours.	Wages.
1912	96.6	117.1

Showing 6.0 less hours weekly and 17.5 per cent. more wages. Yet in the futile Paterson silk strike, the agitators persistently preached that the workers were worse off than they were twenty years before. Almost always, if not always, strike agitation fails of truth before actual figures of the industry affected.

British Labor Market Improved.

The British Board of Trade announces that in the trades compulsorily insured against unemployment the percentage of unemployment at October 30 was 4.16, as compared with 4.29 a week earlier and 5.11 a month ago. These figures relate to the whole of the United Kingdom, and include all unemployed workmen in the insured trades.

Cause Suffering.

WILL STOP FOUR BIG CONTRACTS.

OLD NEW YORK LAW MAY HALT SUBWAY WORK.

The Bricklayers' and Masons' Union has Discovered that an Old Statute of the State Requires that Only Naturalized Citizens be Employed on Public Work.

Four big contracts covering part of the New York subway system and held by Pittsburgh companies are involved with all other subway work in New York because labor-union leaders have notified contractors that they are violating a State law which compels contractors on public work to employ only naturalized citizens of the United States for labor.

The determination of the various contractors engaged in the subway work to cease all operations until this law can be tested in court and an appeal taken promises to throw 18,000 men out of employment and at the same time suspend a pay roll of $2,000,000 a week. The law in question was supposed to be a dead letter for years. It was held that it would be impossible to comply with it, as naturalized Americans or American citizens engaged in common labor were not of sufficient numbers to meet the demand, and if they were the wage rate would become prohibitive.

As to the situation the New York Journal of Commerce says: "Labor organization is as much in need of the support of public opinion as capital organization, but it is much more addicted to ignoring or defying it. There could hardly be a movement more certain to be unpopular in this city than that started in the name of the Bricklayers' and Masons' Union for holding up the work of contractors on the new subways. Technically there seems to be no doubt that the provision of the labor law of this State against the employment of men who are not citizens of the United States on public work directly or in the execution of contracts is violated, but ever since it was enacted that provision has been virtually a dead letter because it has proved to be impracticable to carry on such work successfully under the restriction. The rough labor of excavation in canal tunnel and subway work requires a large number of men and most of those available are unnaturalized aliens, who cannot be suddenly converted into American citizens.

"Such a law is an outrage upon workingmen as well as employers, especially private employers taking contracts for public work, and its constitutionality is more than doubtful on account of its violation of treaties with foreign nations, which are declared by the Constitution of the United States to be part of 'the supreme law of the land.' However that may be, the contracts for public work have for years been made without reference to this restriction and the terms for those accepted for the subway work cannot be executed under its operation. The attempt would make it impossible to have the work done within the prescribed limit of time and would ruin the contractors on account of the increased cost, besides indefinitely delaying the completion of the work to the great injury of thousands of people and of the interests of the city and the transit companies.

"Incidentally the stoppage which the threat of prosecution is liable to cause would throw 18,000 workmen, including many who are citizens, out of work, adding to the number of unemployed already suffering for lack of opportunity to earn a living just as winter is coming on. This may be a reason for choosing this time for making such a move as an act of duress upon public authorities as well as contractors engaged in public work, but it cannot possibly accomplish its purpose of forcing the employment of citizens only. It is not a question of union labor, for many of the unnaturalized aliens employed belong to unions and those who do not have the same right to employment as the others. The provision of law used as a fighting weapon in this case ought to be repealed when the Legislature meets, but even if that can be effected there would be serious delay, while testing the constitutional validity of the act would take a long time. Until something can be accomplished to clear up the law or clear it out of the statute book, some arrangement ought to be made for continuing the work contracted for and preventing the obstruction of new contracts. The public cannot afford to have this kind of union arrogance prevail at any cost."

HUGE ROAD OUTLAY.

More Than Two Hundred Million Dollars Spent on Public Highways in United States Last Year.

Approximately $206,000,000 was spent last year on public roads in the United States, according to statistics prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. This represents an increase of about 250 per cent. in one decade, the estimate for 1904 having been $78,000,000.

This awakening on the part of the country to the importance of good roads is ascribed by the government investigators in large measure to the principle of the State aid to counties and other local communities. New Jersey began the movement in 1891 when it passed its State highway law. Massachusetts and Vermont followed a year later, but for the most part the other States were slow to move. In 1904 only fifteen had State highway departments; last year the individual States appropriated a total of $38,755,088 to supplement local expenditures.

The value of this State aid is, however, not to be measured by the figures alone, for the bulk of the money comes, and always must come, from the counties and townships. Thus, in 1912, the cash outlay by counties, districts and townships was $137,493,985. Complete figures for 1913 are not yet available, but it is safe to estimate the sum at approximately $151,000,000. To this must be added some $15,000,000 to represent the value of the labor contributed instead of cash in districts where this practice prevails. Last year, therefore, local communities contributed in round numbers $166,000,000, as against appropriations from State treasuries of $38,755,088.

More Pay for Gompers & Co.

A resolution is before the Philadelphia convention of the American Federation of Labor which provides for an increase of Gompers's salary from $5000 to $7500, and that of his Man Friday Morrison, from $4000 to $5000. That means $3500 a year more "pull" on union labor's wages money.

FAIL TO SETTLE KANSAS STRIKE.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM THE OTHER REFUSES TO ABIDE BY AGREEMENTS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Nov. 26.—Negotiations to settle a strike of 1000 coal miners in Southeastern Kansas in a conference here between representatives of the International Executive Committee of the United Mine Workers of America, the district officers of the union and representatives of the Southwestern Coal Operators' Association have been abandoned.

The strikers were employees of the Cherokee and Pittsburgh Coal Mining Company, who walked out November 10.

At the conferences here the operators asserted the miners refused to abide by an agreement whereby all grievances should be adjusted without stoppage of work and the miners said the operators agreed with the district officers of the union to abide by a ruling to be made by the national officers and then refused to do so.

EDUCATING FOR TRADES.

An Unreasonable Opposition by the Trades Unions Presents the Upbringing of the Coming Workmen.

[Pierre N. Beringer in American Industries:] "The trades! What equipment has the average boy for any kind of trade on leaving the grammar grades in our public schools? Manual or vocational training usually begins in the high school or is coincident thereto. Vocational training is woefully neglected in all of our smaller cities, and in the larger cities it is given so little attention as to be a farce. This article is not an arraignment of our public schools, but is an arraignment of our citizenship, and it points the way to the growing of a widening breach between men and women on the land.

"Suppose the boy is given a chance at a trade. He must enter a shop and begin at beggarly wage, and, by toilsome steps and through a wastage of years, acquire that which should have been given him through public duty, to be acquired as a sport and a joy in the schools. There are many reasons why the vocational or the manual training school is not more numerous in the land, but the most potent preventive is the blind opposition of the older generation of mechanics and artisans or the rabid union-labor members, who see in this training the up-bringing of a youthful army to crowd the elders out of their positions and their means of earning a livelihood. It is useless to contend this is a foolish fear, that there is room in this country for the employment of every skilled head and hand; the laboring foreigner will not believe it and the clannishness of the privileged class belonging to the unions will not permit its members to allow any idea to popularize the vocational school to thrive. Thus we have a lively opposition to the manual training school, and this is the second factor in making mental and physical dwarfs of the males of the landt—he embryonic elements of a sex industrial war in the not very remote future which will shake the foundation of the republic, a war deferred only by the setness of purpose of man and the unsettledness and indefiniteness of purpose of women.

"The lack of vocational or manual trianing schools has an immediate and continuing result, when taken in connection with the over-education of women and the invasion of the professional lines by the females of the land that is full of portent. These factors, in connection with the fierce opposition to the manual training or vocational school by the labor unions, are filling our jails with the mentally deformed who emerge, if they emerge at all, physical and drug-laden dwarfs, social menaces for all time, in themselves and their posterity.

"What a commentary it is on our boasted civilization that the vast majority of the men in our penal institutions are between the comparatively adolescent ages of 21 and 25. These prisons are filled with the incompetents mentally, those with a strabismal twist in their outlook, failures before the trial, crooked by fate and denied opportunity through competition with a world of women by men who have refused them educational and vocational and manual training advantages. The ever-increasing horde of women who are filling the professions and the trades are being ably assisted by the unions filling the jails with the boy children of the people."

DRIVEN INTO TENEMENTS.

Working People Who Owned Their Houses Had to Sell Because Unable to Hire Work Done on Them.

[The Square Deal:] When asked if the consumer had to pay more because the unions have succeeded in raising wages, ex-President Eliot of Harvard replied:

"That introduces a very difficult subject, because the statement presents the contrast between the advantages trades-unions derive from their forced-up wages and the resulting deprivations of the community. There is a great deal of truth in that suggestion. I see it very strongly in my own city of Cambridge, where the average family for which the breadwinner earns from $20 to $30 a week —and that, you know, is a common condition—has been forced into lodgings much more contracted than similar people occupied forty years ago. The fall of an ordinary American family from a small single cottage with a garden down to a seven-room flat is a very serious matter indeed. It is an immediate consequence of the exaggerated wages in the building trades. I was lately talking with a choresman in Cambridge who had suffered just that decline, had once owned his own house and garden, but had been driven into a six-room flat. He has four children. He said to me, "I could not afford to live in my house; I had to sell it." "Why did you have to sell it?" "For two reasons," he said: "first, high taxes; and secondly, I could not afford to hire people to make repairs on my house when repairs were absolutely necessary. The carpenter charged 60 cents an hour; the plumber with his helper wanted $7 or $8 a day; the mason or plasterer even more; and the painter almost as much. I had to crowd my family into a flat of six rooms—and we have lost our garden."

That is a short story, but it is repeated over and over again by millions of people in our country at this moment. The average American family, earning from $20 to $30 a week, has lost its house and garden, a serious loss as regards happiness and content, particularly for women and children. This is a straight consequence of the trades-unions' policies in the building trades and the subsidiary trades.

New Currency Law.

the West and South are harvested, buyers must have currency with which to purchase the crops and with which to transport the crops to market. Heretofore the money required for seasonal needs in our agricultural regions has been drained away from such banking centers as New York, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans and Atlanta.

"Every year there was a strain on the rest of the country during the time of crop moving. The new law provides a way by which banks in the cotton, corn and wheat States may procure a supply of temporary or emergency money for crop-moving purposes."

"The theory of the law," I said, "seems to be the creation of a currency reservoir in Washington from which all national banks, by pledging acceptable securities, may draw money to the measure of their wants."

"The currency reservoir, as you term it," Mr. Hamlin answered, "is not situated in Washington at all. Instead, there are twelve reservoirs—one in each Federal reserve bank. These banks have been established in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco. They are the 'reservoirs' from which the new currency is to be drawn. Each is to supply currency to the banks in a definite geographical district."

"What is the capitalization of these banks?"

"Boston, $9,711,900; New York, $19,928,400; Philadelphia, $12,501,500; Cleveland, $12,142,800; Richmond, $6,315,300; Atlanta, $4,649,900; Chicago, $12,687,000; St. Louis, $5,002,100; Minneapolis, $4,797,900; Kansas City, $5,520,400; Dallas, $5,653,600; San Francisco, $7,763,200."

"Who owns the twelve reserve banks?"

"The national banks and other banks if they come into the system, in each reserve district own the Federal reserve bank in that district. The member banks, for example, in the Boston reserve district own the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. National banks hold stock in Federal reserve banks in proportion to their own capital stock and the amount of their reserves."

"How are the twelve Federal reserve banks managed?"

"By boards of directors, each board having nine members, six of whom are chosen by the member banks in the district and three by the national government."

"Also each Federal reserve bank is authorized to establish branch banks?"

"Yes, but none has been established thus far."

"And over all the banks—reserve banks and their branches, when opened—is the Federal Reserve Board sitting in Washington?"

"Yes."

"What sources of profit have the twelve Federal reserve banks?"

"The rediscounting of paper and the purchasing of paper in the open market. Rediscounting paper means accepting promissory notes, drafts and so on given to member banks by merchants, manufacturers and others and giving the member banks credits or currency for such notes, less a fee for that service. A national bank has $500,000 in notes. Business firms and corporations have borrowed that sum in the aggregate. The national bank needs additional currency for the conduct of its business. It takes its promissory notes eligible for rediscount to the Federal reserve bank in its district and obtains the money, the Federal reserve bank holding the notes until they are due."

"What disposition will the twelve Federal reserve banks make of their profits?"

"Six per cent. will go to the member banks—that is to the banks which own the Federal reserve banks—and the remainder will be paid to the national government as a franchise tax."

"What relations will the national banks have to Federal reserve banks in their districts?"

"They are the owners of the Federal reserve banks and, together with the national government, are the sole depositors therein."

"By what process will a national bank issue currency or money of its own? For instance, if a national bank in Boston has loaned $5,000,000 to business men and requires more funds with which to accommodate its other customers, how will it obtain the funds?"

"National banks may issue notes in the future just as they have in the past—that is, they may buy government bonds, deposit the bonds with the Secretary of the Treasury in Washington and procure currency to the face value of the bonds in return.

"The new law in addition permits national banks to take their quick assets eligible for rediscount to Federal reserve banks and obtain loans thereon, in return for which the Federal reserve banks will give them, if they desire, Federal reserve notes, to be paid to their customers or loaned to their borrowers.

QUICK ASSETS ARE DEFINED.

"Quick assets are notes, drafts and bills of exchange issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial or commercial purposes and maturing in ninety days—in other words, the paper of solvent concerns which have borrowed money for carrying on their business.

"These quick assets, as defined by the new law, do not include notes, drafts or bills covering transactions in stocks, bonds or other investment securities, except, of course, the bonds and notes of the government of the United States. A note for $10,000 given by a man who used the money in speculations in Wall street would not be accepted from a national bank by a Federal reserve bank as security for an issue of Federal reserve notes."

"What is commercial paper?"

"It is the evidence of a live commercial transaction, which has not been closed and whose payment is still to be completed. A merchant borrows $25,000 at his bank and pays for a carload of goods. The note so given is one form of commercial paper."

"How will national banks in a wheat, corn or cotton region obtain a temporary supply of money with which to move crops?"

"By taking their quick assets, as I have already said, to the Federal reserve bank in their district and getting credits, or the currency, which the new law authorizes."

"What can be done if there is an oversupply of money in a Federal reserve bank or district?"

"If too many Federal reserve notes are outstanding they will promptly return to the Federal reserve bank and be deposited there, or they will be presented for redemption. If a Federal reserve bank has more actual money than it needs, it can use its surplus funds for buying commercial paper elsewhere."

"You have said that national bank currency or money will hereafter be based on bonds and commercial paper?"

"Yes, on bonds until the expiration of the Aldrich-Vreeland Act. The Federal reserve notes, however, will be based on commercial paper."

"What would happen were the commercial paper of some firm or corporation, discounted at a Federal reserve bank by a national bank, prove to be worthless?"

"The national bank would be obliged to make it good if it were not paid at maturity."

"A Federal reserve bank will do business only with the member banks in its district?"

"Yes, except, as I have stated, it may also buy specified kinds of commercial paper, etc., in the open market from whomsoever it pleases."

"Are all national banks required to place themselves under the new law?"

"They are."

"State banks and trust companies are outside the law?"

"They are not obliged to join the system, but may do so."

"Will money still continue to be drained from inland banks into the great banks of New York?"

"There is nothing to prevent interior banks from depositing their funds, over and above their reserve requirements, in New York, just as they have done in the past, but some of the inducement to do so has been removed."

"Hasn't idle money in large cities been sent to New York in the past and there used by speculators for their operations in Wall street?"

"Such money has been sent to New York and has been used in making loans secured by collateral."

"Will New York cease to be the money center of the United States?"

"That depends on a definition of terms. There is nothing in the currency act to injure the legitimate prosperity or prestige of New York, so far as the prosperity and prestige are founded on the actual ownership of wealth."

"What relation will the citizen have with the Federal reserve bank in this city or district?"

"No relation whatever. He cannot own stock in a Federal reserve bank, he cannot borrow money at such a bank, nor can he take commercial paper to such a bank and have it discounted."

"Will Federal reserve banks accept and pay interest on deposits?"

"The law is silent as to that."

"How is the holder of the new Federal reserve notes or money safeguarded against loss?"

"By large gold reserves held in the banks, by a guarantee of the notes and by first liens on the assets of the banks."

"Formerly national banks have not been permitted to loan money on real estate. May they do so now?"

"To a limited extent; upon farm lands, under careful supervision of the Federal authorities. The loans must not run for more than five years and in amount must not exceed one-half the actal value of the property on which the loans are made."

"Can persons living in cities or villages borrow money at national banks on their dwellings or business buildings?"

"They cannot."

WOULD OUST SIERRA TOWN.

Mining Company Wants to Work Ground.

Decision in Eviction Case Expected Soon.

Delhi Company Intersects Long-sought Vein.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEVADA CITY, Nov. 26.—The Neocene Mining Company of Los Angeles, has completed its eviction case against residents of the village of Scales, in Northern Sierra county, and the decision of Judge Smith is expected to be handed down at an early date. The company holds patents to the land on which the village is located, and development has shown that rich gravel deposits extend under the settlement.

For this reason the company is desirous of removing the homes of the inhabitants and working the land by the hydraulic method. The residents have stubbornly fought the case, on the ground of adverse possession for five years.

For several years the Neocene Mining Company has been actively operating hydraulicproperties in the vicinity of Scales. It has ranked among the most important recent placer mining enterprises in the State.

A mining case that is attracting keen attention from mining men throughout California has been taken under advisement by Judge Jones of the Nevada County Superior Court. Charging that the Kenosha Mining Company, a Wisconsin concern had failed to perform annual assessment work for 1913, George Whiting and other Grass Valley miners jumped the property last New Year's Day, and retained possession despite determined objections on the part of the company. The mine is considered the most valuable property in the Deadman Flat section, is well equipped and has produced much rich ore.

The company asserts it did perform the necessary work, and that the seizure was unjustified and without merit. A stubborn legal battle followed.

A decision in the case will probably be handed down before the close of the month. Whichever side wins, it is certain that the mine will be energetically developed, on account of recent discoveries in adjacent properties.

FOUND AT LAST.

After months of cross-cut driving, the long-sought vein in the Delhi mine has been intersected, according to the management. At point of intersection the shoot ranges from twelve to thirty inches in width, with free gold showing. It was encountered about 300 feet below the old shaft workings, and drifts are being extended to open the ore for early extraction. New pumps are to be installed and the mill placed in shape for early crushing.

The Brunswick Consolidated last week declared another dividend of 6 cents per share, amounting to $18,000. This makes $90,000 distributed to stockholders thus far for the present year. Considerable stock is held by residents of Los Angeles and also in eastern cities. The management states that the mine is in splendid condition, with deep developments steadily increasing the productive area. Important additions to the mill will probably be made early in 1915.

The Brandy City Mining Company, operating the largest hydraulic mine in Central California, has completed numerous improvements on its property, including additions to the plant and extension of the water-supply system. In the course of the summer new ground was brought within the productive area. Everything is in readiness for the most active season in the company's history, as soon as the wet season sets in.

From two to four giants are operated the greater part of the year on this property, and a massive dam of concrete prevents the escape of debris to the streams. The efficiency of the restraining system has been demonstrated by the absence of complaints against the company by the unfriendly farming interests of the valley country.

The City of Six Mining Company, operating a promising quartz mine near Dowpieville, has let a contract for the driving of the main tunnel 100 feet further, and permits the contractors to drive 200 feet if they desire at a stipulated figure. The company recently opened good ore in the property and the new work is designed to open the vein at considerable depth below the old workings. Angelenos recently acquired a half-interest in the property.

HAMMOND OPTION.

The syndicate of California and eastern capitalists headed by John Hayes Hammond, which recently examined several placer properties along the Sacramento River near Redding, has taken an option on the Russell placer holdings, near the old camp of Igo, and placed a diamond drill at work. Options are also being negotiated for proven dredging ground below Redding, and it is planned to operate another drill at this point to check returns obtained by former explorers.

The syndicate has secured an extension of its options on extensive placer ground along the Trinity River, and is expected to install two large dredges in this field next summer.

Reports that the Mammoth Copper Company, the largest red-metal producer in California, was contemplating suspension of activities until the copper market improved have been denied by the management. It is stated that work will continue along present lines for several months, and possibly until the demand for copper justifies a larger output. The ore in storage has been practically consumed, and the mining force will be increased this week to keep the two furnaces supplied.

The company has shipped in large quantities of winter supplies, and appears confident of its ability to continue operations despite the low price for copper and the hostile actions of the farmers. The Mammoth ore averages about $1.50 per ton in gold and over $1 in silver, a feature that enables the company to meet a large proportion of operating expenses.

GOLD OUTPUT.

Preliminary estimates for 1914 place the gold yield of California at $21,000,000, the largest production since 1883, when the $24,000,000 point was passed. In 1913 the output reached $20,406,958. About $12,000,000 of the 1914 yield is credited to the deep quartz mines, and over $8,000,000 to the gold dredgers.

The Oom Paul mine, near Etna, is again commanding interest after several years of mediocre performance. An old vein was recently recovered and is showing considerable rich ore. The old Johnson mill has been repaired to treat the quartz. Quartz mining is unusually active along the Salmon and Klamath rivers.

VERDE'S HUGE STOPE.

"AS BIG AS A CHURCH."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

JEROME (Ariz.) Nov. 26.—"As big as a church" is a description given of the main stope on the 1300 level of the United Verde. It has solid walls that are said to need no timbering.

No stock is for sale in the United Verde Company, and the management ever is averse to publicity, yet enough is known to tell that the famous property, after thirty years of operation, is showing up richer than ever. The marvel, however, is not its richness but its permanency.

The copper situation has just caused the shutdown of the Arkansas and Arizona mines, a corporation that has spent $700,000 in the past few years exploring one of the Verde faults. The hoist, which cost $55,000, is not far from the mouth of the main United Verde tunnel.

A fault is being sought for by the Verde Extension Company, a corporation controlled by experienced Southern Arizona copper miners. The main shaft is now within a few feet of the 1400 level, where a station will be cut. From this a crosscut will be run to a rich ore body already well developed 200 feet above.

This property already is considered in the bonanza class. It lies immediately below the town of Jerome, south of the Arkansas and Arizona, and in a parallel canyon to that into which the main United Verde tunnel opens.

Goldfield.

LIVELY TIMES ARE HERALDED.

CAMP IS DESTINED TO "COME BACK" SOON.

Signs of Revivification in Increasing Interest of Mining Men and General Public in Recent Development — Preliminary Estimate of Consolidated Company.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Nov. 26.—Unless all signs are misleading, the Goldfield district is destined to "come back" with a vengeance in the near future. While it is not reasonable to suppose that the wild excitement that characterized the "early days" will again be witnessed, there is no gainsaying the fact that the camp is on the eve of a great revival of mining activity.

Evidence that the future holds in store for Goldfield a new era of prosperity closely approaching that of the halcyon days is not only found in the activity of the shares of many of the local companies on the stock exchanges of San Francisco and New York, but in the renewed interest manifested by the members of the mining fraternity, in particular, and the investing public, in general. At no period in the last five years have inquiries as to conditions in this district been more numerous than at present.

The preliminary estimate of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company of production and earnings in October, recently made public by A. H. Howe, secretary and treasurer, leave no doubt that the various mines of the company last month made the best showing in the past three. The October output amounted to 28,660 tons of ore, from which net profits of $149,000 were realized, as against 27,871 tons and net profits of $120,599 in September, an increase in output of 789 tons and in net profits of $28,401.

The quarterly statement also recently issued by the company shows that during the three months ending September 30 the company mill reduced a total of 79,605 dry tons of ore, from which values were recovered to a total of $918,088.26. Operating expenses amounted to $516,877.77, leaving a net realization for the quarter of $401,210.49.

After completing the purchase of the control of the Aurora Consolidated Mines Company by the payment of the balance due, namely, $374,211, the company had on hand in cash and bills receivable approximately $697,000 at the end of the quarter named. The figures contained in the quarterly statement and the preliminary estimate of production and earnings last month make it evident that the various properties of the company are in excellent physical condition.

JUMBO EXTENSION.

Results of the most satisfactory character are attending operations in new raise 503-C above the east crosscut of the main southeast cross-cut on the 1017-foot level of the Velvet claim of the Jumbo Extension Mining Company, which Friday night revealed the downward extension of the ore body that has been yielding a large tonnage of rich rock on the 952-foot intermediate level for some time past. According to General Manager Charles S. Sprague and Consulting Engineer J. K. Turner, the ore-body at the new point of exposure has already been proven for a width of eighteen feet with no indication as to when the hanging wall will be disclosed.

At a point forty-two feet above the cross-cut on the 1017-foot level, the raise passed out of the shale footwall of the vein into quartz, which proved eight feet wide and gave average assays of $22 per ton. Immediately above the quartz body, four feet of the latite broken down gave values of $348.58 per ton, divided as follows: 17.04 ounces gold, 7.16 ounces silver, and 2.10 per cent. copper. Muck from six-foot machine drill holes put up in the top of the raise gave assays of $234.04 per ton.

The Jumbo Extension Company has made an excellent showing since the control and management was taken over by the Sprague interests. The company's dividend of 5 cents a share is payable December 15 to stockholders of record on November 20. There will be distributed among the stockholders a total of $62,500. This is the second dividend declared by the company, the first amounting to $97,116, having been disbursed on July 15, 1911, from the proceeds of the sale of the Vinegarone fraction claim to the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company.

Arizona Mines.

HARQUA HALA IN RING AGAIN.

Famous Property Now Sees Fourth Revival.

Wave of Activity Enters Groom Creek.

Happenings in the Various Mining Districts.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Nov. 26.—The once famous Bonanza mines at Harqua Hala in Northern Yuma county, appear to have "come back" for about the fourth revival. At a Prescott bank is a 100-ounce bar of gold bullion valued at $1800, brought from the property, where it had been pounded out of ore hoisted from one of the old workings, abandoned years ago as worked out.

A new company is operating, with W. W. Stevens, the company's president, and William J. Mulvenon of Prescott, a heavy stockholder, superintending the work on the ground. They have been driving out from some of the older stopes and recently have struck much rich ore. It is treated in the same old mill from which in the past came a stream of wealth.

Arrangements have been made for handling at the Poland mill of about 500 tons of ore from the Poorman mine. About 40 per cent. of the gross gold value is expected to be caught on the plates. For about a year the mine has been developed under the management of J. N. Duncan.

Much activity is noted in Groom Creek district, a short distance south of Prescott. In the Yellow Jacket property L. S. Williams has struck a five-foot ledge, with fine values in gold, silver and copper.

In the same locality, adjoining the well-known Emporia property, is the Cottonwood mine, on which William Linden, at fifty feet of depth, has exposed a fine vein that samples $55 to the ton in gold. A carload of the ore has been made ready for shipment to a Douglas smelter.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—Q.: I write to ask if you will kindly assist a student who is trying to obtain some knowledge of chemistry by studying from a text-book. I wish to find: (1.) How the formula is obtained of any compound? (2.) How the reaction is figured, as for instance: 26.9 per cent. of Na. 16.58 per cent., N. 56.52 per cent., O, gives the formula $NaNo_3$. (3.) How do chemists know the difference between an acid and a salt by reading a formula, as for instance, HNO_3 (nitric acid, and KNO_2 (salt.) Thanking you kindly.

G. R. K.

A.: Your questions indicate that you have your mind on nitrates and NITRITES chiefly.

We shall not use the short hand of chemistry in this discussion, and it shall be our endeavor to give you chiefly facts in every-day English.

(1.) There are different kinds of formulae. The basis for the classification of organic compounds is usually indicated in part, in their chemical formulae and such formula is structural formulae.

With structural (or constitutional) formula the connection between the atoms in a molecule is indicated.

The showing of a formula on paper is relatively unimportant. "The formulae are intended to show the manner of combination, and not the exact positions of the atoms." Take the symbols in the constitutional formula for acetic acid, for example.

The formula for acetic acid may be shown, in symbols, that the acid is monobasic, or (in other symbols) it may indicate that the origin of the acid is from certain "salts." The improperly defined term "salt" includes the greater per cent. of solid chemical substances, and especially those in crystal form.

A rational formula shows by the way it is written, the manner in which a compound breaks up or is formed under certain conditions, and "shows the relations of allied compounds to each other."

"A rational formula is an abridged constitutional formula, which indicates certain relations not shown in an empirical or molecular formula: or it is a molecular formula so written as to indicate certain chemical relations of the compound."

A symbol represents an atom. A formula represents a molecule. Hydrogen and oxygen are elements. A molecule of water (a compound) is composed of the elements hydrogen with oxygen. When the gasses hydrogen and oxygen combine directly hydrogen monoxide (water) is produced. Water, by weight, is composed of 88.89 per cent. oxygen with 11.11 per cent. hydrogen; the ratio, therefore, is 1 of hydrogen to 8 of oxygen, or 2 to 16. By volume, water is composed of hydrogen 2, with (approximately) oxygen 16, more exactly, for oxygen 15.88.

A molecule of steam contains an atom of oxygen; 2000 molecules contain 2000 oxygen atoms, but bear in mind that the 2000 oxygen atoms are obtained from 1000 of oxygen molecules.

Well has it been said: "You cannot put fifty horses into 100 stables, so that there shall be exactly the same amount of horse in each stable, but you can divide fifty pairs of horses among 100 stables."

"A chemical formula represents a molecule either of an element or of a compound." It indicates the name of an element, for example: S. (sulphur.) It shows a constant weight of a compound. "Its symbol or symbols, together with a small figure attached to the foot of any symbol, show the number of atoms in the molecule." It stands for the molecular weight (a constant weight) of a compound, and for the sum of the combining weights or of the weights of the atoms in the molecule. It represents two volumes of the substance, if volatizable, in the state of gas or vapor, and the number of volumes of gaseous elements from which two volumes of any gaseous compound were obtained.

Chemical equations or chemical diagrams are collections of formulae and symbols, forming pictures or illustrations of the state of things before and after that metathesis (interchange of atoms) of molecules which results in the formation of molecules of new substances. So much on formulae.

(2.) In this query you ask how the "reaction" is figured for 26.9 per cent. of sodium; 16.58 per cent. of nitrogen; 56.52 per cent. oxygen, and on which, you state that this "gives the 'formula' for sodium nitrate." The percentages you give are near to that of pure sodium nitrate. Referring to your "formula," it appears that you are indeed on peculiar ground; we do not understand just what you seek. Such a "formula" has the earmarks of a mechanical mixture, and by such a proceeding it would be an odd method to obtain sodium nitrate. The "formula" you give is sodium, plus nitrogen, plus oxygen, and a very doubtful method for obtaining sodium nitrate.

The molecular weight of sodium-nitrate is 85.01, and likewise the "formula" weight, and this weight is obtained by adding together the atomic weights of sodium (23,) nitrogen (14,) with oxygen 16 (or rather three of oxygen) multiplied by three.

Nitrate of soda may be obtained by treating carbonate of soda with nitric acid, as follows: Sodium (2,) carbon (1,) oxygen (3,) plus two of nitric acid, and this will equal sodium nitrate (2,) plus water, plus carbon dioxide. Sodium nitrate is analogous in its chemical properties to potassium nitrate (niter.) You can also form sodium nitrate as follows: Take sodium chloride (common table salt) plus silver nitrate, and the "reaction" will be silver chloride, plus sodium nitrate.

Your last query relates to potassium nitrate, and acid, how to distinguish, etc. Observe that there is no hydrogen in the nitrate, therefore it is not directly) a hydrogen acid. Treat any nitrate with any acid, and nitric acid is formed by a reversible double decomposition. Nitrous acid (hydrogen 1, nitrogen 1, with oxygen 2,) is produced by decomposing nitrates.

Refer to your textbook on the subject of terminations; ite, ous, ic, and so forth.

Infusorial Earth and Kaolin.

MOJAVE, Nov. 10.—Q.: By parcel post I am sending two small claylike pieces of matter. Some of our desert rats say it must be "kaolin," but as we do not know, thought it best to ask The Times to please tell us, and also as to its value (if any?) There is a large deposit of this material about 250 miles from Los Angeles. The deposit, which is a large one, is within one mile of railroad, and high enough to use tram to deliver the material to railroad or station. I am positive that power shovel could be used to mine the material if a market for same could be secured. I will watch the "In the Earth" column and thank you in advance for the desired information. For the desert prospectors.

W. R. J.

A.: Mighty glad to get a line from you representing the friends of the writer—"the desert rats."

In a very few lines we hope to give tests by which you and the mining boys can distinguish between kaolin and infusorial earth. The sample is diatomaceous earth of good quality, and the two given names apply to the same variety of "earth."

Buy a couple of test tubes, a stick of potassium hydrate or that of sodium hydrate (caustic potash;) add to your purchase a few ounces of c. p. sulphuric acid, and an empty four-ounce vial to make a solution with soft water mixed with either of the alkalies referred to.

For kaolin drop a little of the suspected mineral in your test tube, cover it with the acid, and warm the tube and contents over a coal of fire. If the sample is kaolin, the alumina present will be dissolved, and the silica will precipitate. As a matter of fact, this is one of many tests.

On the other hand, suppose you try out for infusorial earth, and you will find that it is not soluble in acids, but it is soluble in the alkali solutions above given, and quickly so when heated.

The deposit you refer to is undoubtedly of value for "packing" around boilers, and in walls. It is also used in the manufacture of dynamite, and in the arts of the perfumer.

Massive Sample Required.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 11.—Q.: Am sending you under separate cover samples of supposed zinc ore. Will you kindly give me analysis and per cent. in zinc, and also value?

J. W. A.

A.: Zinc is present in a few of the minute chips, and in others almandine garnet (microscopical) appears. No satisfactory analysis can be given unless a massive sample of the "ore" is submitted for test, etc.

Tin Not Present.

RICHFIELD (Utah) Nov. 11.—Q.: I mail with this letter two samples of mineral. No. 1, I believe, carries tin, and if so I would like to know about what per cent. I have a vein of this ore about ten feet wide. No. 2 may carry potash (?) if so I would like to know about what per cent.

W. A. N.

A.: No. 1 is in part fire clay with trace of lime, iron oxides, and trace of antimony. No. 2 is lime carbonate in porous formation. Potash present in low percentage.

Manganese-Iron Ore.

WHITTIER, Nov. 12.—Q.: Enclosed is a sample of ore that I broke from a mass which I run across while trailing a deer this summer. I thought it was hematite, and that I had an iron mine, but guess I was mistaken. Can you tell me what it is? Has it any value?

L. B.

A.: It would be well to follow the trail for a better grade ore, and you might "run across" ore more valuable than hematite (iron peroxide.)

Manganese and Calcite.

FRESNO, Nov. 13.—Q.: Found in San Joaquin Valley. Please test and report results in "In the Earth" column.

M.

A.: The whitish sample with rainbow colors showing in "the innards" is crystallized calcite. The iron-black sample is a mixture of iron oxides, manganese dioxide, lime carbonate and aluminum silicate.

Wulfenite.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Nov. 14.—Q.: I send some concentrates washed clear in a pan, and I desire to know if this is vanadium ore.

T.

A.: Vanadium not present. The concentrates are those of lead molybdate, and named mineralogically at the subheading.

Obsidian and Orthoclase.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—Q.: Please tell me what No. 1 is. No. 2 comes from a different locality, and it is in a ledge eighteen inches wide. No. 1 is from near Salton Sea, and No. 2 from twelve miles from Riverside.

L. L. S.

A.: Glad to hear from you. Sample No. 1 is a fine grade of volcanic glass (obsidian,) and No. 2 is potash feldspar. If there was a practical way to "loosen oudt" the potash present in material represented by the samples it would pay to extract it, but the trouble is, at present, that there is no practical way of doing so on a commercial scale.

High-Grade Cinnabar.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Q.: Under separate cover I am forwarding by parcel post two samples of mineral from near Elliot Creek, in Southern Oregon. I am satisfied that the large sample is cinnabar, and ask, respectfully, for mercury percentage. The small cubes were obtained in panning gold at the locality and held back with the gold. What are the cubes?

D. H. A.

A.: Glad to hear from you. Mighty fine cinnabar that! The cubes are cinnabar, also.

Approximately, the large sample carries 72 per cent. mercury.

Xanthite.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—Q.: Here is some of the most peculiar mineral that I ever saw, and I have been a prospector for twenty-two years. When I look at it with my field glass it looks more peculiar. It gets me, sure! Best luck to you and The Times.

L. W.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample is named at the subheading, and it is a variety of idocrase, which occurs in small, round grains that separate with slight force applied. Under the microscope the grains show up as imperfect crystals with foliated texture. Color yellowish; of resinous and splendent lusters. Sp. gr. 3.3.

Not Kaolin.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—Q.: I send you a sample from a claim in Los Angeles county, and I take it to be kaolin. There is quite a lot of it at the claim, which is nine miles from railroad. Please test it and give me report in "In the Earth." I am a prospector, and I thank you for past favors.

O. B.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample is infusorial earth.

Black and White.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—Q.: I now hand you two samples, one white and the other black. I picked these up at a place twelve miles from Riverside. Is the black one pitchblende, and is the white a gem stone? Please tell me if of value.

G. E. L.

A.: The black sample is ilmenite (titanic iron ore.) The clear (you can see through it) crystal sample is calcite (lime carbonate.)

Trachytic and Pegmatitic.

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) Nov. 6.—Q.: The enclosed sample rock comes from the Searchlight district, Nevada, about twenty miles northeast from Searchlight. Would be pleased to know the name of it, and if of any value. The ledge from which it was taken seems to be a genuine ledge running northeast and southwest, with walls on both sides of it. Thanking you in advance.

J. A. S.

A.: It would have been well to "take a squint" at the matter comprising the walls. You might try samples with those interested in certain silicaware manufacture.

Sulphides.

SAN FERNANDO, Nov. 6.—Q.: Will you kindly classify the enclosed sample of ore; tell me if it contained anything of commercial value, and add to favors already shown me. I assure you that your efforts are duly appreciated.

O. C. G.

A.: Very glad to hear from you. Some sample that! It is quite a mixture of sulphides, with "iron alum" in the mass Pryite, chalcopyrite, arsenopyrite, and "peacock iron," with iron oxides are contained in the mass. Manganese trace. Platinum absent. Not assayed for gold.

Low-grade Talc.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Q.: Enclosed please find two samples of rock or mineral. The samples are from Fresno county. What is it?

H. G. S.

A.: Glad to hear from you. Both samples are named at the sub-heading. The greenish sample is the best of the two. No sample is of commercial value.

Quite a Variety.

Q.: Thanking your mineral department for past favors, I am sending you some more samples for analyses to see if the seven samples carry any values. Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are outcrops on one hill. Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 7 are very close together on another hill. All of them from the Funeral Mountains, Inyo county, Cal.

A. S. W.

A.: Glad to get a line from you. No. 1 is micaceous iron ore (var. hematite.) No. 2 is altered jasper-iron, with potash 3 per cent. approximately. No. 3 is copper-stained dolomitic rock; copper present 5.50 per cent. No. 4 quartz, iron, manganese and trace of lead. No. 5 altered rock; silicia, lime, soda and potash present. No. 7 baryte, quartz, lime, iron oxides, with soda, potash and lead traces. No sample tested for gold or silver.

Ferruginous Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7.—Q.: Please assay this rock from Riverside county, California.

J. T. C.

A.: Mica, iron oxides (some of the iron resembling gold) "peacock iron" present in the mass. Lead trace Not assayed for gold or silver.

$15,000,000

—this tremendous sum came into Southern California for the beet sugar crop of 1914. This is the estimate given by the Southern Pacific Railway Company and tallies almost precisely with the figures of the Southern California Beet Growers' Association.

—beet sugar ranks lowest in the wholesale market. It is more costly to reduce, there is more of waste, and it sells slower. The primary demand of the market is for —which rules never less than ten points above the beet sugar price in any market of the world. No tariff legislation nor other cause depreciates the demand and the price of sugar from the real cane.

Cane Sugar

—and Southern California promises to be one of the greatest sugar cane districts of the entire globe through the practical demonstration that in Imperial Valley the cane grows higher, quicker, straighter and with a greater percentage of saccharine matter than anywhere else. Soil, climate and sunshine make CANE a tremendous success and a marvelous possibility.

—there are now known to be thousands of acres just west of

CALIPATRIA

—known as Calipatria and Nile-Land Farms, especially adapted to the growing of sugar cane. This land is available, to a restricted amount, to those ready to buy on EASY TERMS for both the acreage and the water shares (one-fifth down and the balance one, two, three and four years.)

—the discovery of sugar cane possibilities in Southern California is bigger than the finding of gold in 1849. It is one of the greatest "finds" in the richest valley on the continent.

WINTER'S HAND ON CHILDREN.

Snow in Belgium Adds to the Orphans' Misery.

But Many to be Given Homes in Sunny South.

Blanks Now Ready to go Out to Applicants.

Winter in all its fury has settled over the European war zone and from every country engaged in the terrible conflict news dispatches tell of the great suffering caused by the unrelenting elements. For two weeks it has been snowing in Belgium, accentuating the misery and woe of those on the battlefields and those at home. Among the latter are thousands of little orphans who are in crying need of food, clothing and protection.

It was the realization of the deplorable conditions that would prevail in the war-torn country that prompted The Times and the Chicago Tribune recently to institute a movement for the securing of homes for the distressed children, the tots who have been made fatherless and in many instances motherless. The appeals have not fallen on deaf ears in the Southland, scores of representative citizens of Los Angeles and vicinity having joined the humanitarian project by offering to throw open their homes and their hearts to the orphans of Belgium. But more of these kind-hearted and sympathetic people are needed if all the children who are expected to be brought here for distribution are properly housed and taken care of.

It is urged by The Times that all persons desiring to adopt or provide temporary homes for one or more of the orphans mail or telephone at once requests to the War Orphans' Bureau for application blanks. The application blanks have been printed and will be sent tomorrow to those who have already asked for them.

THEY'LL BE HERE SOON.

The plan of The Times and the Chicago Tribune is to provide homes in the United States for as many of the war orphans as possible. Ultimately it is planned to extend the offer to all of the countries engaged in battle, but for the present attention is directed to the Belgian children. At an early date the first delegation of them is expected to arrive in New York and many of them will be brought direct to Los Angeles. Upon their arrival here it is planned to furnish them a temporary home where all of the applicants who have been approved by the committee which is to be appointed in the near future may visit them. They will be assigned to the homes chosen by another committee.

Approval of the efforts of this newspaper to find homes for the orphans is coming from all sides. Many prominent persons have offered to give their services to the movement, which they have commended in the highest terms. The following letter was received yesterday from Julius [illegible] Brown, president of the board of directors of the Children's Home Society of California:

"Noting the praiseworthy effort of The Times to provide family homes for Belgian children made orphans by the war, the Children's Home Society of California desires to offer its co-operation in the accomplishment of this object.

"This society is licensed by the State Board of Charities and Corrections to do this work and during the last two years it has placed dependent children in 749 selected homes. It is organized to have its representatives throughout the State visit the homes of its wards until they are legally adopted or until they attain their majority, which is a very important part of the work."

ementing his request for an application blank, Lewis S. Steele, a prominent business man of Highland, Cal., wrote the following:

"About six years ago my wife and I decided that Christmas wasn't Christmas at all without a kiddie in the house. Having none of our own we applied to the Children's Home Society of Los Angeles and secured a little baby girl just three weeks old. Now she is as happy as a lark and all ready to start to school next term. The only thing that she wants is a little sister, so we have talked the matter over and have decided to make application for one. Kindly send us the necessary blank.

"We are able to give both of them as good a home as any child needs, also the best educational advantages. Thanking you for your attention to the matter for us and wishing you all sorts of success in the grand work you are doing, I am, etc."

Similar letters have been received from numerous people in the Southland and it appears certain that before the campaign in the interests of the orphans is concluded applications will be received for all of the tots that are brought from the warring countries.

Startling.

WOMAN LED TO BIGAMY BY FAKED DIVORCE?

STARTLING developments followed each other rapidly yesterday in the Lorenzo Romans matrimonial tangle. The most striking was the denial of having obtained a divorce from Mrs. Romans on the part of George C. Martindale, despite the fact that he went to Nevada and lived for about six months in that State, ostensibly for the sole purpose of a legal separation, according to the allegations of Mrs. Romans.

When apprised that her second husband had never secured legal separation, Mrs. Ramons was nonplussed, staggered for the moment. "I cannot understand such an assertion," she declared.

Securing all of the facts in the matter, she declared she could not understand the manner in which Martindale had treated her. "I can only imagine that his course of action was for revenge," she stated.

"We were never really man and wife. I married him only to please my mother and he probably thought that after marriage it would be easy to win my love. This never happened and shortly after coming West we decided on a permanent separation and Martindale went to Nevada. He remained for half a year and when he came back declared the divorce had been granted and we were both free to go our ways."

Admitting that under such circumstances, had she been fully aware of them, there would have been no right to marry Lorenzo Romans, she stated that the matter would be continued to a court hearing on her original action for divorce, which is to be taken up December 30. "Such a turn does not alter the fact that Mr. Romans treated me with cruelty," she insisted.

"All of this is going to lead to a complete washing of the slate, a clearing up of every charge that has been so wrongfully brought against me," she said. "It is going to prove that my first husband, John C. Harris, is dead; that Martindale has been untruthful; that I was never married to John W. Jourdan, and it will give me freedom from Romans.

"And when all of this has been accomplished, I'm going to win in the world of achievement. I'm not guilty and not afraid to face these charges. I'm going to prove it."

Mrs. Romans has aspirations as a musician and is fitting herself to become a professional pipe organ player. She has already accomplished considerable in this direction and has played at St. Paul's pro-cathedral, where Prof. Ernest Douglas is teaching her. "When I have arrived in this chosen profession people will overlook and forget the wrongs that have been done me and the mud that has been splashed on my name," she declared.

HOSPITAL MONEY STOLEN.

Burglar Takes Contributions to Children's Institution but Throws Other Money on Floor.

A burglar entered the Children's Hospital at Sunset boulevard and Vermont avenue early yesterday morning and stole $20 which had been contributed to the "Hospital fund." At the same time he picked up a purse containing $5. He decamped with the $20 but threw the purse and the $5 on the floor. Such discrimination on the part of the thief is puzzling the police.

Entrance to the hospital was made by means of a stepladder, the burglar climbing through a rear window and making his way to the office. He ransacked the superintendent's desk and found the $20 in an envelope marked "Contributions to the Hospital Fund." The purse with the $5 was in another drawer.

STEALING AUTOS BY WHOLESALE.

REMARKABLE FIGURES FROM THE RECORDS OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA CLUB.

The records of the Southern California Automobile Club, now located in permanent quarters at No. 1344 South Figueroa street, show the astonishing fact that, reported through that organization alone, 462 automobiles have been stolen during the past eight months, inflicting an approximate loss of $150,000 on their owners.

All of the cars except sixty-five have been recovered, but the estimated average cost of these and the repairs necessarily made to the 397 cars recovered, always after reckless abuse and often after being stripped of their expensive equipment, make up the aggregate loss.

Of the 462 cars stolen in the eight months, 239 were insured and 223 uninsured; of the sixty-five never recovered, thirty-four were insured and thirty-one uninsured.

The officers of the club estimate that there are in Southern California 60,000 automobiles, most of them in the city of Los Angeles. Each owner has paid to the State $20 in tax and license fees, a total of $1,200,000, which goes to show the vast importance of the automobile as a contributor to the funds of the State, and also the investment of the owners that calls for the best possible protection from theft.

The Automobile Club officers are now endeavoring to work out a plan by which owners of machines may be less subject to the depredations of what they believe to be an organized gang of thieves with branches in other cities and States.

EXTRA-FINE fruit, vegetable and alfalfa land can now be bought in Calipatria Farms of Imperial Valley for $65 an acre ($18 an acre cash.) See Carl F. Schader, 610 Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles.

ally to 14 degrees above zero and thermometers placed close to the ground have registered several degrees lower. That means severe frost. The lowest temperature in Imperial Valley has been 26, and there has been but one killing frost since the valley was settled.

The most formidable enemy of sugar cane in the South and in Hawaii is the borer. Mr. Davie and other sugar men say that the Southwestern "desert" regions have little or nothing to fear from that quarter as the extended periods of hot, dry weather do not permit the borer to thrive. Imperial Valley men believe they will have the same advantage in this respect as that enjoyed by the cotton growers there, whose crops are virtually immune from the boll weevil.

Some experiments have been made in Imperial Valley with Mexican cane and the results indicate that heavier crops and greater sugar content may be expected than have been obtained in Arizona.

Experimental growing of sugar beets, covering long periods and directed by experts, have demonstrated that Imperial Valley can produce more tons to the acre and more sugar to the ton than any other part of the State, but the farmers of the valley are not disposed to grow beets, which require much hand labor during the season of cultivation. Cane is cultivated in much the same manner as corn and is harvested by cutting with heavy cane knives, wielded by men standing.

GROWERS' NET PROFITS.

If Imperial Valley farmers plant 500 or more acres to cane this year, as now seems probable, the Western Sugar Company will contract for the crop. Mr. Davie says the Glendale factory, as now equipped, could handle that quantity in addition to the Arizona output and that the factory's capacity could be increased at no great expense for additional equipment.

The price offered for cane is $3 per ton. The success of the first year's crop in Imperial Valley, therefore, will depend to a considerable extent on how much it costs the grower to get his product to the factory. Preliminary negotiations indicate that a freight rate of $1.25 per ton will be fixed. Mr. Davie says his company will undoubtedly be willing to pay half this amount as it has already agreed to pay about 60 cents per ton for freight from Salt River Valley points.

Men who are preparing to plant cane in Imperial Valley believe the average production there will be fully forty tons and that the net profit to the growers will be $40 to $70 per acre. If the first year's crop proves as successful and profitable as conditions seem to warrant, the acreage will undoubtedly be increased the following year sufficiently to warrant the erection of at least one large factory. Mr. Davie and other men who know the cane sugar industry and have recently investigated the possibilities of cane culture in Imperial Valley, say that 20,000 acres of cane coud be grown there without conflicting with any other industry—an area that would produce 1,000,000 bags of sugar annually with a market value of nearly $5,000,000.

TUMBLES DOWN STAIRS.

Burglar in His Haste to Get Away When Frightened Believed to Have Been Injured.

Frightened by the screams of Mrs. James Foote when she heard him prowling around in her home at No. 1623 Essex street shortly before daylight yesterday morning, a burglar made a hasty retreat. He traveled so fast, in fact, that he fell down stairs.

Mrs. Foote said the man stumbled from the top of the stairs to the bottom and cried out as though suffering intense pain. The police are looking for a man walking on crutches who cannot give a good accounting.

GET THE STAGE SECRET OF HEALTHY HAIR

Though wigs are often used in special parts played by actresses, it is a notable fact they all have beautiful, natural hair which is the result of sensible care only. Their only secret is care. Not strenuous, but regular. In washing the hair it is not advisable to use a makeshift, but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth. —[Advertisement.

To Ward Off Winter Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all winter, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Rough, chapped or discolored skin, inevitable in this weather, is gently absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, the latter being applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear conspicuous at this season, because of alternating expansion and contraction of the skin, due to changing temperatures. I advise you to try this simple treatment. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drugstore and use like cold cream. This will help any skin at once, and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably youthful and healthy.

Winds and flying dust often cause squinting and other contortions which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every wrinkle, however produced, by using a harmless face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel.

SOUTHLAND IS RICH IN ITS IRRIGATED LANDS.

Federal Engineer Reports that Nine Southern Counties Have Reclaimed Nearly a Million Acres at a Cost of Seventy-two Million Dollars—Imperial Leads in Area, with Los Angeles County Next.

THE rapidly rising thermometer of agricultural progress in Southern California received an official reading yesterday when C. E. Tait, United States engineer in charge of irrigation investigations in this ditsrict, made public his report that 87,000 additional acres of fertile land have been brought under irrigation and 2000 new pumping plants installed within the past two-year period under observation. The nine southern counties now have 926,316 acres under irrigation, which has involved the combined outlay of more than $72,000,000 in the construction of the projects, exclusive of the $25,000,000 Los Angeles Aqueduct.

As the major portion of this vast irrigation development has been achieved recently, it is to be accepted as a reliable indication of a great impetus in extensive farm and orchard planting, according to Mr. Tait.

Within the past few years Imperial county has forged to the front with the largest area of irrigated farm land, 296,500 acres. The counties next in order are Los Angeles with 192,083 acres, Inyo, 102,690 acres; San Bernardino, 102,615 acres; Riversire, 99,892 acres; Orange, 53,000 acres; Ventura, 39,190 acres; San Diego, 20,180 acres, and Santa Barbara, 17,466 acres. A detailed survey of Southern California by the Bureau of Irrigation Investigations shows that Los Angeles county possesses the greatest area of land which will ultimately be irrigated, or 431,500 acres. The present defined limitations of the greatest irrigation development eventually to take place in other counties are Riverside, 424,000 acres; Imperial, 416,500 acres; Santa Barbara, 195,000 acres; San Bernardino, 193,000 acres; Ventura, 127,000 acres; San Diego, 87,100 acres, and Orange county, 60,000 acres. In all of these counties irrigation enterprises of greater or less magnitude have been inaugurated with a view to bringing the maximum extent of arable land under irrigation as soon as possible in order to profit by the enormously increased production resulting from the use of water.

SANTA BARBARA'S DAM.

Aside from the colossal engineering feat of the Los Angeles Aqueduct and the successful diversion of the Colorado River water in Imperial Valley, the most recent large water conservation project to engage public attention is that of the Gibraltar dam in the city of Santa Barbara's model water system.

Engineer J. B. Lippincott, who is superintending the construction, reports that the dam, which is located on the Santa Ynez River, is progressing rapidly and that the foundation already has been reared to the level of the stream bed. The total cost of the Gibraltar dam will be $500,000. It is to be the arch type of solid masonry. The dam is 160 feet high and eight feet across and contains 58,000 cubic yards of concrete. The gorge which it spans is 360 feet in width, and the water will be backed up for a distance of three miles.

Santa Barbara will receive 16,000-acre feet of water from this source when the reservoir is completed next year, most of which will be utilized for domestic purposes, but enough of it diverted for the irrigation of about 11,000 acres of land near Santa Barbara and Montecito. Santa Barbara's water system, including the Gibraltar reservoir now under construction and the Santa Ynez tunnel, aiready finished, which is four miles long, represents an expenditure of $1,400,000.

The recent purchase by the city of San Diego of the entire water system of the Southern California Water Company, including the Barrett dam site, for $2,500,000, is another item of importance in the south's general irrigation progress. San Diego also has acquired the extremely valuable Moreno reservoir for the consideration of $1,000,000 as a provision for future water supply. It is stated that negotiations are now pending for additional water rights on the San Diego and San Luis Rey rivers.

PALO VERDE SYSTEM.

A ditch system is being constructed in the Palo Verde district, which when completed will cover 47,500 acres of desert land, well adapted to the cultivation of semi-tropical fruits and vegetables. At present 25,000 acres of this land has an abundance of water.

Victor Valley is the scene of a great irrigation agitation at the present moment. An appeal has been made to the United States government to establish a reclamation project in the vicinity of this valley for the development of a better water supply. Engineer J. B. Lippincott of Los Angeles has just been engaged by the people of this district to make investigations of the water resources on the Mojave River with the view of demonstrating the feasibility of a Federal reclamation project. Another source of water considered by the Victor Valley people, is that of the Arrowhead reservoir, which when completed will have a capacity of 61,000-acre feet, from which probably 100,000 acres can be irrigated. The Arrowhead dam, although partially finished, has been abandoned for the time being by its promoters, because of a lack of funds.

The voting of bonds in district No. 3 of the San Fernando Valley, to cover the acquisition of sufficient water to irrigate 70,000 acres, has passed and the district will be annexed to Los Angeles. The water will be available for the irrigating season next year.

The new Bear Valley dam of the Bear Valley Mountain Water Company, near Redlands, cost $135,000. It has a capacity of 65,065-acre feet and will irrigate a large area.

Concluding his report, Mr. Tait commented on the remarkable increase in the number of pumping plants in Southern California. "Within the past two years through the activity of growers and other farm-land developers over 2000 new pumping plants have been installed in this district, making the number all told more than 10,000 out of the grand total of 12,000 for the entire State," he said. "My observations in Southern California lead me to most emphatically concur with Sir William Willcox, the celebrated British engineer, in his declaration that no place in the world has so effectively made use of irrigation opportunities as has Southern California.

"There are more pumping plants in Southern California than in any other district in the United States and water, whether pumped from wells or diverted from streams, is made to serve a higher duty by being applied more economically and more scientifically than elsewhere."

THEY PAY AS ALL GOOD MEN SHOULD.

RUSH AT COLLECTOR'S OFFICE TO PURCHASE THE LATEST REVENUE STAMPS.

The rush at the office of Collector Carter yesterday, of business men to purchase stamps, required by the latest tax of the "new freedom" administration, broke all records for similar occasions in the Federal Building.

The line extended through the office out into the hallway of the third floor and thence into the office of the collector, and even that did not accommodate all callers, for two rooms occupied by the Collector of Customs further down the hall, were utilized, and that was filled all day by taxpayers eager to get in out of the wet before the delinquent period begins.

All classes of dealers were represented in the throng, from the little fellow conducting a small business to the big dealer, one of the latter class investing in 200,000 stamps for use in his transactions.

The rush continued until the hour for closing the office last night, and today the enlarged force of the collector will be at work on the book making ready for the final day of stamp purchasing tomorrow, when it is the intention of the collector to close down the collections at the usual hour of 4:30 p.m.

The collections for the month closing tomorrow night are certain to set a high mark, in fact, the highest in the history of the local internal revenue office, but they will not be available until the close of business for the month of November.

The new stamp tax hits thousands of dealers in the internal revenue district, but everybody appears to be paying over the money due with all the equanimity they are able to summon.

YOUTHFUL BURGLAR.

He is Caught Stealing with the Nerve of an Adult—Sent to Detention Home.

Sam Vermont Smith, 11 years old, was caught stealing in the grocery store of William Jagow, No. 1212 West Jefferson street, early yesterday morning. Later he was sent to the Detention Home.

Lieut. Mart and Patrolman Stevens of the University Station made the arrest. They declare the boy is one of the youngest burglars caught in a long time and that he showed the nerve of an adult. He had gathered considerable loot and was starting to leave when the officers captured him.

The boy lives with his father at No. 3422 Tallman street. The parent was near the store when the arrest was made, but his explanation to the officers that his son ran away from and he was searching from him was accepted.

Corns Quit, Pains Stop, With "Gets-It"

Quit Plasters, Salves and What-Nots.

After using "GETS-IT" once you will never again have occasion for asking: "What can I do to get rid of my corns," "GETS-IT" is the first sure, certain corn-ender ever known.

Why "Suffer-Yet" With Corns? Use "GETS-IT." They'll Vanish!
VOTES FOR GETS-IT

If you have tried other things by the score and will now try "GETS-IT," you will realize this glorious fact.

You probably are tired sticking on tape that won't stay stuck, plasters that shift themselves right onto your corn, contraptions that make a bundle on your toe and press right down on the corn. Put two drops of "GETS-IT" on that corn in two seconds. The corn is then doomed as sure as night follows day. The corn shrivels. There's no pain, no fuss. If you think this sounds too good to be true, try it tonight on any corn, callous, wart or bunion.

WARFIELD TO REMAIN.

Gertrude Hoffman in Revue Spectacle, Orpheum.

Dainty "Louisiana Lou" is to Visit Morosco.

Laugh with "Charley's Aunt" at Burbank.

David Warfield's appearance here is always one of the notable theatrical events of the season, for there is no name before the public today that appeals more potently to theater-goers, both young and old. And to associate his name this season with that of "The Auctioneer" makes his appearance here doubly interesting, not only because it is his greatest play, but because it was the one in which he made his first great success.

The second and last week of Mr. Warfield's engagement at the Mason Operahouse in the quaint, whimsical and lovable character of Simon Levi, begins tomorrow night, and judging from the enormous demand, it would seem that the engagement will be all too brief.

May Robson, the popular comedienne, is to follow Mr. Warfield on December 7 in "Martha-by-the-Day," a stage version of Julie M. Lippman's amusing "Martha" stories, and a vehicle said to afford Miss Robson opportunity for full play of her comedy gifts.

Majestic.

"The Whip" is proving so popular at the Majestic that it is to be continued for another week. Packed houses every night have witnessed the thrilling spectacle handed out by the big Drury Lane melodrama, the play of punch.

The theater-goers of the world never really lost their love for melodrama, and "The Whip" is a melodrama de luxe, the most spectacular of them all, with its realistic horse races and train wrecks and hunting scenes.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson makes his farewell appearance in Los Angeles at the Majestic Theater commencing Monday, December 7, opening in "Hamlet." Kipling's "The Light that Failed," and Jerome's "Passing of the Third Floor Back,' are other plays in which Mr. Forbes-Robertson will appear.

Morosco.

"Louisiana Lou," a nationally famous musical comedy, with an all-star cast, and a list of clever specialties, is the offering of the Gaiety Company at the Morosco tomorrow night and all next week. "Louisiana Lou" was the starring vehicle of the famous Sophie Tucker, and she considered it her best play.

In attending "Louisiana Lou" you will be aiding the Children's Hospital, for an arrangement has been made whereby a share of every dollar taken in during the run of this production will go to the kiddies.

Grace Edmund, delightful prima donna, will head the cast, and Harry Gribbon, comedian beloved of Los Angeles theater-goers, is to have the best role he has yet played, the role made famous by Barney Bernard. Mae Emory is to have the part which Sophie Tucker made famous. One of the big features will be a wonderful dance, participated in by dainty Bessie de Voie and Frank Martin. Miss De Voie will also play her original role in the piece in which she appeared at the Mason a couple of seasons ago.

Billy Clifton, Neal Burns, Ted Wilson, Edward Clark and all the Gaiety favorites will have suitable roles. The chorus effects and dance numbers promise to be the most spectacular ever offered by the Gaiety Company.

A number of the famous beauty chorus in "Let's Get Married" have again joined the Gaiety forces.

Burbank.

"Charley's Aunt," funniest of force comedies, will be presented by the Burbank Company next week.

"Charley's Aunt" is an institution in the farce world, and has secured laughs in nearly every language in the world. Hundreds of thousands of people have laughed at and with "Charley's Aunt."

Manager Morosco and Director Donald Bowles have cast the characters in a way that promises the best kind of show, with the versatile Forrest Stanley in the role of the irrepressible Jack Chesney, aided and abetted by college students, Donald Bowles and Walter Catlett, a trio that should be hard to beat. Thomas McLarnie, Howard Scott, James K. Applebee and George Rand, all have suitable parts. The women of the company also appear to be well cast, including Grace Travers as Kitty Verdun, Beatrice Nichols as Ella Delahay, and Winifred Bryson and Florence Oberle in good parts.

Orpheum.

Gertrude Hoffman, the famous dancer, and her fifty performers, in a big spectacular revue, headlines the Orpheum bill next week. The act runs an hour, has twelve beautiful scenes and uses two cars of scenery. A corps of musicians augments the Orpheum orchestra. The act embraces dance numbers, imitations, tango exhibitions, feature songs, and there are Arabian acrobats, whirling dervishes, Japanese geishas, Parisian cocottes, travesties and what not. Musically, it need only be said that Max Hoffman wields the baton to assure everyone of its worth.

It is said that Miss Hoffman is given most excellent opportunity for her marvelous versatility in the production, being equally at home in song, dance, imitation, travesty, and all the rest, a continual wonder in her quick changes of personality.

The remainder of the bill includes Swor and Mack, in their imitations of southern negroes; Edward Miller and Helene Vincent in song and dance stuff; Meehan's canines; Claude Gilden, the Australian card sharp; Joseph Jefferson, Blanche Bender and company in "Poor Old Jim."

Pantages.

Jimmy Clabby returns to Los Angeles next week to headline the new Pantages bill. For the information of those grossly ignorant of matters of the ring, let it be announced that Jimmy Clabby is the middleweight champion of the world. Appearing with him is Joe Welling, Chicago lightweight, said to be a clever lad, and Artie McQueen, with whose assistance Clabby will give a sparring exhibition.

The remainder of the programme promises to be one of the best of the season. It includes Leon and the Adeline Sisters in a pantomimic comedy, Elwood and Snow with a ventriloquial novelty, Hugo Lutjens, the Swedish monologist, and Work and Play, acrobatic jesters.

The Colonial Minstrel Maids in an All-Girl Minstrel show is another of the attractions.

Loew's Empress.

The noted character actor, Thomas J. Ryan, with his company, will appear in "Mag Haggerty's Father," at the Empress next week. He is well known in this city, and his playlet

TOM MIX IS AT CLUNE'S.

"The Rose of the Rancho" is Tally Offering.

May Irwin Makes Movie Bow at Superba.

Fairy Patchwork Girl to Visit the Mozart.

The Selig masterpiece, "In the Days of the Thundering Cloud," with Tom Mix in the leading role, is to be the feature film at Clune's Auditorium next week.

The photoplay is a vivid picture of the days of forty-nine, when the fierce Sioux and Pawnee made it dangerous to cross the plains, and huge herd of buffalo roamed the prairies.

The piece shows Tom Mix as a pony express rider and Bessie Eyton as a venturesome girl who wants to seek gold, and their adventures in crossing to California via the prairie schooner route. Their caravan is attacked by Indians, and every one is killed except these two, who are captured by the savages. There are many thrilling battles and hair-breadths 'scapes, and the film graphically portrays the hard life of the forty-niner.

The piece is well staged, the pictures being a series of Frederic Remington paintings come to life.

Clune's Broadway.

"The Unrest," a psychological study, featuring Tom Santschi and Bessie Eyton, is the principal offering at Clune's Broadway, the first part of next week. The action centers around a young man of good social standing who is suddenly and unaccountably seized with a desire to lead the life of a Bowery tough. The study of his hallucination and his restoration to reason form the interest of the play.

Other offerings are a Vitagraph comedy, "Curing Myra May," and a Biograph drama, "His Old Pal's Sacrifice."

Beginning Thursday the bill will be divided between fun and earnest. "Four Times a Veteran," a George Ade Fable, "Sophie's Fatal Wedding," "The Rival Stage Line," and others will form the bill.

Tally's Broadway.

"The Rose of the Rancho," featuring beautiful Bessie Barriscale, who, with other stars in the cast, acted in the original Belasco production of the play, will be the offering at Tally's Broadway, during the coming week.

The piece is of tense dramatic interest. Also, having been staged in the California mission country, for the most part in the exact locations in which the action of the play is laid by the author, it is scenically one of the most beautiful which has been produced. No money or pains was spared in making for the artistic perfection of the film and the result is said to be a marvel in moving-picture artistry.

The "Rose of the Rancho" required several months in the making, and is said to have cost $50,000.

Quinn's Superba.

May Irwin will make her first bow in films, at Quinn's Superba, tomorrow, when the comedienne will be seen in the Famous Players' version of her great success, "Mrs. Black is Back." Being a past mistress in the art of facial expression and pantomime, Miss Irwin promises to be a huge success in pictures.

In the character of "Mrs. Black,"

Music.

GREAT VIOLIN ARTIST COMING.

ARRIGO SERATO SLATED FOR TRINITY DECEMBER EIGHT.

Two Big Organ Recitals on Calendar for Coming Week—People's Orchestra to Give Fourth Concert at Temple Auditorium Today. Death of Ignaz Haroldi Mourned.

Few, but none the less interesting, are the musical events announced for the current week, so it is not amiss to take a peek ahead and "see what's doin'," for even the financial drain which is synonymous with the Savior's birthday has never yet managed to quell the ardor of the real music lover.

Hence the approaching performance of Handel's grand old "Messiah," scheduled for Christmas week at Trinity, must of necessity be jotted down in the date book as one of the treats that must not be missed.

The affair will be doubly interesting, and doubtless doubly worth while, too, owing to the fact that recently our two great choral organizations, the People's Chorus and the Festival Choir, have been consolidated under the name of the Los Angeles Oratorio Society.

It is a splendid example of co-operation, and the leaders of the two old societies, Eduardo Lebegott and Frederick Brueschweiler, have joined forces to make the new venture a marked success.

Already the work of rehearsing "The Messiah" has advanced considerably, so much so that after Tuesday no new voices will be accepted by Brueschweiler, who is to wield the baton. Later on Lebegott will direct Beethoven's "Messe Solennelle," which will be presented with the assistance of his orchestra.

Of course, in affairs of this sort it is the chorus work which ranks in importance, but it is none the less interesting to scan the array of really capable artists who have been secured as soloists. Those for "The Messiah" are Mrs. Myrtle Pryibil Colby, soprano; Alice Lohr, contralto; Fred C. McPherson, baritone; C. Hayden Jones, tenor, and Frank H. Colby at the organ.

People's Orchestra.

And, speaking of Lebegott calls to mind that today, at Temple Auditorium, the People's Orchestra will give its fourth concert. The programme is decidedly interesting, the opening number, for example, being the Caucasian Suite by Ippoletow-Iwanow, the Russian composer, which he wrote in 1895 after an exhaustive study of the music of the various races.

Another feature which bids fair to be popular is the 'cello solo by Walter Ammann. He will offer the Golterman Concerto in A Minor. The composer himself is a 'cellist of renown.

Mme. Lebegott is to be vocal soloist and will sing the Jewel aria from "Faust," the complete programme for the concert including:

1. Caucasian Sketches ....M. Ippoletow-Iwanow
   Suite in four parts:
   (a) "In the Mountains."
   (b) "In the Village."
   (c) "In the Mosque."
   (d) "Procession of the Savior."
2. Concerto in A Minor for 'cello and orchestra .... George Colterman
   Walter Ammann, 'cello soloist.
3. (a) "Minuet" ....Beethoven
   (b) Intermezzo, "Jewels of the Madonna"... .... Wolf-Ferrari
4. Jewel aria from "Faust"...................Gounod
   Mme. Adelina Lebegott, soprano, soloist.
5. Semiramide Overture ....Rossini

Ray Hastings Recital.

And tonight at 7 o'clock, at the Temple Baptist Church, Ray Hastings will give the fourth of his series of Wagner recitals. The success of those which have preceded augur well for tonight, and the programme itself is well worth serious consideration. Here it is: Prelude, "Lohengrin;" funeral hymn, "Tannhauser;" Good Friday music, "Parsifal;" "Dreams;" finale, "Tristan and Isolde."

Sessions Recital.

And on Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at Christ Church, Archibald Sessions will give the second of his organ recitals, with H. Clifford Lott, baritone, as soloist. Although stated before, it is pertinent to once more mention that these recitals are free to all, owing to the generosity of a large list of patrons, and also to remind those who have been accustomed to attend in other years that this year they come in the afternoon and not at night as heretofore. The following programme is announced:

"Marche Triomphale" ....Callaerts
Largo (from "New World" Symphony.......Dvorak Requested numbers:
"The Nightingale and the Rose" ("Parysatis") .... Saint Saens
"Evening Star" ("Tannhauser")...............Wagner
"Gavotte" ("Mignon") ....Thomas
Andante (Fifth Symphony) ....Beethoven
Baritone:
(a) "Feldeinsamkeit" ....Brahms
(b) "Sonntag" ....Brahms
(c) "Minnelied" ....Brahms
"Chant Pastorale" ....Dubois
"Marche Militaire" ....Schubert

Neuhaus on Friday.

Slated for an appearance at the Little Theater on Friday, December 4, is Estella Neuhaus, a Hungarian-German pianiste, who has been scoring heavily in the East recently. One can get some idea of her worth through the quoting of a well-known New York critic, who says, "She seemed rather to revitalize the composer than to merely interpret his meaning," while another declares her reminiscent of De Pachmann and adds that "she will not sacrifice beauty of tone for noise."

Serato Coming.

Looking ahead to Tuesday week, one finds on the calendar, as third event of the first Philharmonic series, at Trinity, the name of Arrigo Serato. He is ranked as one of the greatest violinists of the day and, though youngest of them all, finds his name coupled with those of Kreisler, Elman, Zimbalist, etc.

He is an Italian, but some peculiar strata of mind turned his attention toward the German, with the result that his greatest forte lies in the works of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms. His programme will be printed next Sunday.

Sorely Missed.

A brilliant figure in the local music world passed into the great beyond early last week. He was Ignaz Haroldi, the great Polish violin virtuoso. Death came at Altadena, through the agency of Bright's disease.

A close friend and co-worker sums up his art by saying: "Haroldi was often called 'the Poet of the 'Violin' because of the poetic beauty of his interpretations. With his bow he gave words to songs that are wordless. He ran the gamut of moods from the brilliant and richly sensuous to tones of liquid sweetness, as delicate as the tracery of a frost flower.

"He played as Keats might have played; he painted tone pictures with the mastery of a Botticelli, with the warmth of a Del Sarto, yet always with a simplicity of style which appealed first to the heart—to the intellect afterward.

"Possessed of a remarkable technic, he did not parade it to the detriment of interpretation. In a word, tricks and trickery found no place in Haroldi's playing.

"He was an artist who scorned curious by-paths, and who adhered to virile interpretations which made all things real and humanly beautiful. He was among the few who made music the language of all nations."

Ignaz Haroldi,
The Los Angeles violin virtuoso, who died early last week.

Arrigo Serato,
One of the most noted Italian violin virtuosos in the world, who is slated to play at Trinity Auditorium on December 8 as third number of the first Philharmonic series.

MUSIC NOTES.

Walter Balfour, recently returned from Europe, and a baritone of unusual value, has recently taken up his residence in Los Angeles and is available for some really unique concert work. Departing from the beaten path with its conventional concert and recital programmes, with its operatic arias and groups of French and German songs, Balfour has made a specialty of modern song cycles with English words. Included in his interesting repertoire are oriental songs, songs of loyalty, of jest, of valor, English love songs, etc., which he combines in entertaining programmes to suit the exigencies of the occasion.

Carl Wilhelm Johansen, the baritone, assisted by Gladys Mae Gayler at the piano, gave a song recital at the Orange apartments last Wednesday. Following was the programme: "Requiem" (Homer,) "Dearest" (Homer,) "Banjo Song" (Homer,) "Rolling Down to Rio" (Kipling,) "Mother o' Mine" (Kipling.) Mr. Johansen; "Waltzing Doll" (Paldini,) "To a Wild Rose" (McDowell,) Miss Gayler; "Queen of the Earth" (Pinsuti,) "Absent" (Metcalf,) "A Swan" (Grieg,) "Invictus" (Huhn,) Mr. Johansen.

Andrew Saltzer of Sawtelle has recently composed a new ballad, "When the Evening Star is Brightly Shining," which is already "catching on" among local musicians. It is understood that it will receive public presentation shortly at Trinity.

ANOTHER BELGIAN BENEFIT.

The faculty of the State Normal School, assisted by the Girls' Glee Club and members of the student body, will give an entertainment in the school auditorium Wednesday evening, the proceeds to go to the Belgian relief fund. Elizabeth E. Keppie of the reading department will read "When Bunty Pulls the Strings." Bertha Winslow Vaughn and Arthur A. McCurda, also members of the faculty, will render musical selections.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Justice McKenna of the Supreme Court has broken all precedents in deciding the boundary controversy between North Carolina and Tennessee by drawing an exact outline of the location and not relying upon verbal descriptions of the line. The drawing will be inserted into the printed opinion, which will be the first opinion in a decade to be illustrated.

Gen. Hugh Lennox Scott, succeeding Gen. Wotherspoon as Chief of Staff of the army, the latter having reached the age limit after forty-one years of service, was the first officer honored with a promotion by President Wilson after he became President. Following a brilliant tour of duty on the Mexican frontier as the cavalry commander at El Paso, he was ordered to Washington as Gen. Wotherspoon's successor when the latter was named to succeed Gen. Wood as head of the General Staff.

John Davis Long, Secretary of the Navy in President McKinley's administration, has just celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday. He spent the day at his law offices in Boston, where he has been engaged in legal work since 1902.

William Maxwell, the author of business books, to say nothing of a play and numerous short stories, is, unlike most writers, a practical business man. He was born in Illinois, and has been successively a canvasser, law student, clerk in a law office, credit and collection manager, sales manager, and general manager. In 1911 he joined the executive force of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., of which he is now second vice-president.

Thomas Mott Osborne of Auburn, N. Y., a rich man who for a long time has been an amateur worker for prison reform, is to have a chance to test his theories in one of the hardest jobs known to penology. He has accepted the wardenship of Sing Sing and will begin his task on December 1 as the successor of Thomas J. McCormick, who was removed three weeks ago.

THINGS UNUSUAL.

Harold Fishbein, 15 years old, has entered the University of Chicago as the youngest student ever admitted to the institution. His mother can neither read nor write. His father is versed only in Hebrew. Harold entered grammar school when 6 years old, graduated at 11, and finished high school in three years.

Riley Bradford of Friendship, Me., has the oldest continuous subscription to a Portland paper. This subscription has been in the Bradford family ever since the paper was first issued in 1800.

James Sutherland, a blacksmith at Redding, has recently received a check for $100 from the Canadian government for services rendered by him in Nova Scotia in 1866. During the Fenian raid of that year, when Canada was alarmed from one end to the other, thousands joined the militia and Sutherland with others drilled faithfully in Novia Scotia.

When "Betty T.," his pet Pomeranian dog, died recently Herman B. Duryea of Westbury, N. Y., encased it in a hermetically sealed satin-lined coffin, and hired a special train to take it to Hickory Valley, Tenn., for burial. The dog was valued at $5000. It was about 2½ years old. Mr. Duryea has an estate at Hickory Valley and the burial of Betty T. was the second that has taken place from his stock of pet dogs.

Rev. Alexander Sharp of the Presbyterian Church at Columbus, Ind., who recently returned from a two-months' vacation abroad, told his audience that the last sermon he delivered to his congregation here before he left was an earnest plea for universal peace. Before departing he placed the sermon in his desk; on his return he opened his desk, intending to reread the sermon, but he found that mice had eaten his universal peace effort.

Made in U. S. A.

The duty of every American at this time of national trial is to purchase goods made in the United States—in order that our own American citizens may get all the work that is possible during the present business depression.

So far as watches are concerned—patriotism and self interest go hand in hand—not only are our own special watches made by American workmen—in the Waltham—the Elgin—the Howard and the Hamilton factories—here on American soil—But they are watches of the very highest quality and are sold to the public at the very lowest prices—priced to meet the keenest competition.

By buying from us an American watch you not only help to keep American workmen employed—instead of workmen in foreign countries—but you get a better article besides saving the entire duty levied upon imported goods.

We carry a full line of the newest models—made by the Elgin—the Waltham—the Howard and the Hamilton factories. Each movement is selected for its own particular value—All are of superior quality and high grade workmanship. We have since 1881 specialized on the best products of these four factories. No one watch company has all the best watches. Each one has some one grade which for quality and price is better than that made by other factories. Therefore, we always select from these four factories the watch that is best in all points for the interests of our customers. Quality and price always considered.

Our watches, as far as we can carry it out, are special-made watches for our own special trade—different in style—in appearance—in quality from the average every-day, commonplace watch and all this value and merit does not cost you one cent extra—All the thought—the experience—the knowledge needed to produce our exclusive ideas in watches is given to the department by our watch men—to increase the volume of its sales.

We suggest as a practical gift—Give an American-made watch. What is better than a watch for your Christmas gift? It is a personal gift of practical use and definite value.

Jim Powell, secretary of the Company, told me an amusing of how they obtained the old for "The Goose Girl." old lady we had engaged for the part went back on us at the last moment," said Mrs. Powell. "We were at our wits' end. Nobody on the extra list would do.

"Suddenly I remembered seeing a perfectly good old lady, a day or two before, sitting on a porch a couple of blocks from the studio. So I dashed down there, found her grand-daughter weeding the garden, and had just breath left to gasp: 'We must have your grandmother!'

"She went rather pale, but I explained and we rushed into the kitchen and shanghaied the old lady, who was deaf, and couldn't understand what all the row was about.

"But we hustled her over to the studio, only to find out she didn't approve of moving pictures! Ye gods! We had to bribe her with about a million dollars' worth of ice cream before she'd consent to appear. But finally we won, and she turned out one of the best types we have ever had, showing an odd little thread of talent, so that she did the work for us beautifully."

The Reliance M. & M. employs many hundred extra people in its big productions. Besides the Indians and cowboys, other special types are hired. There is the official old lady of the company, employed solely because she looks about 100.

Then there is an old man, reputed to be wealthy, who is a perfect "rube" type. He works for all the film companies in rotation, but isn't kept long by any one because he presents a too-unvarying similarity to himself, for he has no versatility. He is a pretty good actor in his line, however.

The man who had played President Lincoln in "The Clansman" was selected after Mr. Griffith and Mr. Woods had tried out a dozen different men for the place. It turned out he was a professional Mr. Lincoln, having played the part in many plays.

Then there is a little girl, hired because she looks like Mae Marsh when Mae was a little girl, as sometimes a younger actress is needed to precede Miss Marsh in a play, portraying the childhood of the role in which Miss Marsh herself appears later.

OVER THE SEA.

On her birthday, November 19, Queen Elizabeth of Belgium received a flood of telegrams and letters praising her heroism. The municipality of Paris sent an address, expressing the hope that she would soon have her children, who are now in England, with her in gloriously reconquered Belgium.

F. von Hintzer, until recently German Minister to Mexico, has been appointed chief of the German Legation at Peking. He has started for his new station.

Baron Montono, doyen of the diplomatic corps at Petrograd, is one of Japan's foremost diplomats. He has lived at Petrograd since 1906.

Gen. Baron Fukushima, the former Japanese Governor-General of Kwantung, with residence at Port Arthur, is an accomplished linguist and has a fluent command of English, French, German, Russian and Chinese. He also possesses a proficiency in Chinese classics and is a poet of no mean order. He not only is capable of thinking with the Chinese mind, but writes the language fluently.

Auguste Lumiere, who, it is announced in Paris, has discovered and perfected a system of anti-typhoid inoculation by means of a dry powder in capsules, which are practicable on the firing line, devoted his earlier studies to photography, in which he made color work possible. He then took up chemistry and bacteriology.

W. Hamo Thorycroft, one of England's foremost sculptors, recently entered his sixty-fourth year. He retains his health and vigor and is as enthusiastic as ever for his work. Among well-known statues and groups which he has executed are Gen. Gordon, Dr. Creighton, Bishop of London, and the Gladstone Monument.

Emile Combes, former Premier and still a powerful figure in French politics in spite of his 79 years, has undertaken the direction of the military hospital at Pona, his birthplace. In speaking of his work he said recently that all Frenchmen were patriotically supporting the government and working for the cause of justice.

A. A. Balakshin, a Russian, is at the head of the greatest farmers' union in the world, a most remarkable organization composed of the Russian peasantry covering a vast stretch of fertile land from the Ural Mountains to the confines of Mongolia. The chief industry is butter-making, and almost the entire output has found ready market in England. M. Balakshin assumed the task of organizing the farmers some years ago, and has succeeded to an extent not dreamed of at the beginning. He is regarded with living reverence by the 300,000 souls to whose well-being he has devoted his life, and by whom he is affectionately spoken of as "the little grandfather." is said to be a laugh from start to finish.

Another laughing act is Harry Thompson's "Mayor of the Bowery," giving scenes in a night police court.

Others on the bill are "Rags" Leighton and Robinson, song writers; the Cycling McNutts, late circus stars; Grace de Wintress, ventriloquist, whose mannikin impersonates stage stars, and Lucy and Ethel Baker, two pretty girls making their first trip to the West in songs and dances.

Republic.

"The Five Million Dollar Counterfeiting Plot," with William J. Burns himself in the leading role, giving a film presentment of the manner in which the great detective actually ran the notorious gang of counterfeiters to earth, is the attraction at the Republic next week. Mr. Burns, in his desire to portray this case accurately, supervised the production himself. The film is in six parts. Probably the most remarkable compliment ever paid by one detective genius to another is the opinion of William J. Burns, expressed by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, who also appears in the film.

"I think," said Sir Arthur, "my friend Burns is the greatest detective in or outside fiction."

Six new vaudeville acts accompany the film.

Hippodrome.

"At the Foot of Kileau" is the Hawaiian spectacle, which will be the chief act at the Hippodrome next week. The huge tank has been converted into a lake, a volcano spouts fire, and native singers and dancers disport themselves in the moonlight near the tropical palm trees. The spectacle is said to be the most pretentious and fascinating Hawaiian act ever staged.

The Blue Jacket Four, a quartette of jolly tars, bring their own songs and dances and scenery with them; Ted MacLeea and Genevieve Lee will offer a comedy sketch, "Let Well Enough Alone," and Hammock and Nelson will appear in a singing and painting novelty.

Pinka Pania, the Roumanian princess, who, driven from her estates by Austrians, dances and fiddles for a living; Watson, the comedy juggler, and the Armstrongs, exponents of Sandow, complete the bill.

Century.

This is the last week of "The Girl Question," the rollicking musical comedy at Loewen's Century. The LaSalle Players are scoring a big success in the play.

This week marked another change of policy at Loewen's Century. Instead of giving two performances nightly the management increased the time of the play, giving "The Girl Question" complete, the entertainment running two hours and a half instead of one and a half.

Pictures.

who lies with the funny facility which only Miss Irwin knows how to put over on the stage, Miss Irwin is her usual personification of rollicking good nature.

To conclude there is a Pathe Daily News Letter and a travelogue, a song by Miss Butler and a good musical programme by the all-star orchestra directed by Mae Gates.

Miller's.

A mid-week change of programme is the policy instituted at Miller's. "Convicts, Costumes and Clothes" is the name of what promises to be a very funny comedy, with comical Billy Quirk in the lead, and is the feature during the first of the week. In addition there is to be the first of Robert Barr's famous Lord Stranleigh stories entitled "The Kings Move in the City." A pictorial news and war series complete the programme.

On Thursday and for the remainder of the week, the main attraction will be Francis Bushman in a strong and convincing drama.

The Woodley.

"The Dancer and the Ring," suggested by George Barr McCutcheon's famous novel, "Graustark," will be the feature photoplay at the Woodley, next week. It is a romantic melodrama, teeming with action and holding a strong love interest. Cecile Spooner, the noted Broadway star, has the leading role.

The piece is a drama of the modern day with its scenes laid in one of those mythical principalities of Europe which Mr. McCutcheon is famous for discovering. The king's love for the famous dancer and her adventures in saving him from his enemies, go to make up an exciting film drama.

Mozart.

"The Patch-Work Girl of Oz," filmed from Frank Baum's delightful story, tells a fantastic fairy tale, and will be seen at the Mozart, next week.

It is a fascinating story and will entertain old and young alike. Original in plot, rich with funny incidents and quaint characters, with its fairy touch, it is said to be almost idyllic in type, and promises to be a unique offering.

Mr. Baum personally supervised the taking of the pictures. The musical score, especially composed for "The Patch-Work Girl" was written by Louis F. Gottschalk.

A Royal Display of Furs

"I really know nothing about the quality of furs," said one customer to another in our fur section. "Nor do I," replied her friend, "but I've been glad I bought my set here. They've certainly outworn Julia's set of black fox. She bought her's last year and paid more than I did. Got mine, you know, the year before and they look like new, while she will not be able to wear her's throughout this season."

It's the unseen elements that are important in furs and we are extremely careful to know that our furriers use no illegitimate methods in creating the furs they send us.

Blue and black fox and lynx sets recently arrived will be on display tomorrow, besides complete lines of mink, ermine, fitch, opossum, beaver, Hudson seal and other fashion-favored furs.

Choose your Christmas furs now while stocks are complete. We will carefully pack and lay aside early purchases subject to your order.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY TALKS HEART TOPICS.

When We Most Need Love.

"O love of loves! to thy white hand is given
Of earthly happiness the golden key.
Spirit, I've built a shrine and thou hast come."

It is not when our prospects are bright, friends many, and heartaches few that we most need the sympathy of one human being to whom we are nearer and dearer than all others. When time is young and life and vigor bound through every vein, little or no check is put on pleasure.

Those are the times when jolly comrades crowd about. Dull care is unknown. Yearning for love is crowded out. No one can go through this world finding nothing but sunshine. There will come a time when the storms of adversity sweep one's path. Those are the times when friends fall off and convivial companions of a merry hour turn the cold shoulder, giving one the cut direct.

In such a moment, if there is one to whom we may unbosom the heart and find solace there, what matters it what the outside world says or does? The man who has avoided women, thinking them too much care and considering it a stroke of cleverness to escape the burdens of married life, never realizes until misfortune comes to him what a blessing a faithful, loving wife would be—an inspiration to a man, to beat back his troubles, rise above them by sheer force of determination for the sake of the woman he loves and the woman who loves him.

The youth in his early 'teens, who chooses the prettiest maiden, is attracted by her beauty. This is as it should be. When they wed, their judgment keeps pace together. They are happy with each other, because they have love. Such a man never knows the world's greatest need. When the middle-aged man realizes his desolation and determines to marry, he passes the pretty young women by. It isn't the comely face that attracts him; it is the sympathetic heart which touches the mystical golden chord in his breast. For he knows she will stand faithfully by his side when he most needs a woman's consoling presence, the clasp of her loving, gentle hands.

The bachelor, grown old and set in his ways, the man bereft in his prime of his heart mate, realizes that the only thing in this world worth clinging to is one faithful heart that he can call all his own when he most needs its strength and cheer.

The man who dallies too long will find that he cannot be sure of winning love when he will. He should not put off the happy day too long. When he is no longer able to go round with jolly companions he loses his grip upon them. All too soon, he finds himself walking life's pathway alone, with no happiness to look forward to and only regrets over what might have been when he looks backward. We always need love. We cannot tell what would become of us without it. Love is a panacea for all ills. It keeps the heart light and is the star of hope which brightens and gladdens life's pathway.

Let Him Know She's in Love.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am in love with a fellow whom I used to go with, but we got cross at each other for some reason or other, and did not speak for ten months, when he spoke to me and asked if he could escort me home. He's been going with another girl friend of mine. I did not say yes or no, and he did not come. Several other times he wanted to go with me. Ought I to let him know I love him?
CATHERINE.

"The course of true love never runs smooth," it has been truly said. Your experience is not an exception. He may prefer your girl companion. Instead of your letting him know you're in love, be smart and permit him to declare the state of his heart if it changes in your behalf.

Christmas Dishes.

If you have been planning dishes as a gift for mother, your opportunity will arrive on Monday when one of the big stores has a sale of china intended particularly for gift purposes. There will be a variety of articles such as one would care to give—not the commonplace, every-day things for use on Mondays, but for guest occasions or especial personal use.

You Go Directly.

The toy department of that big store which although in the basement, opens directly from the street is a boon to those mothers who like to take the children down to gather from their ecstacies as they behold the new toys, just what would best suit them as gifts from Santa Claus. It is too bad to drag the little ones through the crowds needlessly, and this direct entrance to toyland will be appreciated by thoughtful mothers. The toys there are such as will interest any normal child, too.

Outlined by Fashion.

Many an old evening gown can be delightfully freshened with the help of lace tunics and coatees.

A bag of Persian silk with a hole in the bottom is useful to hold the ball of lacing ribbon for underclothes.

The square-ended colonial type of fur scarf, thrown over one shoulder is one of the most universally becoming.

Sleeves are showing a tendency toward fullness at the wrist, the fullness being gathered into a rather deep cuff.

There is a new material being used for evening gowns that closely resembles corduroy. It is called crystalline.

In evening gowns of the type of 1830, the sleeves are in small puffs, finishing in a hard straight line around the arm.

Velvet and broadcloth, both separately and combined, are the most fashionable materials for the winter street suit.

A charming military hat is known as the Petrograd—a sort of peaked Tam o'Shanter, with a band of fur close to the head.

Tiny velvet neck bands are sometimes worn to hold down the lace collar.

One of the prettiest new collars seen on fur coats is called the Napoleon.

Evening wraps of velvet trimmed with fur are as warm as they are beautiful.

Very pretty is the tunic of net with a border of velvet ribbon in graduated widths.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Jim King, pioneer stockman, has brought to a close his long career as an operator on South St. Paul (Minn.) market at the age of 76 years with the expectations of making a new start in California.

Louis Hollweg, proprietor of the firm of Hollweg & Reese, wholesale china and glassware dealers, of Indianapolis, will retire from the firm on January 1, and will divide his stock among a number of his old and trusted employees. Mr. Hollweg is one of the pioneer business men of Indianapolis.

Dr. John B. Temple of Marshalton, Pa., has constructed the smallest known penknife in the world. The handle, made of gold, is three-sixteenths of an inch in length, and the blade is two-sixteenths of an inch long. Its weight is somewhat less than one-half grain.

In a husking contest held at Traverse City, Mich., between Fred Dunn, a local farmer, and J. J. Miller, who hails from Indiana, Dunn defeated his opponent by two bushels in a ten-hour test, during which time the winner succeeded in husking ninety-eight bushels. In one hour of the contest Dunn husked eleven and one-half bushels, which was high mark for the day.

The Kirk Mills (Pa.) postoffice was under management of one family for more than a century. Jacob Kirk was appointed postmaster in 1813, and his son, Lewis, although 85 years old, held the place until it was closed on October 15.

When Henry Shaw revisited a circus to which he had belonged many years before, in Bellefontaine, O., no one of the people connected with it recognized him, but the elephant started trumpeting as soon as he appeared and showed every sign of glad recognition.

A Fine Collection Of Paintings On Sale

These pictures have been collected by Mr. Kanst himself, whose authority on matters of art is well known.

One among them—"Sheep at the Watering Trough"—once belonged to the German Emperor. "The Fish Charmer," by E. J. Couse, is a rather unusual Indian study.

A number of California Coast scenes by F. W. Cuprien, the well known marine artist, are among these pictures. Also several Dutch landscapes by Takens, a modern Dutch painter who has won high honors.

The collection includes fine etchings, water colors, and oil paintings—valued from $3 to $5000 each.

Beginning tomorrow, every picture will be reduced 1/4 of the original price. Some, even more.

The Kanst Art Gallery will be moved before January first to a new location, and the stock must be as small as possible for moving.

This sale—just in time for Christmas buying—will be of genuine interest to those who love good pictures.

You are cordially invited to call and see the collection.

ANTONY ANDERSON.

From "To a Realist."

A phrase by Sappho, or a violin
Made at Cremona—all the bits of clay
That Palissy burned deathless color in—
The crudest charcoal sketches of Millet—

How rich in charm, how redolent and ripe
And purple is the fertile mood they bring!
The heroes fight again, Pan blows his pipe,
And from the sacred grove the Muses sing.

Time spares the germs that subtle genius needs;
Forth from the blue of distance they are sent;
And poor, indeed, is he who never heeds
What precious hints fall from the firmament.

Aloft, arear, in caverns dark, profound,
Where no dull commonplace has ever been,
The golden web of genius is wound,
Which all the throbbing world is tangled in.

Genius, that wind-worn reed, unsightly, rude,
Notched by some strong, untutored artisan;
That golden lyre, that lute of jeweled wood,
That syrinx blown by furry lips of Pan!

Mannheim at Throop.

Throop College in Pasadena is rapidly winning an enviable reputation for the high quality of the exhibitions of pictures it holds from time to time. Most of them have hitherto been loan collections, sometimes comprising the works of one man, sometimes the works of many, but they have always been well chosen. These educative and pleasing events have come about through the intelligent efforts of the Pasadena Music and Art Association, a club of men and women who "mean business," and who know how to "get results." The results are particularly happy for Pasadena.

Today the exhibition of loaned pictures from the brush of Jean Mannheim will close. It opened on November 16, and the attendance has been gratifyingly large, notwithstanding the fact that an entrance fee was charged. One may take heart of grace when he sees that people are willing to pay for the privilege of studying good art, even though he may have a theory all art should be free.

There are forty canvases in this thoroughly representative collection of Mannheim pictures—portraits, figures and landscapes, many of them owned by people of Pasadena and Los Angeles. Apparently the owners were glad of the chance to share with the public their pleasure in them—thus showing that they themselves have the true spirit of the picture lover, whose inclination it is to "pass it along," when he has something unusually good. That spirit ultimately enriches the public gallery of every fair-sized American city.

Almost all Mannheim's pictures have been seen before their purchase, in special and general exhibitions held in Los Angeles, but there are a few new ones, and lovers of the old ones have welcomed the opportunity to see their favorites again. The technical freedom, often approaching bravado, with which Jean Mannheim expresses himself, its happy ease, makes instant appeal to the appreciator of good painting, and even the man who only "knows what he likes" is pretty sure to like these pictures. He may not know why Mannheim's technique is good, but he feels instinctively that it is, and he is never uncertain about the beauty of the color and the tenderness of the sentiment.

This artist's versatility is a cause for constant wonder. His mill disdains no grist that shows the true golden gleam. Everything that's paintable he paints with joyous avidity, from a yellow pumpkin to a red plutocrat, from a garden to a goldfish, from a mountain to a marine. He paints all these things well—often superbly well—but I think he paints happy children best of all, and many of them enliven the present exhibition—in "The Goldfish," "Young Pianist," "Children and Flowers," "Kitty," 'Nude Study" and "In the Arbor."

The admirable portrait of King Gillette of Santa Monica is shown and the fine presentment of John W. Mitchell, with a number of portraits of charming women posed under favorable conditions of light, atmosphere and arrangement of accessories. We have the portrait of "Anna," that of Mrs. Orr, one of Mrs. J., and that tender representation of the artist's mother done in an earlier manner, before his emancipation from the dark-brown thralldom of Munich.

The garden scenes are always delightfully intimate, and sometimes, as in "The Garden of Mr. M." (who, of course, is John W. Mitchell,) they achieve a sort of classic Italian dignity, as alluring as the garden of the Medicis. When Mannheim paints his own garden he also paints his own children, and the combination is perfect. See "Children at Play," "Children and Flowers" and that superb bit of life and color, "In the Arbor."

The landscapes and marines are numerous, and they do not fall far behind the figure studies in beauty of color and charm of feeling, while they are done, of course, with the same facility of brush work.

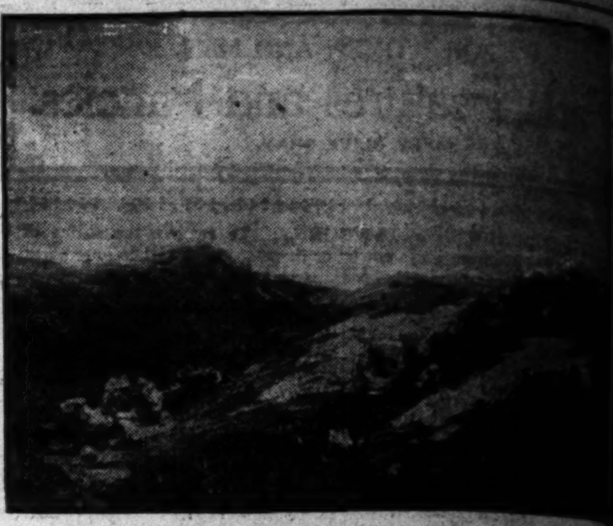
McBurney in San Diego.

America's big expositions, which follow one another with almost the ease and rapidity of our famous county fairs, are offering golden opportunities to the painters by giving them large areas for decoration. This is the dream of the artist—to get away from his 2x4 canvases and revel over big spaces. Here he has a chance for self-expression denied him in easel pictures.

The architect and the landscape gardener have much to say in the beautifying of our expositions, but the artist's voice is now equally audible, and painters and sculptors from all over the country have been called to San Francisco and San Diego, and have been busy with their wonder-work for many months. In a few weeks San Diego will let us know what they have done for her.

Among the artists chosen for the southern city is James E. McBurney of Los Angeles, who has been at work since May in the building devoted to the counties of Southern California, and who has been ably assisted by two of his talented young pupils, Mabel Alvarez and Minnie Reed, the first a Los Angeles girl, the other from Arizona.

Perhaps the most important work McBurney has hitherto done is the two large panels, each 8x27, he has just completed for this building. Both, of course, are California in subject, one being a study of life in what may be called the mission period, the other of the later Spanish period. They are handled with simplicity, expressed with feeling, charged with that spirit of California which McBurney loves and which he has striven for years to interpret. There are many figures in these decorations, with backgrounds of green verdure and sunlit mountains.



"Between Showers," by Benjamin Chambers Brown.

Among the interesting things done by Mabel Alvarez is a painted panel over the fireplace of the model adobe cottage, which is near the Southern California Counties building. The color scheme is light and exquisite, a poppy field in spring, with happy children running about and picking the deep-gold blossoms. Miss Alvarez has a true instinct for decorative composition, adaptive and pliable, and also shows the poet's touch in all she does.

Minnie Reed's important work is the panels of painted glass to be placed on some of the special exhibits. Some of these are very beautiful, carefully balanced, yet apparently free and spontaneous, the fruits and vines and flowers of California being used in the decorations. The color glows with the loveliness of transparent glass mosaic.

At Royar's Gallery.

Paintings, with etchings and monotypes in black and white and in color, the works of Benjamin Chambers Brown and Howell Brown, both artists of Pasadena, will begin showing at Royar's on Tuesday to remain in the gallery for two weeks.

Howell Brown will show nothing but etchings in black and white. He has been working as an artist for only a year, but already he gives striking evidence of the fact that he is completely en rapport with this method of self-expression, and that he will ultimately rank high among the etchers of America. These small imprints are most interesting, well-drawn and evincing a strong feeling for depth and tone.

The work of Benjamin Brown as a painter needs no introduction to my readers, for I have written of it often, and they have doubtless seen it as often. An able painter, knowing the handling of his medium thoroughly, he has never been content to rest on his past accomplishments, and the year 1914 registers for him a stride forward in breadth of vision that is truly remarkable in a man already so successful in his craft. "After the Rain," recently exhibited in the show of the California Art Club, will indicate what I mean. It excited a great deal of favorable comment, and I am glad to be able to reproduce it here.

Benjamin Brown will shown many small canvases at Royar's, a sort of "holiday" exhibition, as it were. They will be in oil and water-color, and will not be technically deficient merely because they are small. He will also show his recent highly successful experiments in color-etching and in color-monotypes, and altogether the exhibition at Royar's will prove to be extremely interesting.

James E. McBurney.

Works of the Japanese.

Two thriving Japanese art clubs of Los Angeles, the Mistume Kawi (club) and the Midori are holding an exhibition of their works in the Cannon School of Art, No. 431 South Hill street, about eighteen of the young students being represented by portraits, figure studies, landscapes and still life studies.

The exhibition has been an eye-opener to many who did not dream that the Japanese art students in Los Angeles were so numerous, and who had no idea that the work of some of them was so highly meritorious. Another cause for surprise, perhaps congratulation, is the completely occidental viewpoint attained by these children of Nippon. If you did not see the Japanese names in the corners of the canvases you would not think for a moment that they had been painted by young men entirely alien in race. There is absolutely no trace of the flat, unmodeled impressionism of the Japanese school of painting. These studies are carefully and accurately modeled, and in color they follow the hues of nature. This is not all gain, of course, for the oriental method of painting is perfect within its limits, but I am inclined to believe that fine old traditions will creep back when the struggle with the medium is over, when these gifted students have become full-fledged painters.

Apparently the poets are right (as poets are apt to be,) and we are all brothers, yellow and white, red and black, being as much alike under the skin as the colonel's lady and [illegible] Grady. Human ideals seem the same from China to Timbuctoo.

ART NOTES.

An exhibition of the painted decorations of Max Wieczorek will be held Tuesday afternoon at West Adams street, when Mrs. Jones will tender the artist an "at home" reception from 3 to Some of Wieczorek's latest will be shown.

At the Woman's Clubhouse, wood, an exhibition of pictures different artists of Southern California is now being held. Among exhibitors are John Hubbard and William V. Cahill, both of recently came from Boston, showing two big new pictures four or five new ones. The is open every afternoon from

The Porpoise and the Tortoise.

Now the purpose of the porpoise is to play about the prow
  Of the schooner as she scoons across the deep.
While the torpid-tempered tortoise thinks it exercise enow
  Just to sit upon a sandy shore and sleep.

Said the porpoise to the tortoise, "I can swim to beat the band,
  I can dive and do a lovely loop the loop;
While you paddle in a puddle, and you waddle on the sand,
  And you end your tame existence in the soup."

Said the tortoise to the porpoise, "All these silly stunts, my friend,
  You may do, and just as many more beside;
But I'm very well contented with my life, and at the end
  I am sure they won't make shoestrings of my hide."

So the porpoise and the tortoise went each one his separate way,
  Either thinking that the other was a fool;
For the tortoise sought the sunny sand to doze away the day,
  And the porpoise to his sport in waters cool.

Did You?

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother man,
And bearing about all the burden he can.
Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue,
And the smile would have helped him to battle it through.

Did you give him your hand? He was slipping down hill,
And the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.
Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road,
Or did you just let him go on with his load?

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight,
When a lift just in time might set everything right?
Do you know what it means—just a clasp of a hand,
When a man's borne about all a man ought to stand?

Did you ask what it was—why the quivering lip?
Why the half-suppressed sob and the scalding tears drip?
Were you brother of his when the time came of need?
Did you offer to help him or didn't you heed?

HOLIDAY BOOK NUMBER OF THE LOS ANGELES TIMES.

About 5000 books have been published during the past six months. The most important of that appalling number will be reviewed for the first time in the annual Holiday Book Number of The Times, which will appear Sunday, December 6.

Henrik Ibsen's only son is the author of a drama that will be reviewed.

"Who was Shakespeare?" is a special article that will discuss the Baconian theory and present the recently made claims to prove that Sir Walter Raleigh was the author of Shakespeare's plays.

The latest books by Marie Corelli, H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, Rex Beach, Jack London, Mrs. Humphry Ward and a score more of well-known novelists will be given attention.

Who is the most powerful novelist in England? The Times critic makes the claim for John Trevena, author of "Wintering Hay."

"The Poets"—a score of them will be disposed of in a special article written around the latest productions of poets known and otherwise. George Sterling, Harriet Monroe, Amy Lowell, Harry Kemp, S. Weir Mitchell, John Masefield, and Clinton Scollard are among those who have recorded their flirtations with the muse.

John Galsworthy's three latest plays will be given special attention. "The Pigeon" is one of them—and do you know that "The Pigeon" could end at any one of the three acts and still be technically perfect?

Already a flood of books on the war in Europe has rushed over the country, and practically all of the important volumes of this character will be given attention.

Satire is the most difficult form of literary expression and the least appreciated. Three keen writers—a Canadian, a Frenchman and an Englishman—have each satirized society and each has done it well. Their books are treated in a special article—"Society Satirized."

The cream of the fall publications has been selected for review in the special book number. It is designed to be interesting to the casual reader, to be valuable to those with literary tastes and to be indispensable to those who are close observers of current literature.

The Holiday Book Number appears on Sunday, December 6.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY AGNES THURNAU.

THE WOMEN of the State Federation of Women's Clubs are fully aware of the fact that the federation has been man-handled and maneuvered beyond any concealment or justification. Things have been "put over." Politicians have been foisted on district and State conventions under the subtle (about as subtle as a bale of hay) and harmless title of "lecturers." Political measures have been dolled up in all sorts of high-sounding and appealing sociological attire in order to "get over" for indorsement. And they have gotten over, from time to time. Why? Why? The answer is: Somebody is getting a big rake-off for putting things "over." I sat in the office of a San Francisco attorney last spring and heard a woman get an offer of $2500 if she could get a certain measure indorsed by the State federation. She went down to the Riverside convention under the patronage of some of the strongest women in the State, and the fact that she did not get her measure "over" was due to her being in wrong with the powers that be, not because she "savored of politics." Other women got their measures over. Why? The rake-off, in money, position or favoritism, is the answer. Plain talk, but facts. The "open door" legislation, about which hundreds of women in the State are deeply concerned was turned down flat. But Chester H. Rowell, a candidate for the United States Senate, was trotted out to address the delegates assembled under the touching little name of "lecturer." The plea for greater humanity to animals, protection against experimentation upon the indigent infirm and destitute infants was shelved because it savored of politics! Yea, a Daniel sat in judgment. Oh, yea!

Lots of mighty sensible women are facing the question, "Why should we who are the bone and sinew of State federation let ourselves be driven like a bunch of sheep to the corral of one woman, or a few women, who will get a big reward for herding us?" They see that they have been most beautifully used to further the personal political ambitions of one woman, or possibly a small group of women. The woman politician is of the same variety as the man politician. And there is just one way of relief from her pernicious activity. Throw politics out of the federation, and do it in the revision of the bylaws.

Anti-Vivisection.

There are many great actors who are great human beings also. George Arliss is one of them. Last week Mrs. Rosamond Wright and I sat in his pleasant apartment at the Rex Arms, where he and Mrs. Arliss had, with that magic known only to dramatic people "on the road," deftly arranged photographs about the rooms, flung cushions cosy-wise here and there, set pieces of hotel furniture to look as though they were made to use, and created a home atmosphere.

He said a lot of things which I wish every woman who is opposing anti-vivisection could hear, especially the one who remarked at the southern district convention at Santa Ana that "the women who are agitating this thing are the ones who carry dogs around in their arms, instead of children." These are some of the things Mr. Arliss said:

"You of America are doing a splendid, aggressive, telling work for the great and growing cause of anti-vivisection. I know of no other reform movement that is so over weighted with the mass of evidence in its favor. While you lack the number of federated societies found in Great Britain, there being sixty-seven separate and distinct branches of "The British Union for the Abolition of Vivisection," there is reason to believe that America will continue to spread the propaganda in educating the people and thus strengthen and increase her already formidable organizations.

"I had hoped that in California, where women have recently acquired votes for women, that so worthy and vital a reform as anti-vivisection would command their ardent interest and support. I am advised, however, that only very recently a branch of the Federation of Women's Clubs refused to indorse a bill for the open door to the medical laboratories where thousands of noble, sentient animals are tortured needlessly and uselessly; surely it is a sad commentary upon the intelligence and heart culture of women supposed to be interested in the abolishment of all cruelty.

"A medical woman delegate stated 'that anti-vivisectionists thought more of dogs than children—and that the bubonic plague would have never been abolished had it not have been for vivisection,' both statements so absurd and fallacious that they really merit ridicule and contempt.

"The women of your great State should know that through tortured animals we are really striking at the heart of human vivisection as well. The canker that is polluting the blood of the human race is the putrid filth wrung from the artificially diseased bodies of animals and applied to naturally diseased humans.

"Europe's poor have been for two decades more raw material for vivisectors, but America is fast forging to the front as its competitors in this carnival of crime and cruelty. From authentic data I read of the inoculation of 1000 children ranging in ages from 2 months to 3 years of age in the Babies' Hospital of Columbia University, New York, with the tuberculin test (some of these were dying children.) Picture if you can one of these scientific vampires bending over the wasted form of a dying child and punctuating its death struggles by the trying out of a new serum.

"Japan, the most vaccinated nation in the world, after twenty years of the most rigid revaccination, had in 1908 the deadliest epidemic of smallpox in her entire history, 18,037 cases, and every third patient dead.

"The statistics from the Registrar-General's office in England make a terrible showing against the serum treatment for diphtheria.

"There have been more deaths attributed to diphtheria per million population since anti-toxin than ever before.

"Well, the leaven of anti-vivisection is working, make no mistake about it, and it must and will command the attention of all thinking men and women. The women who have the interest of humanity at heart cannot afford to remain apathetic when so vital a question confronts them.

"Anti-vivisection means not only the abolition of cruelty to humans and the lesser animals, but it means physical and moral protection for all humanity."

Hollywood.

Programmes of unusual interest have distinguished the month of November at the Woman's Club of Hollywood.

A week ago occurred the musical programme under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Lohmeyer. Mr. Raymond Shouten, pianist; Miss Georgia McDonald, pianist, and Miss Audrey St. Claire Creighton, violinist, gave a recital which delighted the large audience; and Herr Adolph Tandler of the Symphony Orchestra spoke upon "Musical Impressions Abroad."

The first art exhibit in the new clubhouse is now on display, and is open to the public afternoons during the coming week. Artists represented are John W. Robson, William V. Cahil, Frank I. Weatherbee, Abby J. Cox, Catherine T. Bunn, Roscoe Schraeder, Lillian Ferguson, Annie Pogson, John H. Rich, Jack Wilkerson Smith and Charles A. Fries. The exhibit includes photographs by Maud Baker Davis.

The Art Committee, of which Mrs. Peter Ferguson is chairman, presented a fine programme Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Randall Hutchinson gave an interesting paper upon "The Art of the Panama-Pacific Exposition." Mrs. Hutchinson has returned from San Francisco full of enthusiasm over the exposition, which she designates "the most important art event in the history of America," and bringing with her a collection of photographs, in black and white, of the exposition as a whole, and prints, in colors, of some of the wonderful designs of Jules Guerin.

Mrs. Walker, chairman of the Art Committee of the Los Angeles District Federation, spoke entertainingly of the work of the art commissions of New York City and Washington, D. C. Mrs. Walker expressed the hope that such a commission might be established in Los Angeles.

Mrs. A. A. Hummell gave a fine paper before the civics section of the club upon "The Traditional Form of Government; Why Changed in the Last Twenty Years." The civic workers are occupied mainly with beautification plans, and are only waiting for the first rain before planting the hills for next year's blooming.

A programme on "Education," besides the business meeting, is scheduled for next Wednesday. Hostesses for the day are Mmes. Gus D. Harper, F. L. Heming, Jay F. Herrington, L. J. Hill, J. R. Kinney and Robert Young. The event looked forward to with supreme interest is the Kirmess to be given at the clubhouse next Friday and Saturday, December 4 and 5, for which great preparations are being made by Mrs. Murray Russell and her busy committee.

Eschcholtzia D.A.R.

The regular monthly meeting of Eschcholtzia Chapter, D.A.R., will be held at Ebell Clubhouse December 1 at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. James Hyde Forbes, regent, will preside. Mrs. Thomas R. Stowell, historian of the chapter, will read a paper on "The Old Trails," after which a musical programme under the direction of Miss Mary Olive Gray will be given.

Ruskin Art.

At the last weekly meeting of the Ruskin Art Club, Mrs. J. W. Netherby read an interesting paper on the life and work of Lamartine. Mrs. Donald Fry discussed Alfred de Musset and Theophile Gautier. Next Wednesday's study programme will be led by Mrs. G. L. Hutchinson and will be devoted to Victor Hugo and his work. Mrs. W. E. Keepus, Mrs. W. S. Bullis and Mrs. E. Stanton Hodgin will discuss topics.

Mothers' Congress.

The First District Congress of Mothers will hold a reciprocity day at Long Beach Tuesday, December 1, at the High School auditorium. The programme will begin at 10 o'clock. It includes addresses from various delegates from neighboring towns in the southland, and discussions of questions pertaining to the work of the ocngress.

Cosmos.

The musicale of the Cosmos Club, given in Ebell Clubhouse November 25 was one of the most interesting of club musicales of the year. The programme was given by local artists, distinguished for their talent, among whom were Miss Pauline Barr, Miss Louise Lothrop and Mrs. H. L. Campbell. Following the programme a reception was held in the parlor for those who have come into the club since the first meeting. The new members number thirteen.

Friday Morning.

One of the most interesting programmes on the year's calendar of the Friday Morning Club was given November 27. Mary J. Coulter lectured on the history, development, disuse and revival of book plates, illustrating her lecture with a collection of book plates which included in it many rare and interesting examples of the book plate designer's art.

At a recent meeting of the club resolutions on the death of Mme. Severance were passed. The resolutions are a fitting tribute to the life and character of this grand figure in woman's history.

The December calendar is full of interesting events, the first of which is a lecture December 4 on "What is Happening to the American Home," by Miss Lutie Stearns.

Ebell.

Los Angeles Ebell will close the month of November with an illustrated lecture on Austria-Hungary by Prof. Jerome Raymond Hall, who has recently been giving a course of Chicago University extension work to the Los Angeles Teachers' Club. He is a master of political economy and his lectures to the teachers have been their most popular offering for the year.

Business Women.

The Business Woman's Civic Club will meet November 30 in the clubrooms, Metropolitan building. The meeting is the recreation evening of the club. One meeting each month is set aside for recreation, when light, interesting topics make up the programme. On Monday evening Mrs. Ivor Thomas and Mrs. E. J. BOB BURDETTE IN DAYS OF OLD.

BY E. K. RIFE.

first met "Bob" Burdette in Ohio thirty years ago. He had just out on one of his many lectures, for he was then beginning to a name for himself. He came town, Circleville, O., and there several things in connection with that I now recall. His lec- was "The Rise and Fall of the che." He was a strange mingling of mirth and tears; he was the master of both, and for the reason that his writings reflected human nature as he found it, his labors will be more lasting than usually falls to what is known as newspaper literature. If it be vouchsafed to the dead to know what creatures are doing on earth, nothing will more please "Bob" Burdette than to know that with his pen he has brought sunshine into the hearts of those who have remained behind.

As a lecturer Burdette had many idiosyncracies. His voice and his manner on the rostrum would attract attention anywhere. It was not only what he said, but how he said it that summoned smiles or tears as the master of his audience cared to invoke. He had a thin, piping voice, and when in the midst of an eloquent or humorous sentence would swing his hands in front of him like an athlete about to compete in the high jump in the Olympian games. And when he began to swing his arms and opened his mouth, how he could talk. A golconda of languages poured out like a mountain torrent. Never at a loss for a word to express himself, he stood like a human water wheel, and it seemed that he was about to unload a copy of the Encyclopedia Britannica upon his audience.

I have sometimes thought that his forbears in Pennsylvania, who lived in the vicinity of Greensburg, had a strain of the Welsh blood in their veins, for when Burdette got warmed up he almost sung his words, that came tumbling out of his mouth as Robert Southey describes the waters in "The Cataract of Lodore." And he knew his power, but never abused it, and he used to say banteringly that a splendid artist was lost to the world when he became a traveling lecturer, for Burdette once thought he would make a painter, and journeyed to New York to prove it, but the trip was a failure. A painter was lost, but a Socrates was found.

He taught the creed of service through all the golden years. He not only shod his own feet with the preparation of the gospel, but he held aloft the light of his example that the wayfarer on the highway, all but overcome with his burden, might take heart. He believed in love and in laughter, and he furnished both in abundance. He smote the rock of his talent, and abundant streams gushed forth. He touched the dead corpse of blasted hope and it sprung upon its feet.

And in this hour of grief, let us, his associates on The Times, remember the lesson of his life. Having put his hand to the plow he did not turn back. He is among the last of his kind. Mark Twain, Henry Ward Beecher, Eugene Field, Wendell Phillips, Edgar Wilson Nye, John B. Gough and a host of others who enthralled audiences, have with "Bob" Burdette, passed beyond the twilight. He was the associate and dear friend of them all. They have already shouted from the heights, "Hail, brother, hail."

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, who remains near King Albert, has made a point of nursing several wounded soldiers. The Queen is well fitted to act as nurse. A daughter of Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria, the renowned oculist, she is a physician herself.

She began the study of medicine at the age of 16 under her father's guidance and took her M. D. degree at Leipzig just before her marriage.

Since then the Queen has continued her medical studies in Brussels. Some time ago she gave a practical proof of her interest in the profession of her choice by founding the Albert-Elizabeth Dispensary in Brussels. The Queen is a regular caller at this dispensary, and she often bandages the wounds of patients herself.

Mrs. Anna Blanchard, who died recently at Spring Lake, Pa., left bequests in her will to the amount of $185,000, the largest of which was $50,000 to the University of Pennsylvania, and $10,000 each to the Episcopal Hospital, the Academy of Fine Arts, the Divinity School of the P. E. church, the Franklin Institute, the Domestic and Foreign Missions of the P.E. church of the United States, and the Hampton Normal and Industrial School.

Oscar Raymond, a destitute sailor of Chicago, may have his choice of several homes as a result of his honesty in turning over to the South Clark street police a valuable watch he found on the street.

Raymond handed the watch to Desk Sergeant Mulcahey. He said he had no home, but slept at No. 347 North Clark street when he could afford it. A couple of days later Sergt. Mulcahey answered a dozen calls from persons who had read of the sailor's honesty and wished to offer him a home.

Some expressed the intention of presenting him with money. One woman, who said she was the wife of an Evanston financier, wished Raymond to make his winter home in her residence.

The police will try to find Raymond and tell him of his good fortune.

Last winter Thomas B. Evans, late postmaster of Scammon, Kan., found that his books showed him indebted to the government nearly $1000. Worry over the shortage made him ill and is said to have driven him to his grave. He blamed himself for the discrepancy in his books, not being an accountant. The office had been entered by burglars some months before, but nothing being missed, he had not reported the matter to the department. His books and cash would not agree, and Evans, saying nothing to his family, began making up the shortage and at the time of his death had done so. He died believing that he really owed the government the money.

Auditors of the department checking through the books last summer discovered the error in the books and found that Evans did not owe the government anything. Mrs. Evans has received $920.80 from the department, the amount Evans made sacrifices to pay.

[Topeka (Kan.) State Journal:] A little Topeka lad by the name of Jack Mack assists his mother to earn a livelihood by selling magazines and candy. This little fellow is not yet in his teens by a few years and he gets up every morning at 5 o'clock and works for his little mite before going to school.

Jack is a frequent caller at the State Journal office. The other morning he was in the building before 7:30, peddling his wares, and while trying to get his benumbed fingers into his pocket to make change he began crying. He was cold. He said he had been on the street since before 6 o'clock, and the biting wind had whipped through his not overly thick clothing and chilled his young flesh to the very bone. He cried because he was suffering.

Again in the evening, after 6 o'clock Jack was back in the State Journal office with more wares. When asked how much money he had made during the day he replied:

"About 50 cents, I think. I done give half I made today to the school—we are buying a barrel of flour for the Belgians. The Belgians are some fighters and are in a mighty bad fix, ain't they?"

The members of the Swiss societies of Washington, D. C., have contributed more than $100,000 for the relief of their compatriots at home who have become impoverished by the European war.

A gift of $25,000 was recently received by the Montefiore Home and Hospital for Chronic Diseases at New York, to be added to the endowment fund of the institution. The income is to be used for treatment of juvenile patients. Other legacies and donations to the amount of $47,000 were received during the year. Nevertheless, the home found so many demands made upon it during the year that the year closed with a deficiency of $15,000.

EDUCATORS, AUTHORS.

Dr. Edmund von Mach, who has presented the German side of the war in "What Germany Wants," came to this country and completed his education at Harvard University, and afterwards for a number of years was instructor in art in Harvard, at Wellesley, and at Vassar Colleges. He has now taken out his naturalization papers. Before coming to this country he served his full term of military service.

Michael Idvorsky Pupin arrived at Castle Garden a penniless boy; got employment as a rubber in a Turkish bath; went to the public schools; graduated from Columbia, and is now one of the greatest of American scientists and inventors. "A single Pupin invention made possible our modern long distance telephone service." Incidentally, Mr. Pupin has become that rare combination—a professor in a university and a millionaire.

Rear-Admiral Thomas Jefferson Cowie, who has been named as instructor in the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., was formerly paymaster-general of the navy. He also held at the same time the position of chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts. He was the originator and promoter of the navy pay bill, whereby the pay of all officers and enlisted men of the army, navy and marine corps was increased. During the Japanese-Chinese war he was intelligence officer on board the Monocacy. His course of instruction will cover the purchase and transportation of supplies.

Dr. Ramuelo Naon, Ambassador of Argentina to this country, was appointed Minister of Argentina to the United States in 1910, and was later raised to the rank of Ambassador. In 1900 he was appointed official secretary to the Governor of the province of Buenos Aires. Two years later he was elected to the lower house of the Federal Congress, and by 1906 he had made a great reputation for himself as an able debater and an authority on public affairs. He for several years filled the position of professor of civics in the National College and professor of constitutional law in his alma mater. Then he became secretary of justice and public instruction. In that position he increased his reputation by founding schools of secondary instruction in the interior of his country.

King George has approved the presentation by the Council of The Royal Society of a royal gold medal to Prof. Ernest W. Brown of Yale University for his investigations in astronomy.

ACTIVE WOMEN

Miss Olivia P. Tescott of Espy, Pa., is believed to be the only bride in America who had her wedding cake made entirely of ostrich eggs. Employees of the African Ostrich Farm and Feather Company, which has its farm near Espy, furnished the eggs and hired a baker to make the unusual wedding confection.

The Dowager Grand Duchess of Mechlenburg-Strelitz, a member of the British royal family, who by marriage became a German subject, has had her annity of $15,000 suspended by the British government.

Miss Eleanor de G. Cuyler is third on New York personal property tax list with $1,000,000.

Although she is only 11 years of age, Miss Isla Tuder has the unique title of The Little Air Lady, which she won by her daring aeroplane flights in England.

No Cause for Divorce.

[Indianapolis News:] A San Francisco woman had sued her husband for divorce, alleging that he did not buy enough hats and dresses for her. The judge thought this an insufficient ground for divorce. He even said that "every good wife should make her own dresses and her own hats if her husband is not able to purchase these things for her."

"HIS life from without may seem but a rude mound of mud; there will be some golden chamber at the heart of it, in which he dwells delighted; and for as dark as his pathway seems to the observer, he will have some kind of a bull's eye at his belt."
—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Why His Gift Here

CHRISTMAS is a good deal as we look at it. Wear rose-tinted glasses and peep the present or don blue goggles and see the bills. In the one case you are an Optimist and in the other a Pessimist.

To most of us Christmas reflects the belief that after all humanity is all right. We who are successful in our happiness like to pass a bit of it on to the fellow who is less fortunate. We want him to know we believe in him, love him, have faith in what he is trying to do whether he has stepped onto the right road yet or not, whether he believe in Christmas or not.

It is a time when we lay aside ourselves and try to make someone else happy. Just how to do it best, particularly practical man, often seems a problem.

A man as a rule is impossible to please or else it is the easiest thing in the world to please him. (When we say "please him" we mean more than the outward sign that brings the "Mighty fine of you to think of me.")

There is one sure way, and an easy way to warm his pleasure and pleasantly surprise him. And that is to enter his heart by the secret door.

Come to His Store where He Shops the things he likes to wear. Where men make it a profession to study his likes and dislikes. Where merchandise is the kind he likes to select from. You will not only enjoy the different atmosphere, and find a courteous careful interest in the shopping assistance, but the merchandise is quality sincerely priced. Everything at this "Store with a Conscience" is honestly priced and thoroughly guaranteed.

You will find most men like two things in a gift. It must be practical and must be sincere quality. Plain, simple yet uncommon usefulness at a right price.

Another thing men demand of the store where they shop:—it must be truthful in its advertising, and as safe a place to shop by Parcel Post or Telephone as to personally come to.

Nothing here bought "just for Christmas shopping"—everything is substantial merchandise.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, November 27.

Dearest Pater: Bob and I have managed to survive our very first Thanksgiving without you and the mater—are you sure you are wise in teaching us thus early to be independent of you? So many parents bemoan the fact that the saddest day of their life is when their children become independent of them, yet here are you and the mater recklessly hastening on that dreadful day.

And we behaved outrageously. Nearly as badly as we hear you two are doing in San Francisco. I don't believe San Francisco can be a good place for grass parents to go unchaperoned. Bob says you were very careful not to leave his youthful side once when you took him up there last year, so he knows there must be something demoralizing about that city and he is going to make it his business to investigate before he allows you up there again.

The Watsons came down the day after they had seen you and they dropped fearful hints of the mater in a rose-colored gown at the Burlingame Country Club dance—and she certainly did not possess a rose-colored gown or anything so utterly frivolous when she left here. I remember Capt. Ronny always used to say beware of the girl in a pink petticoat, that she was just naturally dangerous. Goodness knows what a whole pink dress might signify. And she always did like the navy. Aren't there lots and lots of irresistible navy men up there? And wasn't she engaged to one before she met you? Oh, my parent, thou art naively indiscreet in thy self-complacence. And to think of your suffering offspring languishing neglected at home during these sad days—for, of course, Aunt Emma doesn't count. It is the easiest thing in the world to hoodwink her.

Bob took me over to the Maryland party on Thursday—it was their grand reopening after the fire—and there were over 1000 very frivolous people there and we had mirror-topped dining tables, oysters, real turtle soup, cocktails and champagne. And you and the mater thought we were going to spend it quietly at home with Aunt Emma, which just shows how guileless and simple is the modern parent. Bob tried very hard to maintain the dignity of the family, but his shoulders are over-young for such a heavy responsibility and he didn't get any help from me. Not an iota. You can tell the mater that I wore my white tulle and borrowed every last bit of jewelry she left behind. Every one said it looked lovely, but most inappropriate on so young and innocent a maiden. Still inappropriate things must have their charm—that dashing, superb Capt. Blacklegge paid me such a lot of attention. He hopes you and the mater are having such a good time that you won't want to come home for weeks. He is a dear, thoughtful fellow, isnt' he?

Dear Capt. Blacklegge said he would take me home in his machine, but Bob got so peevish—that was the family dignity asserting itself. Besides, a very pretty young woman, not in our set, but decidedly stunning, had been dancing with him a good deal and of course, he had to leave her to maintain the family dignity. So there! Now, when do you two expect to come home? For my part, I firmly believe you are just dallying to show off the mater's sables because it is too warm to parade them down here. Well, you can tell the mater I looked awfully distinguished in her Chinchilla coat anyway, and, what with my hair done up high in the way she hates, but which makes me look such a woman of the world, I created quite a sensation. Eh? Oh, darlings, now please don't get so excited.

The Woolwines gave a lovely party at the Maryland for Dorothy Lindley that night, and she did look a dear. Their table was one of the biggest and merriest. And right next to us were the John P. Cudahys and their four lovely and admirably bred children. Their mamma, in pink and pearls, too, looked quite gorgeous. We also saw Mrs. Mahon and her sister, Mrs. Lord—you remember, she was Mrs. Sperry last year. Aren't these charming widows expeditious? The Erasmus Wilsons had a big party, too, and that Sands boy, who manages to combine real estate and poetry, wrote a special song, "Maryland, my Maryland," for the occasion, which nicely combined a little of each! I've heard of poetic policemen, poetic burglars and even a poetic stoker, but, somehow, a poetic real estater seems the most unique of all. Is there any poetry in real estate, darling? And-er-is there any real estate in poetry? But, of course, we all sang the song lustily. Oysters are fine to sing on. So is champagne.

They had such a jolly idea out at the Midwick Country Club—no less than an exciting turkey shoot for both men and women. They held it in the morning so that cook should have time for her artistic ministrations. Mary McLaughlin won the first ladies' prize—a gorgeous blue-ribboned plumptical turkey. A hold-up man would get an awful surprise if he tried issues with that young lady. Stewart O'Melveny won the first men's prize and John G. Mott the second, and then everybody celebrated in style, of course, and they were turkeys de luxe indeed!

Did you know Helen Newlin's engagement had been formally announced at last? People are gossiping deliciously about that, because Helen loves society and her medical fiance doesn't. Helen regards that as a reflection on her taste, naturally. They do say she tried to make him join the Bachelors' Club that he might have the eclat of resigning at the dramatic moment, but he proved adamant. Of course, you will approve of that, you wicked old pater, you love to dogmatize on the masculine individuality creed, don't you? Still, the mater has managed you very satisfactorily, take it all in all.

There are weddings galore in the offing and most of the entertaining just now seems to be complimentary to bridal couples. Really, darling, this is the season of our discontent. I should make such a bewitching bride. I wonder if you would like Capt. Blacklegge for a son-in-law. (Oh, darling, please don't get so excited.)

I have been wistfully observant this week, pater dear, and have come to some terrific conclusions. For one thing, married men are much gayer and much more frivolous than single ones. That speaks well for matrimony, of course—er—doesn't it? It must be such solid comfort to have a gay and frivolous husband, one almost feels like marrying a nice, serious, rather dull young man, just for the sake of seeing him blossom. I suppose the poor young men feel that the dignity of the sex rests heavily on their shoulders; anyway, poor dear Bob does.

Oh, I forgot to tell you that we went out to that first performance of the Rapparrees. Aunt Emma took me to that, so I behaved very nicely and wore all my own clothes. Considering that they are all bona fide amateurs, it was wonderfully well acted. That Irish Maxwell man is quite a genius at stage managing and he evolved quite professional talent. They are going to hold them every month and present lofty plays on the altitudes of culture, the sort that the really truly managers find don't pay. This time they gave "In Honor Bound" and "Pros and Cons"—problem drama and irresponsible frivolity, wherein Bunny Reed, as Lady Carlyon, a lady who had had her experiences, staggered us with a cloth of gold gown, and Gwen played the sweet, innocent, untainted ingenue—in a most becoming cherry-colored dress.

Of course there was the usual squabble over the flowers. Mrs. Ross Hickox and the committee generally had vetoed 'em with no uncertain voice, but one leading lady said it would break her heart and spoil the whole jolly show if she didn't get a bouquet handed over the footlights. So an adoring hubby saw that she got 'em and then the trouble began. Eager and indignant swains rushed off and secured bouquets for the pet talented actresses and you ought to have heard the nasty things everybody said about everybody else. The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la, perfumed the whole hall and proved most exhilarating. Next time, however, an irrevocable contract will be struck on this grave subject and it is fondly hoped that high culture and elevating dramatic art will go untrammeled by floral controversies.

All right, darlings, although we thought you deserved to be teased a bit, we really will try to be good until you come back. Best of love to dear mater,

Your affectionate DOLLY.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

ANOTHER benefit entertainment for the poor and needy of Belgium is to be given December 5 and it promises to be unique and especially interesting. The feature of the programme is to be short addresses by prominent persons, who have just returned from the European war zone, and each address is to be limited to not more than ten or fifteen minutes each and must be neutral and without prejudice. The proceeds are to be used for food and clothing for the Belgian sufferers and already those in charge have met with a hearty response from those in sympathy with the cause. A number of society people are entering into the dancing contests with the right spirit. There will be moonlight dancing and various other novelties, and ending with a big battle royal in both ballrooms—Pasadena vs. Los Angeles, in the wee sma' hours.

Marriage Announcement.

Mrs. Simon Gavagan of No. 2152 West Twenty-first street announces the marriage of her daughter, Beatrice, to Gordon Booth. The ceremony took place Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents.

Worthy Work.

Much credit is due the members of the younger crowd of society women for their charitable and self-sacrificing work in helping to make a success of the recent and present undertakings for charity. They have responded to the call for help and although busy with other affairs of their own, have cheerfully given with time and work to the cause. Among the most active in perfecting plans for the various benefits are Miss Ann Andrews, Miss Margaret Maurice, Mrs. Stanley Visel, Miss Daphne Drake, Mrs. Stanley Guthrie, Miss Frances Richards, Mrs. Walter Brunswig, Miss Marjorie Freeman, Miss Marie Scheller, Miss Lillian Van Dyke and Miss Margaret Hughes.

Theater Party.

Henry Reynolds, who will attend Dr. Archibald Macleish as best man at his wedding to Miss Francis Edwards tomorrow evening, the ceremony to take place at St. John's Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock, was the genial host at a party given Monday evening at the Orpheum, followed by supper at the Alexandria. A tall silver candelabrum with pink shades centered the table, the base of which was surrounded by a shower of Fair Maid and crimson carnations. Hand-limned Cupid cards marked covers for Miss Frances Edwards, Dr. Archibald Macleish, the host, Miss Irma Milligan, Miss Ruth Montgomery, Miss Helen Burton, Miss Lucille Evans, Miss Katherine Torrance, Miss Clara Leonardt, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mace and Messrs. Winifred Mace, Dodd Rowan, Francis Graves and Edward Calder.

The same afternoon Miss Jeanette Mackie, No. 981 Menlo avenue, entertained with a delightful luncheon for Miss Edwards. The table was fragrant with the daintiest arrangement of Cecile Brunner rosebuds and violets, the place of each guest being marked with a corsage of the same blossoms, tied with crisp bows of tulle. Covers were laid for Miss Edwards, the hostess; Miss Irma Milligan, Miss Ruth Montgomery, Miss Katherine Torrance, Miss Lucile Evans, Miss Helen Hoover, Miss Marie Nichols, Miss Muriel Tottenham, Miss Helen Burton, Miss Mildred Mackie and Mrs. Terry Barker.

Miss Hazel Severy, who attended her sister as maid of honor, was lovely in a frock of yellow crepe de chine, with overdress of yellow chiffon. Her shower bouquet was made from Mme. Chatenay roses. Misses Helen Sutliff and Fern Hepler were the other bridesmaids and were gowned in pink crepe de chine, with overdrapery of pink chiffon. Their bouquets were also of Mme. Chatenay roses. Dr. Jackson was attended by Luther Severy, the bride's brother.

The bride, who never looked lovelier, was gowned in white crepe de chine with court train of white charmeuse. She wore a veil of tulle and cap of princess lace. Her jewels were a necklace of diamonds and pearls and a diamond brooch—gifts of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies and white orchids.

A programme of wedding music was played by a three-piece orchestra—a violin, harp and 'cello, which played the Lohengrin Wedding March, to announce the approach of the bridal party. During the ceremony they played very softly, "To An Evening Star," and immediately before the ceremony, Mrs. Harry Ross sang "A Perfect Day," singing after the sealing of the nuptial vows, "I Love You Truly." Following the ceremony a reception was held and later there was a bridal dinner. Dr. and Mrs. Jackson will be at home in Altadena after New Year's.

To formally announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rosaline Merritt to Edward Paul Haupt of Los Angeles, Mrs. Hulett C. Merritt of Terrace drive, gave a smart violet tea several days ago at which a half hundred guests were present. The lovely hallway was a thing of beauty, great masses of white chrysanthemums arranged with stately palms and handsome ferns were banked about the fireplace. In the living-room big white chrysanthemums and gorgeous roses nodded from golden baskets, but it was in the dining-room where tea was poured that the floral arrangements was most striking.

The richly-laid table was centered with a mound of white chrysanthemums, which was circled by violets and Cecile Brunner roses, and bunches of these smaller flowers were used elsewhere about the table. The buffet was a veritable mound of violets, and golden baskets holding great bunches of violets greeted the guests from every conceivable nook in the dining-room. Assisting Mrs. Merritt, were Mmes. Stanley Visel, Samuel B. Martin, Clifford Gates, Jack Somers, Hulett C. Merritt, Jr., Henry T. Thayer, Sadie Hackley, Misses Jessie Platt, Helen Rowland, Kathleen Tottenham, Edith Runyon, Agnes Whittaker, Manzanita Winston, Caroline Winston, Louise Up de Graff, Dorothy Armstrong and Norma Haupt. The bride's only attendant, Miss Hazel Winneg, was lovely in a gown of white silk, with draperies of shell-pink crepe. Her bouquet was designed from pink carnations and frens. The bride wore a gown of white chiffon and silk crepe. She wore a long veil of tulle, which was caught here and there with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white rosebuds and maidenhair ferns. After the ceremony a supper was served at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sacket of No. 350 North Raymond avenue.

All Saints' Episcopal Church was the scene of a beautiful wedding Saturday at noon, when Miss Mabel Whitman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitman of Altadena, became the bride of John Robert Duff of Brookline, Mass. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Leslie E. Learned, rector of the church, was witnessed only by relatives and a coterie of most intimate friends. The bride was given into the keeping of the groom by Capt. Thompson of Los Angeles, an old friend of the bride. A VERY merry and happy gathering of relatives and old-time friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Peckham, assembled at the home of Mrs. Peckham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius C. Chandler, on West Cypress avenue, Saturday evening and assisted in the twenty-fifth wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Peckham. The Chandler residence was a veritable bower of beauty and fragrance, the color scheme being white and green throughout.

Large Japanese baskets of great white shaggy chrysanthemums greeted one upon entering the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler. The music-room was fragrant with the spicy odor of many white carnations. Garlands of smilax were effectively arranged with these fragrant blossoms. In the parlor the effect of the same flower and green garlands was most pleasing. The artistic decoration in the dining-room suggested a scene of twenty-five years ago, when Mr. Charles L. Peckham and Miss Lillian L. Chandler plighted their troth. The dining table was centered with a large bowl overflowing with white carnations and ferns. Four tall candelabra, supporting shaded tapers were arranged at the corners of the table. Clusters of white carnations and ferns, knotted with white tulle, added to the decorations. The mantel was banked in ferns and the same white spicy blossoms, while seven candles were effectively arranged among the ferns. There were many very pleasant features connected with this happy celebration that could not be met elsewhere and rarely ever in any other family. The ceremony twenty-five years ago was at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chandler, in one of the more pretentious mansions on fashionable Wabash avenue, Chicago. As the years grew apace Mr. and Mrs. Chandler removed to California, and here in this genial clime they established their roof tree. Their six children, all married and with families, coming here also. Less than a decade ago Mr. and Mrs. Chandler celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, and Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Peckham stood in the same room and under a canopy of flowers and greenery they plighted again their troth, where Mrs. Peckham's parents had stood eight years ago and repeated their vows at their golden wedding ceremony. In the music-room, seated at the pipe organ, Mr. A. R. Chappell, organist at St. Mark's Episcopal Church of Glendale, rendered a musical programme preceding the ceremony. Miss Mattie Belle Provolt, soprano, sang in her sweet clear voice "Sunrise," after which Mr. Chappell began softly the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." All turned when handsome Charley Peckham marched into the music-room and advanced to the imaginary chancel rail. Mrs. C. C. Chandler, his mother-in-law, was waiting there with Rev. C. Irving Mills, rector of St. Mark's Church, who later read the lines. Slowly, and with stately mein, advanced Mrs. Edward H. Weston, in a gown of white with lace trammings. Mrs. Weston carried a large rose, amid the petals of which lay a gold wedding ring, which many years ago. Mr. Peckham's mother had received upon her wedding day, and which Mr. Peckham bestowed upon his bride twenty-five years ago. With Mrs. Weston came Mrs. McNaughton Barnes in a blue gown, and carrying the bride's bouquet, which was a graceful arrangement of many pink Cecile Brunner rosebuds. Twenty-five years ago when these two charming matrons were little blue-eyed school girls, and Mrs. Weston was Flo Chandler, youngest sister of Mrs. Peckham, and Mrs. Barnes was Jessie Chandler, niece of Mrs. Peckham, they assisted at the wedding ceremony then, Mrs. Weston as ring-bearer and Mrs. Barnes as flower girl. When all these smiling attendants had assumed their places, Mrs. Peckham came leaning on the arm of her father, C. C. Chandler. It was indeed a pretty scene and one that will long be remembered by all the guests. The years have dealt most kindly with Mrs. Peckham, and she looked quite youthful and handsome as she entered upon the arm of her no less handsome silver-haired father. The lines that were read by Rev. Mills were mingled with a touch of humor, and through them just a wee bit of a pathetic strain, just like a chord of sweet, though sad music. Congratulations were showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Peckham by the many guests who have known and loved them these many years. A number of the guests at Saturday night's celebration were also present when the the nuptials were celebrated a quarter of a century ago. Mrs. Peckham wore a blue satin gown, which was embellished with the same beautiful pearl trimmings that adorned her bridal robes twenty-five years ago. She wore a slender gold chain with a pendant of Bohemian garnets, a gift from her mother upon her wedding day. Following the reception, a musical programme was rendered. Mrs. W. H. Crawford, in her rich contralto, sang "God Make Me Thine." Mr. Chappell rendered a number of organ selections. One delightful feature of the musical numbers was the vocal solo which Mrs. Peckham rendered, one that Mr. Peckham composed two decades ago. Mr. Peckham also rendered several of his own compositions, one of which was "The Bugler's March." Mrs. Eustace Benton Moore gave several of her amusing child dialect readings. A dainty buffet two-course luncheon was served by Misses Frances and Gladys Peckham, daughters of the bride and groom; Miss Emily Ellias, niece, and Miss Lu-Miss Barnes, grand-niece.

As a happy finale to this joyous occasion, all guests joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

THE home of Mrs. Frederick Baker, No. 109 North Maryland avenue, Wednesday afternoon, was the scene of a delightful informal social time, the net proceeds of which materially increased the clubhouse fund. The house was fragrant with mignonette and rose geranium. Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, as Harriet Beecher Stowe, was gowned in an exquisite costume made by a famous costumer in New York over fifty years ago, for the trousseau of a southern belle, the quaintness and beauty of which was much admired. Mrs. O. W. Harr, as Dollie Madison, the White House bride, entered to the strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March," attired in a beautiful wedding gown of 1862, with its wonderfully-made hoops. Mmes. E. D. Yard, H. H. Martin and A. L. Weaver, as negro mammies, furnished much amusement. But the real treat of the afternoon was the programme given by some of the best Glendale talent. "The Trouble With Rastus," "The Conquered Coquette," by Dunbar, and "Confused," the readings by Miss Bertha Lee Jackson in her inimitable dialect, were well received. Mrs. George Melford, whose voice is one of rare beauty, delighted the guests with her sweet, plaintive dialect melodies, and generous encores. Mrs. Melford was ably accompanied by Mrs. C. E. Anderson. The popular and southern piano music played by Miss Alice Patterson throughout the afternoon added much to the pleasure of the guests. On the reverse were conundrums which caused much merriment, the answers being safely concealed within the shells. ONE of the prettiest home weddings solemnized here this year was that of Miss Hazel Lathrop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lathrop, and Charles W. Allison of Indianapolis, which occurred at the home of the bride's parents at Holt avenue and Main street on Thanksgiving night. The floral decorations of the rooms, entirely in charge of James Bichowsky, recently graduated from a decorative school in New York, were elaborate. Huge yellow and white chrysanthemums and a profusion of canyon brakes were artistically arranged in the halls and reception-rooms. The bridal couple stood in a floral bower, upon a rug of chrysanthemums, and under a wedding bell of orange blossoms. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. Clarence Spaulding of Pasadena. The little flower girl was Elizabeth Zilles, who scattered rose petals in the pathway of the bridal party. Miss Margaret Dilis was bridesmaid and Frank Lathrop, brother of the bride, acted as groomsman. Vocal music was rendered by Miss Susan Darlington Pierce during the wedding. DELIGHTFULLY surprised was Mrs. J. W. Bishop on last Monday evening on her return from Los Angeles, where she had spent the day in company with Mrs. L. J. Carden, who was in the pleasant secret of the happy event awaiting her friend. Mrs. Bishop hastened to her home to prepare for a downtown dinner with her son, W. C. Ullrich. The house was darkened as she hurried to her room, but as she descended the stairs her son turned on the lights, revealing a group of her closest friends waiting in the beautiful living-room. They had been bidden to a dinner given by Mr. Ullrich in honor of his mother's birthday. The surprise was complete and happy. Splendid poinsettias glowing in a jardiniere adorned the living-room, while deep purple violets massed in a brass basket centered the dining table, with crystal bowls of the same flowers at either end. The dining-room was a glow of soft color, furnished by the old rose tints in hangings and tapestries. Gilt nut bowls were the favors, and hand-painted place cards with violet design marked places for Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Carden, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Roper, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Winslow, Mrs. W. L. Tubbs and Lester Tubbs, Mrs. J. R. Medlock, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop and the host. Following the dinner, the evening was spent with flinch, Mrs. Bishop winning the dainty first prize, a set of silver inlaid salt and pepper shakers. A beribboned Kewpie doll was the consolation prize, going to Mrs. Tubbs. With Mrs. Medlock making the presentation for the company, a beautiful basket was presented to Mrs. Bishop with glowing good wishes.

Chrysanthemums of golden yellow mingled with ferns introduced the color motif of an exquisitely-appointed feast enjoyed at the home of Mrs. A. M. Gardner, No. 311 East Washington avenue, on Friday, when the ladies of the sixth section of Ebell household economics carried out one of the social functions programmed in the year's work. This section includes many of the social elite and was an elaborate affair. The dinner was of the Thanksgiving kind, a regal turkey with a generous constituency of the tasty dishes appertaining to the season of his reign, being served with cranberry ice preceded by fruit cocktail. Chrysanthemum-shaped nut bowls, chrysanthemum-shaded candelabra of brass and hand-painted place cards done in gold developed the color tones of the decorative scheme. Those at the table included Mrs. A. M. Gaefner, Mrs. J. P. Baumgartner, Mrs. P. N. Beissel, Mrs. E. B. Sprague, Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs C. W. Burns, Mrs. Fred Wilkes, Mrs. A. C. Black, Mrs. J. G. Quick, Mrs. A. J. Crookshank, Mrs. S. M. Davis, Mrs. J. E. Gowen, Mrs. Charles Heil, Mrs. F. P. Jayne, Mrs. R. A. Miles, Mrs. E. M. Nealley, Mrs. Norton, Mrs. Mac Robbins, Mrs. George S. Smith, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Lea Warren, Miss Lida Crookshank, Miss O'Brien, Miss Margaret Orr, and Mrs. Keith, mother of Mrs. S. M. Davis, a guest of the club.

One of the delightful little affairs of the week was a Kensington party given for a visitor from Ontario, Can., Mrs. Atchison, who is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. W. J. Saunby. Mrs. W. J. MacCormack, who is one of the successful hostesses of the city, entertained for Mrs. Atchison at her home on Church street, using a delicate yellow color scheme in decorations of house and table, and carrying the motif into the delectable refreshments, which were served on a polished mahogany table with rich Cluny doilies adorning its shining surface. An informal programme included dramatic readings by Mrs. John Clarkson, brilliant piano numbers by Mrs. W. B. Snow and the singing of some sweet old ballads by Mrs. Halstead, the charming mother of the hostess, herself a Canadian. Those asked to meet Mrs. Atchison were Mmes. J. G. Quick, C. W. Burns, John Clarkson, J. S. Smart and her mother, Mrs. Nason, F. P. Jayne, F. W. Weisseman, W. J. Saunby, Atchison, J. Van Wyk, Charles Heil and W. B. Snow.

Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Inwood received on Friday afternoon and evening for the members and congregation of the First Methodist Church, of which Rev. Mr. Inwood is the beloved and successful pastor. Their spacious home was handsomely decorated with flowers and greenery, the living-room being gorgeous with poinsettias and a profusion of ferns and smilax, with daisies and asparagus ferns in the dining-room. The members of the official board and their wives, and the stewards of the church with their wives, were in the receiving line with the host and hostess to aid in greeting the hundreds of friends who called during the afternoon and evening. The young women of the Philathea class of the Methodist Sunday-school, of which Mrs. Inwood is the teacher, were in the dining-room, where buffet refreshments were served. The event was one of the notable ones of the social year, and demonstrated the esteem in which the popular pastor and his wife are held by their parishioners.

More than 400 persons joined in making the annual Harvest Home and Thank Offering supper Friday evening one of the most successful affairs of the autumn events in the annals of the First Presbyterian Church. The tables were holly-trimmed, and the Harvest Home motif was preserved by delicious cold meats, jellies, baked beans and scalloped potatoes, brown and white bread, pumpkin pies with coffee of aromatic flavor. Young women deftly waited, and animated conversation indicated good fellowship. Following the serving of supper from 5 to 7 o'clock, a social hour was spent in greetings. Then the big auditorium filled with interested listeners addressed by Dr. Robert Freeman, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pasadena, who gave a genial and helpful message on "Understanding." Prof. Harry Garstang rendered a pipe organ voluntary, and Mrs. W. W. Anderson, presiding over the evening affair, read the "Thanksgiving Psalm," with responses by the congregation. Dr. J. A. Stevenson, pastor of the local church, introduced Dr. Freeman and Mrs. R. J. Blee led devotionals. A generous thank offering marked the event. The beautiful auditorium was decorated with a South American foliage plant with gorgeous yellow flowers tinged with yellow, and streamers of ferns completed a graceful effect.

1200 yards of 19 to 26-in. Fancy Silks to be sold at half and less Monday at yard . . 69c

Our silk buyer is now in the New York market and through a very fortunate happening he picked up 50 sample pieces (1200 yds.) of new spring silks at half and less than half of what they could be sold for in the regular way.

There are plain blacks and plain whites a plenty but the most of them are in dainty little floral effects or in gorgeously printed designs that women like so well for blouses, dresses and Christmas fancy work.

Among the different kinds included are—

23 in. Dresdens and pompadours
23 in. Persian bengalines
22 in. printed taffetas
20 in. white chiffon taffetas
26 in. black satin de chine
23 in. black messaline
26 in. changeable satin
19 in. white satin de chine

You can judge the importance of this event by the fact that we have given over the most of our North window to the display of these silks.

Now for a clearance of millinery at half and less

What's new!

In the garment store we are showing quite a few of the new Covertcloth suits which are being talked about so much in the East.

Many of the new suits which we have just unpacked show the wide circular skirt that Fashion has told us to be on the lookout for. Already women are taking to them enthusiastically.

Some very, very pretty new bath mats done in a rich delf blue and showing old Dutch scenes are on display in the towel store, South Aisle.

We're ready now to clear our stocks absolutely of all Fall and Winter hats and hat shapes and we're determined to have them cleared out in the very shortest possible time. Price is no object now—cost and profits have been forgotten. Below we list a few of the reductions that have been taken for this event:

7.50 and 8.75 hats at 3.65
12.50 and 15.00 hats at 6.95
1.95 and 3.95 shapes at 1.00
7.50 and 9.75 shapes at 3.95

This is the first time since last February that we have quoted the worth price of any merchandise in our advertisements. It is done at this time because so many women have insisted upon knowing the former prices of the hats. We will continue to quote worth prices in our millinery advertisements only until such time as a clearance of all Fall and Winter hats has been effected. See the windows today.

arrived at Hasselt at 8 a.m., halted at a cafe in front of the for some breakfast, and were to continue our journey when chauffeur, a Belgian boy of 18, he couldn't get the taxi to Meanwhile, the soldiers guard- the station swarmed around us, officer looked at our passports, dissatisfied, said the stamped seal worthless and that we were spies, and, shouting for six soldiers, who full-cocked their rifles and bayonets, told them to surround us.

"'You are prisoners,' he said, curtly. 'If you talk to each other, or if you move, you'll be shot immediately.'

"We waited during an hour for orders from the commandant, and were then marched as prisoners to the Hotel de Ville. Here we were stripped and examined, our luggage was searched and all papers and money taken from us, and at 5 p.m. we were marched to the railway station, made to enter a luggage van attached to an engine, and were thus taken by our guard of six soldiers to Tongres. At Tongres we were again marched to the Hotel de Ville. Here we were met by the major in command, who was told that we had been arrested as spies.

"'English?' he asked.

"'Ja, mein herr major—wir sind Englisch,' I replied, cheerfully, for these German officers were such bullies, everything depended on showing that one was not afraid.

"'Ah!' said the major, jubilantly, 'das wird mir sehr angenehm sein!' (That will be very agreeable to me.)

"We went through the farce of verbal examination, and I showed him all my papers relating to my intended hospital work; but he refused to look at them.

"'I have no time for proofs—you are spies—I suppose you know the fate of spies? Twenty-four hours. Whether you're in the right or in the wrong, you are English, and this is a war of annihilation.'

"We were taken upstairs and spent the night lying upon straw in an empty room, and expected at dawn to be called out and shot. But owing, as we believe, to the intervention of another officer, who was, he told us, married to an Englishwoman, we were told next day that we were to go by train as prisoners to Cologne. At Liege all our papers were snatched from our guard by an excited mob of officers and soldiers, who nearly lynched us when they heard we were English, and we had eventually to go on to Aachen without any of the papers, which alone could prove that we were what we said we were.

"At Aachen we were marched to the arrest cells in the military barracks, accompanied by the population, who booed and hissed and called us English dogs and other opprobrious epithets. Here again we slept on verminous straw, and the next day went once more through the routine of being stripped and searched. Each of us was brought separately before the judicial officer. If found guilty, we should, we were told, be shot; if mercy was extended, our fate would be at least three years in a German fortress, and if found innocent, imprisonment till the end of the war. This was the prospect. Everything now depended upon whether the judicial officer was—unlike the German officers we had encountered hitherto—a human being, and could be persuaded to believe—upon my word alone—that it was my sense of duty towards my women that had led us to the indiscretion of going through the German lines. His manner of conducting the trial was all that one could have wished. But at the end of the day we were marched off separately to the prison. Here again I was stripped and searched, all my possessions removed, and I was taken —at midnight—by two wardresses, to the cell I was to occupy. The door closed with a bang upon me, and the key turned mercilessly in the lock; and, shut out from the world—as I thought, perhaps forever—I was face to face with myself. My chief regret was that my women would never know that I had tried to get to them, but in the end I persuaded myself that even the effort would count somehow —somewhere.

"The next day I spent in thinking things out, and then, at 5 p.m., arrived the miracle. I was sent for by the human officer, who came to the prison, and said that if I would give my word not to escape, he would take me in his automobile to the hotel, where—with my two friends, without whom I would not, of course, accept freedom—I should be free to come and go, on parole, while our case was further investigated. He and the next senior officer sent a cable to the German authorities at the Hotel de Ville at Brussels, asking them to confirm my story that I had been asked by the Croix Rouge to organize a hospital in the university, and that night we had the first wash for five days and slept in beds, comparatively happy. But in the morning the senior officer greeted me with a serious face. 'We've had the reply to our telegram. Read it.' He handed me the paper. 'Croix Rouge and university say no hospital by Mme. Stobart.' The Belgian director of the Croix Rouge and of the university had presumably been displaced by Germans, to whom I was unknown!

"Return to prison seemed inevitable. But some curious psychical influence was obviously at work, and when I asked if someone might not be sent with me to Brussels to corroborate my statement, the officer, as he looked me in the face, replied quietly, to my intense surprise, 'No—but this telegram is not an answer to the question we had asked. You are free—to go to Brussels.' I imagined that at least we should have to be under German supervision, but I boldly suggested that at Brussels I should be no better off as regards my unit than before. 'Could we not go to England?' The answer was, 'I don't see why you shouldn't,' and so, accordingly, I did, traveling by hired automobile to Maestricht, then by train to Flushing and thence by steamer to Folkestone, and eventually arriving in London to find my unit waiting for further news from me, and meanwhile pursuing their ordinary avocations."

The Florence Nightingale of Today.

Mrs. St. Clair Stobart,

An Englishwoman, in whom the spirit of the "Lady With the Lamp" appears to live again. After exciting adventures in Brussels and Antwerp, she and her volunteer staff of women doctors and nurses are about to start for France at the invitation of the French Red Cross.

LOOKS FOR MORE.

You would have thought, wouldn't you, that the experiences told of thus far would have been enough to deter any woman from, Oliver Twist-like, asking for "more." But not Mrs. Stobart! Only a few days later, on hearing from the Belgian Red Cross that her services were sorely needed in Antwerp, she hurried off there, taking with her, as usual, no man, but her staff of women consisting of six physicians, twelve trained nurses, and ten orderlies, and, on getting to Antwerp, set up her hospital in, of all places, a summer concert hall.

This is the former gathering place of the Societe le l'Harmonie, in the Chaussee de Malines (just across the street from a convent kept by a German sisterhood) and here we find the "unit" just a fortnight later, with all their equipment complete and over 130 wounded men under their care. Most of these victims of shells, sharapnel and rifle-bullets occupy small iron beds; of which there are over a hundred, but some of them, too, are lying on straw mattresses on the tiers of the orchestral platform, and constantly others pour in. For over a week Mrs. Stobart has slept in her clothes and, she says, "grown independent as to whether she has more or less sleep than usual." As for her staff, most of them sleep, when off-duty, in the convent across the way, whence one and all are ready to be called at a second's notice.

LIVE IN DREAD.

Thus they have lived through the days of dread uncertainty in the city on the Scheldt. Once they have been officially notified that the city is to be evacuated and that they must prepare their patients to be taken to Ostend, close their hospital and be ready for flight themselves. Then has come the announcement that help is coming from England and that the official command to all Antwerp is to "hold on." And next day some of the Royal Marines and the Naval Brigade, conveyed in London motor omnibuses on their way to the forts, pass the hospital and get a rousing welcome from their devoted compatriots who shout cheerily, "Come in here if you get wounded!"

All this time the women doctors, the women nurses and women orderlies and their bustling, clear-headed directress are going on with their work of mercy. And truly pitiable are many of the cases that come to their hands. Some of the earliest arrivals were from a hospital at Lierre, which had been fired by German shells and been burnt over the heads of the patients. A bomb had burst through the roof, upon the bed of one wounded man, making imperative the amputation of both legs. This operation, too, had to be performed without chloroform, and the soldiers who described it said they were thankful to get away from the man's cries. Another man was shot through the lungs, stomach, head and arms, his features being undistinguishable beneath the clotted blood and dirt.

Thus we come to the Night of Terror in Antwerp. On the previous one (Tuesday, October 6,) terrific firing, apparently close at hand, had shaken the houses, and no one was surprised, next morning, to hear that the news from the forts was bad.

SIEGE OF ANTWERP.

"Just after twelve on the following night," said Mrs. Stobart, "we were all awakened by a sound we had never heard before. Though the air, just over our heads, a shell came screaming, and dropped with a ter-

BABY HOWITZER LATEST TERROR.

ALLIES GREATLY WORRIED BY KRUPP INVENTION.

Velocity of Shell is Slow, but it has the Effect of Tearing up Trenches in Every Direction with its Tremendous Amount of High Explosives.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Krupp's baby howitzer—"minenwurfer," it is called by the Germans—is the latest terror the allied armies are called upon to face in the trenches; and its novelty, its comparative simplicity and its destructiveness attest to the completeness of the German fighting equipment. The huge howitzers with which the Germans battered down the strongest Belgian forts were for a time the most-talked-of feature of the German artillery; but now that Col. E. D. Swinton, the British "eyewitness" with the expeditionary force, has drawn attention to this trench howitzer, the British press is describing it.

The uniqueness of the little howitzer lies in the fact that though its caliber is less than three inches, it throws a shell whose diameter is more than a foot, weighing, with its charge of high explosive, nearly 200 pounds. This is done by the simple expedient of attaching a small "adapter" to the shell, while the shell itself rests on the mouth of the gun in a sort of a cup.

The "adapter" is a metal bar, which fits perfectly into the bore of the gun. Being expelled, it takes with it the shell, which promptly separates itself and continues its flight alone, to fall in a trench where its explosion demolishes earthworks so arduously prepared by the allies. To visualize how it leaves the howitzer, one has but to imagine a small boy placing a cherry with a pin thrust in it over the mouth of a blow-gun. The "minenwurfer's" shell is the cherry; the "adapter" the pin.

The velocity of the shell is low—only 230 feet per second. The lowest elevation from which it is fired is 45 deg., an angle at which the shell travels 550 yards. Eighty degrees is the highest angle at which it may be fired —an elevation used when trenches are only 190 yards apart.

Traveling slowly toward a trench with the annoying leisure of a lobbed tennis ball, the course of the shell may be plainly followed. Men can dodge it, but its explosive interior works havoc with the trench. This is all that is expected of it. Though accounts from the allied front have given no circumstantial details of what it has done as a destructive agent, the effect can be surmised when one is reminded that four pounds of dynamite is considered sufficient to demolish breastworks from two to three feet in thickness.

The weight of the gun itself is only 130 pounds and its mounting weighs thirty pounds less. It is attached, however, to a heavy bed, or platform, weighing nearly 1000 pounds. Yet with the whole properly wheeled, two men can readily transport it short distances under normal conditions.

MANY LESSONS FROM THE WAR.

Eleven-inch Howitzers Main Reliance of Germans.

Stories of Tremendous Guns are not All Believed.

Damage at Liege Compared to Port Arthur Siege.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—In common with the military observers of every other nation, United States army officers are watching with keenest interest the artillery development of the warring nations of Europe as disclosed upon the battlefields of Belgium and France. Every news dispatch that mentions the great German guns is read closely and photographs are studied with greatest care; but so far nothing conclusive has been found to confirm the report that the Germans are placing their main reliance upon forty-two centimeter mobile howitzers.

American officers believe that the Germans have accomplished the destruction of opposing forts with standard eleven-inch howitzers and modern high explosives, which are virtually the same for all nations. The key to German successes of this character, they say, lies in the thoroughness with which the work is done and the accuracy of their shooting with eleven-inch weapons.

Photographs of the forts before Liege, Namur, Antwerp and elsewhere in the war zone show turret forts completely wrecked by German fire. There is nothing to indicate, however, that the damage was inflicted by eleven-inch or even smaller shells, ordnance experts believe. The enormous destructive force of these shells has been well known ever since the fall of Port Arthur in the Japanese-Russian war.

JAPS AT PORT ARTHUR.

The city was taken by the Japanese, notwithstanding modern fortifications of the highest type, naturally stronger than any that have been assailed during the present war since the forts were located on high hills rendering turret protection against fire unnecessary. They were reduced by eleven-inch coast defense howitzers brought from the Japanese coast with great labor and mounted after the exercise of engineering skill of the highest order to get them over the rough ground and into place, where they commanded the Russian fortresses. Once established behind nearby hills, absolutely safe from the fire of the Russian guns, the howitzers disposed of the enemy's boasted defenses with the same ease that the German guns have battered to pieces the Belgian forts.

American officers have studied with interest photographs of the Austrian mobile siege mortars. No scale has accompanied these pictures, but comparison of the size of the men as shown in the pictures with the bore or breach of the weapon beside which they stand, indicates the guns to be not greater than the eleven-inch and in many instances even smaller.

NOVEL TRANSPORTATION.

The most novel feature about these weapons to military eyes is the system of transportation employed by which the gun and its carriage are divided on two trucks, equipped with rimmed wheels and special devices to distribute the enormous weight over as much road service as possible. The whole train is hauled by a traction engine, propelled by steam or gasoline. Undoubtedly this has served to increase the mobility of the giant weapons; but officers are not satisfied that the necessity of carefully preparing the ground upon which the guns stand when discharged has been done away with. It is still a job for engineers to place these weapons and the long delay necessary to permit the emplacement of siege weapons, while a little reduced, is still a factor in military operations.

The United States is not contemplating the construction of very large siege guns, because the roads of the country are not suited to carry such enormous weights. The radius of action of the weapons would be limited to the immediate vicinity of a few of the larger cities or to a highway here or there that has been improved for a long distance. In the event of invasion it would be impossible to confine operations to territories best suited for defense and the guns would be virtually useless.

American Shoe Manufacturers Have Good Chance to Get More Large Orders for the Army.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MANCHESTER, Nov. 14. — The Guardian calls attention to the fact that agents for American shoe manufacturers are already in England studying the situation brought about by the extraordinary demand for shoes to supply the troops, and the paper predicts there will be another invasion of American shoes unless English firms keep their prices low and make unusual efforts to meet the immediate demand for marching boots of all sorts.

So far the British government has been forced to take almost any sort of boots it could obtain for its troops. It was impossible at the outset to stick to regulation service boots and conditions do not improve to a marked degree in spite of the fact that most manufacturers are working extra time.

As much of the best box calf used in high-grade men's shoes came from Germany there is a dearth of this sort of material. "Kips," the leather from which the uppers of standard army boots are made, are double the price they were before the war.

GEN. JANUARY GERMAN ALLY:

Kaiser's Men Welcome Deep Snows in Russia.

Mistakes of Napoleon will not be Repeated.

How the Bicycle Squad Bluffed the French.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—The prospect of a winter campaign in Russia presents no terrors to the German military writers, now dealing with the problem of a long continuance of the war. Far from anticipating a repetition of Napoleon's disastrous experience in the Moscow campaign, they look upon the great Corsican's conquerors, Gen. December and Gen. January, as allies who will remove for them two of the greatest obstacles to operations against the Russians, namely, the transportation problem and that of overcoming the natural defenses of the country—its swamps and rivers.

The expert of the Deutsche Tageszeitung points out, too, that the Russians, in order to stem the German advance, have relied largely on entrenchments laid out on a tremendous scale. Once the ground is solidly frozen the construction of such works for defence will be greatly hampered.

"Every battle has demonstrated the value to the Russians of the trenches and other military field works," says the writer. "It has been difficult in all cases to take positions so protected, and the Russian successes have been mostly due to the laying-out of fortified positions in the open field.

"With the ground frozen and no longer easily worked with pick and shovel, the laying-out of earthworks will be made extremely difficult, and the Russians, whose forte from the times of Napoleon to Mukden, has lain in the defence of field fortifications, will thus lose the most important factor in the defensive tactics.

"Troops operating on the offensive must deal with the 'fifth element,' as Napoleon called the Russian mud. In the winter the bad roads are covered with snow and may then be used by sleighs, and the great rivers and swamps which form the principal factors in the Russian defense lines will then be covered with ice, permitting easy crossing everywhere.

"The idea that winter was the best season in which an attack on Russia might be made is that of a genial soldier of history, Charles XII of Sweden, who afterwards demonstrated the correctness of his conclusion. He waited with his advance into Russia in 1707 until cold weather had set in, and after the rivers and swamps of Poland had been frozen over, he crossed the Vistula on December 29, and advanced rapidly as far as Wilna, where he intended to overtake the retreating Russians. The enemy, however, retreated again, and this winter campaign brought no result, because King Charles could not get the Russians to stand.

"Napoleon counted on the aid of winter in his campaign in 1806. But the weather was against him. December of that year left the roads as soft as they had been in the autumn, and the French were obliged to quarter themselves upon the Poles and wait for cold weather. Frost finally came on February 1 and six days later the battle at Prussian-Eylau was fought. Napoleon, as well as KiKng Charles, availed himself of the opportunity offered by harder roads and frozen rivers.

"As Carl Bleibtrau in his work on the campaign of Napoleon in Russia in 1812 has shown, it was not the cold that demanded the greatest sacrifices in human lives. Napoleon lost 200,000 men on his advance into Russia and only 100,000 men on his retreat. It was also shown then that the Russians suffered as much from the cold as did the French and that both armies were hampered by the ice. Napoleon's retreat was due to a shortage of powder, only one-half of the quantity thought available being on hand. The supply service had failed altogether."

Maj. Moraht, the military expert of the Tageblatt, points out that railroads have also revolutionized conditions since Napoleon's time. Railroad construction now advances almost as fast as an army and to an army provided with half a dozen lines of steel leading back to its base the problem of ammunition and food supply presents no difficulties, even in Russia.

BIG BLUFF SUCCESSFUL.

In the recent operations of the Germans against the French on the left bank of the Marne a bridge over that river was held by a ruse for six hours by a bicycle squad of fifteen pioneers, with the German vanguard twenty kilometers away and with an English brigade in bivouac two kilometers west of the bridge and a French cavalry division a short distance east of it.

The officer in charge of the pioneers had been instructed to ascertain whether the bridge was still intact. On his arrival he found that such was the case and pursuant to instructions proceeded to fortify the little shanty of the ridge-tender by placing sandbags against its walls. In addition, the telegraph and telephone wires running across the bridge were cut and the tracks of the railroad were torn up.

While the pioneers were busily engaged in this, about 100 French reservists put in appearance. The men had just been called in and had to cross the bridge to reach their destination. How to hold the bridge until the arrival of German troops was, in the face of these odds, a problem which the officer solved by strategy. He explained that he and his men were an English bicycle patrol which had been detailed to prevent anybody crossing the bridge until 7 o'clock that night. The barricade which the men were building, added the officer, was intended to facilitate the defense of the bridge against the Germans. As the German officer stated in his letter which brought this news, the French reservists believed the story, though they found it difficult to understand why they should be barred from crossing the bridge. Finally this also was overcome by the plausibility of the story told by the officer, and later the Frenchmen went to a near-by village to secure meat and wine for the supposed English patrol.

The German officer was urged by the French reservists to retreat when the Germans put in appearance after six hours of anxious waiting by the pioneer squad. This he refused to do with the remark that he did not fear the Germans. Later the French reservists had the doubtful pleasure of hearing the officer tell them; "We are Germans also." The officer has been given the iron cross.

PATRIOTISM IS PATRIOTISM.

The German Imperial Patent Office will not permit the commercialization of patriotism. Names of military and political leaders, of battles, and the like which are connected with the history of the European war, will not be accepted as trade marks. Such names should be used as expressions of patriotism and not for commercial purposes, according to the views of the Patent Office.

A BLUFF GOES ON FIRING LINE.

OFFICER WAS SCARED, BUT FEIGNED BRAVERY TO ENCOURAGE HIS MEN.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Oct. 12.—How an unnamed lieutenant-colonel in the French army stiffened the courage of his men and his own, when they were about to charge the enemy for the first time, is told in the Figaro. The colonel, wounded but convalescent, is described as relating the anecdote on the train, as follows:

"It was in the course of one of the numerous battles on our right wing. For the first time my regiment was about to go under fire. The moment was decisive; the regiment had their battle formation and now it was necessary, over open ground, to march straight and resolutely at the enemy. Their fire was hot, and already had produced ravages in our ranks. It was scourging. I had taken my position at the head of the regiment and given the order 'forward,' but, separated from their base, my men hesitated. In vain I repeated the command. Then, returning toward them, I said:

"'What? You flinch? All you will gain out of this turn-about is death on the spot without having been of any use. Attention! Take my arm, one of you, and all of you lock arms, and arm in arm, gun in hand, we'll advance. You'll find that's not so bad.'

"My word! the idea decided them, and arm in arm we started forward. They soon got warmed up and for a little I was nearly forced to hold them back. Oh! the brave fellows!"

A lady who was listening, said:

"It was fortunate, colonel, that you yourself was not afraid." "Not afraid!" exclaimed the colonel. "Oh madam, if you knew what shivers went through me. But when I saw them hesitate, I had to set an example. I was bluffing."

SUFFRAGE CLUB IS DISSOLVED.

ALL OBJECTS ACCOMPLISHED IN NORWAY.

Women All Have the Vote and Society, Which has Existed Since 1885, Disbands, There Being no Longer Any Reason to Continue its Activities.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHRISTIANIA, Nov. 15.—After an existence dating from 1885, the Society for Suffrage for Women has been dissolved, there being no longer any reason for its activities, since the women in Norway have now obtained equal rights with men in the matter of voting in city, county aid state elections.

In 1896 women paying taxes on incomes of more than $120 a year were granted the vote in city and council elections, and in 1907 the same privilege was given them in state elections. In 1910 every woman over 25 years of age, who had never been a public charge or sentenced in the courts, was granted suffrage in county elections, no matter what she earned, and in 1913 the Storthing without debate unanimously passed a law giving women common suffrage in state elections.

There has never been any militant suffrage agitation in Norway; the women leading the movement have worked quietly and made headway by means of pamphlets and lectures. Leading men in the political world have helped them without noisy demonstration of any sort.

For many years women have been members of city councils and county boards. While they have not been prominent as leaders in reform movements, they have proved themselves less apt than men to become professional politicians who hold office for the sake of personal profit. A couple of years ago one of their leaders held a seat in Parliament for a few months as a substitute for a male member, but since then there has been no other woman member. It will doubtless be a few years before women acquire the experience to be represented in proportion to their numbers. At present about 35 per cent. of the electorate are women. The majority of women voters continue to cast their votes for men.

FORTUNES OF WAR.

LIVE IN GERMAN COLONY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—By a strange stroke of fortune, says the Pall Mall Gazette, a large number of the Belgian refugees who have arrived in London are finding accommodation in a district which, before the outbreak of hostilities, formed one of the chief German colonies in the metropolis—Forest Hill and Sydenham. Many of the visitors are well-to-do and are renting good-sized houses in the neighborhood, while less fortunately endowed are being quartered upon sympathizers. Although the German male residents have gone back to Germany, there are still a number of their women folk around Forest Hill.

FIGHT FIRST; TALK AFTER.

This, in Short, is Japan's Policy in the War.

German Influence in Pacific Must be Crushed.

Disposition Seized Territory be Settled Later.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, Oct. 17.—In order to prevent a false impression abroad Japanese officials are careful not to use the word "occupation" when speaking of the capture of German possessions in the Pacific by a Japanese fleet, or of the seizure of the railroad in Shantung province, China. The Chinese government has registered several protest against the taking of the railroad on the ground that it is a violation of China's neutrality. The Japanese claim that the seizure of the entire line from Tsing-tau to Tsinanfu was, like the taking of Jaluit Island in the Marshall group, a military necessity in the conduct of the war, and in the elimination of the root of the German influence in Eastern Asia.

The Chinese contention that China, having staked out a war zone with Weihsien as the western point, Japan had no right to move west of Weihsien, and seize the railroad as far as Tsinanfu, is not accepted by Japan, who maintains she never agreed to stay within any zone. She had told China that the Germans (who really own the road) used it for military purposes before the arrival of the Japanese, and that the reduction of the fortress at Tsing-tao carried with it inevitably the seizure of the whole length of the Shantung Railroad.

The question of permanent possession of the Shantung Railroad, like the possession of Jaluit Island, according to the Japanese, must be settled at the conclusion of the war. So far as Kiao-chow is concerned, it is expected here that Japan will live up to her promise to restore the place eventually to China.

Everybody here realizes that Japan's action in the South Pacific is of peculiar interest to the United States. The Marshall Islands lie between the Philippine Islands and Hawaii, and to the southeast of Guam Island, which is a possession of the United States, and a rallying point for the cable between the Philippines and the Pacific Coast of the United States.

An official of the Foreign Office explained the capture of Jaluit to the correspondent of the Associated Press.

"The Japanese squadron is working in conjunction with the British fleet in capturing or destroying the German fleet, and in eradicating the root of German influence. So far as her policy is concerned, Japan stands by what Premier Count Okuma announced on August 18, namely, that she harbors no design for territorial aggrandizement nor entertains any desire to promote any other selfish end. Count Okuma added that Japan's warlike operations would not extend beyond the limits necessary for the attainment of removing the root of German influence in the Far East, and the defense of her own legitimate interests. The German warships are a constant menace to British and Japanese merchantmen and the destruction of the naval base at Jaluit was a measure necessitated and justified in the conduct of the operations against the enemy."

The correspondent alluded to a reference made by a local newspaper to the Takahira-Root agreement of 1908.

"I do not see how the capture of Jaluit brings into play that agreement," was the comment of the official. He added:

"That agreement is directed to the maintenance of the status quo in the Pacific Ocean and provides that the United States and Japan shall communicate with each other should any event occur threatening the status quo.

"But we do not consider that the capture of Jaluit changes the status quo of the Marshall Islands. It is purely a war measure taken in conjunction with the operations of the British fleet. Our bluejackets may remain there until the war is over, and it is then that the question of occupation will be considered and settled."

CAPTURE GERMAN LANCES.

Weapons are Made of Steel, Quite Heavy, but Easily Managed by an Expert.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MANCHESTER (Eng.) Nov. 14.—"Among the most interesting of the war trophies that have found their way over here," says the Manchester Guardian, "are some specimens of the German lance. It is not a wooden pole, but an eleven or twelve-foot steel tube. It is very heavy and at first seems quite unmanageable to a man of ordinary strength. But two-thirds of the way down from the head towards the butt is a wrapping of thick twine to give a grip. And if you hold it there, and there only, you find that it is so evenly poised that, as one admiring observer remarked, you could write your name with it.

"There have been some descriptions of cases where these tubular lances have crumpled up in action like an overburdened steel mast on a racing yacht. Perhaps that may be accounted for by the peculiar shape of the head. There is no point or spread head of any kind. Instead, there is a solid piece of iron shaped exactly like the end of a giant poker, square and quite blunt."

RICH OF BRESLAU FLEE RUSS RAID.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

GENEVA (Switzerland, via Paris) Nov. 27.—Seven thousand refugees, mostly members of wealthy German families in Breslau, have arrived in Munich during the last forty-eight hours. They declare that the city is in a state of consternation owing to the reported approach of the Russians, and that business is at a standstill.

Risks Life with Nurses.

rific crash upon the roof of the house next to us. Another followed within a few seconds and fell on a house on the other side of the road, splitting it in two and firing it. From that time, at the average rate of four a minute, shells continued to drop on all sides of us. But even at the first alarming sound there was no excitement among the staff. Everybody in the convent quietly and quickly made themselves ready, and in a body proceeded across the road to the hospital as we had previously arranged.

"There the night staff were already at work carrying the helpless patients on stretchers and helping the others from the concert hall down the steep steps to the dark little underground caves which already had been prepared by Miss Macnaughten, our chief orderly, for the purpose. Our hospital happened to be in the direct line of fire of the ammunition depot, which was, of course, a mark for the enemy's guns. Shells consequently dropped around us on all sides. When stretchers were not available, those frail women carried men downstairs on their backs. It was not an easy task, moving in haste some of the severely wounded patients to the comparative safety of the cellars. There we made them as comfortable as possible on the mattresses and camp beds and could then only hope that they might not, with ourselves, be burnt alive if the flimsy building caught fire and blocked up our narrow exit."

This did not happen, but by the next morning the road between the convent and the hospital, which Mrs. Stobart and her staff had to cross continually, was literally plowed up by the shells. The roof of the house on one side of the convent had been blown off and the house on the other side was in flames. The houses in the street next to them were in ruins, while all the windows in the convent and the hospital were shattered. "In the streets," said Mrs. Stobart, "there was not a sign of life except here and there a scuttling figure with a bundle in its arms hurrying to get out of Antwerp before it was too late."

GET OUT OF ANTWERP.

It had now become a case of "save himself who can." Mrs. Stobart and her party had no mind to be commandeered to nurse German soldiers back to health to fight against their own kith and kin. They resolved, accordingly, once they had sent off their remaining patients (ninety already had left on foot) to get out of Antwerp as best they could, though how they then had no idea. Meanwhile, as there was no wheeled vehicle left in the town, the directress herself set off on foot to try to find the officials of the Red Cross and see what arrangements could be made for taking the wounded charges away. "Shells were dropping here, there, and everywhere, as I trudged from one office to another," says she, "but although one felt that there was plenty of danger for other people there never, curiously enough, seemed to be any for oneself."

The Red Cross folk, it appeared, could not help. They had no transport left. Just when things looked blackest, however, there suddenly appeared a motor lorry driven by an English soldier who had lost his convoy, and this was promptly commandeered by Mrs. Stobart's transport orderly, Miss Benjamin, who, ignoring the shells that were dropping all around her, hailed the "Tommy" as he was passing. In this lorry six of the worst cases were taken to a hospital which had good cellars. "They could take no more," said Mrs. Stobart, "and so, after placing two cases in charge of the sisters at the convent, who refused to leave their cellars, we packed the remainder (sixteen,) on the last procurable lorry found at the wharf, and sent them in charge of one of our doctors, a sister and two nurses and an interpreter to get out of the town toward the Dutch frontier."

This party which, after various adventures, eventually reached a hospital at Ostend, was to send back, before they left the town, means of transport for the rest of the staff—numbering some twenty—but this never turned up. The last adventure of Mrs. Stobart and her assistants was to be the most exciting of all. Still under shell fire, they had packed up all the portable equipment, and now, all the afternoon, they waited for the sight of the conveyance which was to have been sent by the lorry party. But 3 o'clock, 4 o'clock, 5 o'clock came and no sign of the transport. "The city," said Mrs. Stobart, "was now deserted of all life, a city of the dead. The only sounds were the screaming and banging of the still bombarding shells, and the crackling of the fired houses." It was now almost dusk and the little band had about given up hope when the means of escape arrived.

Mrs. Stobart and the clever women under her, Londoners all, have seen and traveled on some thousands of motor-omnibuses in their day, but it is doubtful if any of these conveyances ever "looked so good" to them as three London "generals" which, in the gathering gloom, they suddenly saw coming along at a breakneck pace through the street in which their hospital stood. The directress ran out in the road and spread out her arms. Quickly the motor busses drew up and she asked the drivers, English "Tommies," if they would help them to the frontier.

"If you're quick as lightning," was the reply, "but we have to get over that bridge of boats before it is blown up. And, maybe you don't know it, but these busses are filled with ammunition, and with these here shells fallin' all about—well, you must decide if you think you want to risk it!"

CLIMB INTO BUS.

The Englishwomen hesitated not a second. In less time than it takes to tell it, they had collected their handbags, and were all seated on the boxes of ammunition inside of the motor busses, which promptly started off again, and a wild and thrilling ride began. Probably no party of women ever before had or ever will have such an omnibus ride as this score of doctors, nurses and orderlies with their directress. The screaming shells rained on all sides of them, they swept through streets empty of people in which houses were burning on each side of them, and in many places there were huge holes in the road, which had to be avoided, where shells had fallen and burst. But the "Tommies" proved expert drivers, no accident occurred, and almost before Mrs. Stobart and her companions realized it, the Scheldt was in sight.

Probably a painter would have reveled in that night scene. "It was 7 o'clock," said Mrs. Stobart, "and behind us the town was in utter darkness save for the illumination caused by the burning houses. In front of us gigantic flames from the blazing oil tanks along the river gave the impression that the sky itself must be on fire, while, on the swaying bridge, streams of khaki-clad soldiers—Antwerp's last hope—were crossing in orderly retreat into the darkness. And across we rattled in our turn, certainly the last of the hospital staff and probably of the inhabitants of the town to do so, and a few moments later there was a roar, a deafening crash, and it was gone. We ourselves were dumped down upon the road by our 'Tommies' and told we must fend for ourselves, but on finding and interviewing the general in command, we at once were supplied with motors to take us to St. Gillis. There we arrived at midnight, slept for three hours on the floor of a hospitable convent, and went on early next morning by troop train carrying the naval brigade to Ostend from which it was a comparatively easy matter to reach London."

BARR FAMILY GOES TO WAR.

FAMOUS NOVELIST SENDS THREE SONS TO THE FRONT.

Boys are Prominent in Art and Music, While Two Accomplished Young Daughters are Doing Heroic Work in the Various London Relief Camps.

[Copyright, 1914, by Curtis Brown.]
[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—No white feathers will be distributed at No. 1 Clyde street, South Kensington. That, in the vernacular of our native land, is one of the surest things you know.

"No. 1, Clyde street," a modest little house in a quiet, typically Kensingtonian little street, is the abode of James Barr, the aged novelist, only less well known than his late brother, Robert Barr, and of his family, which proves to be as accomplished, and, incidentally, as patriotic a one, as, perhaps, could be found in all England.

This family numbers three sons, one a young artist of really extraordinary powers; one an uncommonly promising singer, and one at present chiefly remarkable for youthful indomitability and his command over the bugle, and of an equal number of girls, the two elder of whom, besides being exceedingly comely, have marked talent in several directions. Of these every one except the baby of the household, whose years number only 14, is devoting him or herself to the service of their country, and, in the case of the boys, each of whom is being turned into a soldier, preparing to risk his life and sacrifice his artistic career at whatever moment he is called upon to do so.

THREE SHORT MEN, AND WARLIKE ALSO.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—It appears that the three shortest men in the House of Commons are three of the most warlike. Their names are Wedgwood Benn, L. S. Amery and H. J. Tennant. The first two have already gone to the front, and Mr. Tennant is Parliamentary under-Secretary for War. Mr. Amery also saw service in South Africa. Mr. Benn is so short that he is affectionately known in the House as "Little Ben" and "Buttons."

bike, a unique lawn party, altogether merry time will Monday evening memorable for a group of Santa Ana girls and their chaperons, who were entertained at the charming Tustin home of Mr. and Mrs. Volney V. Tubbs with Miss Eileen Tubbs, their attractive eldest daughter, assisting. The young women walked the three miles between the two cities, and were cheered as they reached their destination by the glow of an out-of-door fire that crackled merrily in an impromptu fireplace built on the lawn. A circle of gay Japanese lanterns swung over an area of the lawn about the size of a spacious room and within the illuminated space were comfortable chairs awaiting the weary hikers. The cosy spot had been arranged by Mr. Tubbs, who proceeded with his hospitable labors by immediately barbecuing the steaks that furnished the meat course for an appetizing supper that tasted more than delicious to the hungry pedestrians. Then there were hot scalloped potatoes and steaming coffee with pickles and olives, fruit salads and fancy cakes, all served on real picnic plates and cups. A merry evening of stunts and kindergarten games was enjoyed before the return hike to Santa Ana. The girls spurned all offers of automobiles, and completed the pedestrian round. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs and Miss Tubbs, the party included Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Morrow, Misses Lera State, Mary Whipple, Rena Stafford, Joy Baker, Marguerite Wallace, Pet Heywang, Gertrude Potts, Ruth Armstrong, Mildred Britton, Lurline Dickey, Ruth Ley, Hazel Stockslager, Esther Swadell, Marjorie Tubbs, Zelma Sturgeon, Pearl Plumb, Adeline Hill.

Laurel Canyon.

ONE of the most delightful informal affairs given recently was the dinner on Monday evening, given by Mr. and Mrs. K. V. Redpath to the members of the Monday Night Card Club. The spacious home in Laurelwood was resplendent with fall flowers and a magnificent basket of fruit held the place of honor in the center of the long dining-table. Mrs. Redpath was assisted by her two daughters, Misses Ethel and Florence, and Miss Phillis Ephlin.

Those attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Charles F. Norton, A. C. Baker, E. C. Comer, F. J. Ephlin, R. D. Vercler and Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Small.

Many happy parties were planned for Thanksgiving. The C. S. Manns and Mr. and Mrs. Don Porter motored to San Diego on Wednesday to spend several days with the S. S. Porters at Hotel San Diego. Dr. and Mrs. Small and family spent the day at San Gabriel with Mrs. George Blake. The Jack Aagaards and mother, Mrs. Saferty, motored to the city and had a table reserved at the Alexandria with a party of friends. Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Ephlin entertained the E. C. Comers. The L. A. Neumans and R. B. Bowles motored to the beach. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Pomeroy attended a family dinner in Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. George Birkel motored out from the city and enjoyed a family dinner before the immense fireplace that lends so much charm to their canyon home.

The L. A. Neumans have leased their East Hollywood home for the winter and are domiciled in "Laurel Lodge" much to the joy of Emerson and Miss Edith, who enjoy a good game of tennis on the canyon court.

The monthly party of the Mountaineers' Club was a jolly affair, the board of directors being the genial hosts of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Comer and son Marion of Hollywood spent the Thanksgiving holidays in the Kidder cottage.

On December 3 Rev. C. C. Selectman, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, will address the Laurel Canyon Women's Club on "How Club Women May Better the Industrial and Social Conditions." Miss Merced Cresielska will sing. The club will meet with Mrs. J. A. Matthews.

Mrs. Francis Rogers of Long Beach is sojourning in the canyon and has as her guest this week Miss Susan Comers, also of Long Beach.

The Mountaineers' Club is planning an exceptionally enjoyable card party for the evening of December 11. There will be good music for dancing for those not caring for cards. This is to be a benefit affair and the committee in charge are Messrs. and Mmes. L. A. Newman, G. D. Tully, D. M. Small, H. V. Platt and J. A. Matthews.

On Thursday of last week members of the Laurel Canyon Woman's Club and several guests made the trip to "Kia Ora," the picturesque home of Dr. Mary Jennings, situated on top of the highest peak in Hollywood Glen. Dr. Jennings lived and worked among the Indians for a number of years and her home is a gallery of rare samples of the arts and crafts of the red men. The club lesson of the afternoon was a talk on "Prison Reform" by Mrs. W. A. Galentine, the enthusiastic State chairman, who made a strong and convincing appeal for a municipal farm. Mrs. E. C. Comer took the club on a journey to Salt Lake, and Mrs. Jennings told some interesting reminiscences of a visit among the Mormons. A cooling glass of punch with wafers was served and the ladies then enjoyed the wonderful panorama of mountains and valley as seen from the porch of this hospitable home.

La Habra.

THE home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Zike had a festive appearance on Sunday last, when a number of little folks gathered to make merry the sixth birthday anniversary of their daughter, Miss Marguerite. The charming little hostess was in her height of glory and delightfully entertained the guests with every game imaginable for such an occasion, until they were ushered into the dining-room, beautiful in its decorations of bougainvilleas and smilax mingled with fern. The table was draped with white ribbon and above the center was a huge white bow, from which was suspended a kewpie doll in pink, and beside each plate was a kewpie doll, a favor for the little guests. Many tiny candles were placed about the room, which furnished light while the little ones were refreshed with cake, candy and orangeade.

Mrs. Lash and daughter Bell of Los Angeles spent last Sunday with F. X. Thuet and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leutwiler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Leutwiler and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McGill and family and Miss Wanda Davis and W. Wentworth are some of the people from here who motored to Corona to see the auto races.

Claremont.

THE Rembrandt Club met at Rembrandt Hall last Thursday afternoon for an interesting meeting. The club was called to order by the ringing of a miniature temple bell. Before the regular programme was presented the club voted to hold another chrysanthemum show next autumn and also to hold a rose and wild flower show in the spring. Mrs. F. W. Thomas presented the first paper on "Temple Architecture in Japan," emphasizing the value of Japanese architecture. Mrs. Hannah T. Jenkins gave an interesting explanation of the difference between a Shinto and a Buddhist shrine. Large numbers of pictures added to the interest of the meeting.

Although the Corona road races and the mountains claimed many Claremont people on Thanksgiving Day, there were as usual many dinner parties and family reunions. An unusually large family party was that held at the home of Mrs. Abbot on Third and Dartmouth, and included members of the Gilette and Lorbeer families. It has been customary for many years past for these families to meet at Thanksgiving time, and this year fifty-four were served at dinner.

Many out-of-town guests as well as the guests residing here formed dinner parties at the Claremont Inn Thursday.

Miss Marion Ewing gave a brief review on "The Promised Land," and Miss Frances Clapp took up a later book. During the course of the evening President Blaisdell spoke to the club about furnishing a room of the college mission house, money for which has already been given. The matter was taken up with much enthusiasm by the club. Popcorn and candy concluded the evening.

Lordsburg-La Verne.

INVITATIONS have been issued for the marriage of Miss Helyn Belle Miller to Loren L. Ratekin on Wednesday evening, November 25. Miss Miller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Miller and Mr. Ratekin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ratekin, both families being prominent in society and church circles. Miss Miller was graduated from Pomona College last year.

A happy reunion was enjoyed at the Lordsburg Hotel this week when Mrs. E. D. Newsome arrived from Victoria, B. C., for a visit with Mrs. H. H. Leonard. The two ladies are half-sisters and they had not seen each other for over forty-five years. Their parents parted when the girls were 5 and 8 years of age, respectively, and the present Mrs. Newsome went from the eastern home with her mother to Oregon. For the past nineteen years the two had been totally lost to each other, until recently each discovered the location of the other by accident.

C. E. Dresher and family arrived home this week from Surray, N. D., where they passed the summer.

Hemet.

THE home of Mrs. Verne Barger on Santa Fe avenue was the scene of a charming social affair on last Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Barger entertained in compliment to Miss Florence Martin, a bride-elect of the season. The guests of the afternoon included twelve of th most intimate friends of the honoree. After spending the afternoon in games, the guests adjourned to the dining-room, which was daintily decorated with pink and white. After the dinner the bride-elect was showered with packages, all wrapped in white and tied with colored ribbon. Miss Martin found great pleasure in opening these as each one was a dainty and useful gift for the new home. Miss Martin is to become the bride of Archie Richie the last of this month.

Mrs. E. A. Davis, teacher of the Junior Bible Class of the Baptist Sunday-school, met with a pleasant surprise last Sunday morning. Upon descending to the classroom in the basement, she found that the class had preceded her and had prepared to honor her birthday. A number of handsome new rugs covered the floor and in front of the teacher's chair a table was in place for her individual use. Mrs. Davis has taught this class for seven years and from a very small number it has grown in membership to thirty-nine.

The most pretentious social event of the season in Hemet was the one given by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Butlin and Will Butlin at the Magnolias in Valle Vista, last Saturday evening. The affair was attended by nearly a hundred guests and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The rooms of the Magnolias were exquisitely decorated for the occasion. Dancing was indulged in by the younger guests, while the older ones found cards a diversion. The entertainment lasted until long after midnight, and even then some were reluctant to leave. At 12 o'clock a buffet supper was served. The meal was prepared by Mrs. M. G. Stone, hostess at the Magnolias, and was exceptionally fine.

Redlands.

ONE of the interesting weddings of the week in Redlands was that of Miss Mary Bliss and Leon M. Knowlton, who were married on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith on Vine street. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Mrs. Knowlton. There was great interest in the wedding among the young people of the city, because of Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton's efforts to keep it a secret, which failed in the trouble they had in getting a license. Mrs. Knowlton lacked a few weeks of being of age. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. B. Matthews. The house was decorated with La France roses and chrysanthemums and in the living-room an altar was made of bamboo, pampas grass and pepper boughs. The bride wore a pretty gown of white satin, with garlands of crystal and pearl, and in her hair a wreath of fragrant orange blossoms. She was attended by her sister, and Willard Knowlton was best man. A wedding breakfast was served to twenty-eight guests after the ceremony.

Society folk of this city and especially those who have made a success of the annual flower show, will gather at the Contemporary Clubhouse on Monday evening for a dinner. The dinner is under the auspices of the Gardeners' Club and the Horticultural and Improvement Society. After the dinner there will be short talks on gardening and civic subjects. Ernest Braunton of Los Angeles, one of the best-known landscape gardeners in the south, is to be the principal speaker.

Mrs. Herbert E. Wise of No. 775 Linda Vista street, the wife of one of the professors at the university, entertained on Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. C. E. Hubach, wife of the new dean of the department of music, and Mrs. H. T. Tilton, wife of the new professor of social science. There were about 100 guests at the tea be-

HOW THE AIR WILL RESTORE GRAY HAIR

A Proved Method by Which Gray and Faded Hair Is Made Natural Color. Not a Dye.

Are you one of the thousands suffering from premature old age caused by gray hairs—and yet, you think that nothing can prevent it?

Science has worked out a most efficient restorative for just such cases as yours. By it you bring back to their natural color the whitening strands that are so rapidly destroying your youthful appearance. You can also keep others from coming in. Not by dyes, but by so simple a process as the action of air through the use of Hay's Hair Health.

This is a natural method. Hay's Hair Health contains elements which stimulate each hair and hair root. In addition it contains an ingredient which, when applied, causes the faded gray hairs to be gradually but surely restored to color, through the action of oxygen in the air. Nothing could be simpler or more effective.

According to all druggists who sell and recommend Hay's Hair Health, this wonderful preparation is meeting with great popularity in Los Angeles. They have instructions from the makers, Philo Hay Specialties Company, Newark, N. J., to refund price of every bottle that fails to please. 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Colton.

FESTIVE decorations of rustling bamboo, tall cat-tails, greenery and roses, twinkling lights, lilting music and a merry throng of dancers, the feminine portion of lovely bright-hued frocks, all served to make the scene within Masonic Hall Tuesday evening one of the prettiest presented for many a day. The occasion was the charity ball given under the auspices of the Philanthropy Committee of the Colton Woman's Club and which proved not only a financial but a brilliant social success. Throughout the programme of dances, the music for which was furnished by Muschewske's orchestra, cider was dipped for the thirsty from an attractive table. Members of the Philanthropy Committee received at the door and forty of the men and women prominent socially in Colton served as patrons and patronesses.

With a bride-elect and a bride in their midst, there was little need of "weather" talk at the happy meeting of the Dozen and Two Club, Monday night, at the home of Miss Leone Erichsen, who, with Miss Marion Lantz, was hostess of the gathering. The assembly of members was a courtesy to Miss Rowena Bailey and Mrs. Harvey G. French, and during the evening a pretty cut glass nappy was presented the former, following a custom of the little club. A white and pink color scheme was used in the decorations of the home and also on the long table where an elaborate late-hour luncheon was served.

A wedding of interest during the week was that of Miss Gertrude Miller and Raymond Garst, which was solemnized Thursday morning at the home of the bride's mother, Elder L. D. Perkins, pronouncing the nuptial service. Immediately after a daintily-appointed wedding breakfast the bridal pair left for Los Angeles by auto, to remain over Thanksgiving. The bride has been chief operator for the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company here, while the groom is a popular clerk for the Southern Pacific.

Rialto.

ONE of the largest affairs of the early winter was the reception given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Harry Brimmer and Mrs. Robert Gray at the home of the former, in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Dunn. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Dunn were Mr. and Mrs. Porter Brimmer, who in January celebrated their sixty-second anniversary. In the living-room, where the guests were received, a pretty and artistic arrangement of bamboo, plumosus, and beautiful yellow chrysanthemums were used. In the dining-room the large tea table, which was set with a handsome embroidered cloth, had as its centerpiece a huge bouquet of the yellow chrysanthemums, with streamers of yellow tulle extended to the corners of the table. Mrs. John White of Los Angeles, for many years a friend of the hostess and honorees, was responsible for the artistic decorations. Many beautiful gifts were left by the host of friends who called. Among other gifts was a purse of gold, which was presented by Rev. Mathes with the congratulations of many friends of the couple. Assisting Mmes. Brimmer and Gray were Mmes. George and Thomas Dunn and Arthur Brimmer. Refreshments were daintily served by Misses Mary and Margaret Dunn, of Huntington Park, grand-daughters of the honorees, and Misses Pauline and Susan Wellborn and Edna Mae Winslow. Guests from San Bernardino, Colton, Highland and Bloomington were numbered among the scores of Rialto friends who called during the afternoon.

Miss Isabel Leekley, who is to become the bride of Franklin Earl Downing in the early spring, was the guest of honor at a most beautifully-appointed dinner party given by the Misses Pauline and Susan Wellborn Friday evening, last. A pink and white color motif was used through all the table decorations. A beautifully gowned bride doll accompanied by her groom adorned the table as an appropriate center decoration. Extending from a centerpiece, a huge heart of pink rose buds and ferns were garlands of pink and white paper which formed a canopy over the merry guests, who were Misses Grace Bemis, Frances Farmer, Iva Moffatt, Ethel Nish, Marian Richards, Laura and Leota Humphrey, Ruey Seiple, Erna Robertson, Bernice Blankenship, Elizabeth Johnson and the bride-elect.

Rev. and Mrs. O. W. Reinius were holiday guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woolphert of Pasadena.

CHILDREN at the school age, eager to romp and play, eat at odd hours and bolt their food. It is inevitable that constipation or indigestion will follow, and then it is important that you have a remedy at hand that will regulate the bowels and carry off the congested waste. In the opinion of thousands of families the best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it acts easily and quickly and is free from opiates or narcotic drugs of any description. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and non-griping, and is especially intended for women, children and old folks, for these should not use strong pills, powders, salt waters or such cathartics. Two generations of mothers have kept themselves and children healthy and happy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which can be purchased in any drug store for fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

It is a great family remedy for constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, belching, gas, headaches, etc. By keeping the bowels open it helps to prevent colds, piles, fevers and such ills. Mrs. W. A. Stevens of 227 West Cottage place, York, Va., has been a constant user of it herself and gives it to her little grandson. Since doing that she says she has not needed a doctor for him. Mr. John F. Morton of 1008 First avenue, West, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is a family man who is never without Syrup Pepsin in his medicine cabinet and who believes every family should have it at hand for stomach and bowel emergencies.

WORLD'S LEADING PROFIT-SHARER

Nelson O. Nelson has Divided Millions Among his Workmen and Customers—Will Show How the Cost of Living can be Brought Down.

BY JAMES B. MORROW.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 15.—The picture that Nelson O. Nelson sees may be described in this fashion: groups of buyers living out of stores owned by themselves and groups of producers selling in those markets where prices are best.

Mr. Nelson is one of the most famous profit-sharers in the world, being as widely known in Europe as he is in the United States. He is no dreamer with lofty thoughts and an empty purse, but a rich man, who puts his preachments into constant and practical effect.

Twenty-eight years ago his manufacturing business was contained in a small building which he rented. He and his co-operative company now have factories in St. Louis, Leclaire, Ill., Noblesville, Ind., and Bessemer, and have branch houses in Memphis, Houston, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, and Joplin, Mo.

The capital of the company is [illegible],000. Most of the shares are owned by customers and workmen, the shares having been given to customers as dividends on their purchases and to workmen as dividends on their labor. Mr. Nelson might have owned all the shares himself, because he is the one man who, by his genius, organized and created the corporation and its extensive business.

But Nelson O. Nelson had a theory. Socialism, he has always believed, is coercive, monopolistic, and, when put into operation, compulsory. A vote is taken, socialism carries and every man must yield to the decision. Co-operation, on the contrary, is a free agency, to be accepted or rejected by the individual. Furthermore, it is regional and not general. One part of a city, and a small part at that, may be co-operative in its purchases of food and clothing. Everywhere else in that city co-operation is [illegible]. It is the same in rural communities, in townships, in counties, in States. Man is left to his [illegible]

The Very Rich Would Vanish.

Almost from the very start, twenty-eight years ago, Mr. Nelson has been opposed to socialism. Voluntary partnerships among producers and consumers—and that was the theory on which he built up his own prosperous business—is the only way, in his opinion, to settle social disputes and end beggary and plutocracy. Under co-operation, he still maintains, after his long experience with the plan, the very poor man would disappear and the very rich man would cease to exist.

Such was the idea that he brought into his factory after nine years of the usual methods of personal ownership and management. There had been strikes in his establishment. Outsiders had ordered his workmen into idleness. Some one beckoned or whistled and tools were dropped. Mr. Nelson says that he began to see that something in the scheme of human affairs was out of joint.

"Back in 1886," he said to the writer of this article, "the Gould system of railroads, leading from St. Louis and securing a large part of its trade was entirely closed for a month or two by a strike of the Knights of Labor. I was a member of the Committee of Mediation, but the committee could get no hearing. It was a war of conquest, in which no quarter were given or asked.

"The railroad men had been discharged, and the fight was over a demand for their reinstatement. It seemed absurd that the whole population of St. Louis and hundreds of thousands of persons in Missouri and the Southwest should be seriously inconvenienced and that railway employees should lose their wages and stockholders their dividends because of a quarrel between capital and labor and the stubbornness of Martin Irons, the strike leader.

"Economically, as I saw the case, it was a crazy performance. About that time I read Sedley Taylor's book on profit-sharing, in which there were accounts of the Paris house of Leclaire and of Godin's stove foundry at Guise, France.

Made His Men Partners.

"The plan seemed sane and a practical solution of the labor problem. I promptly adopted it, announcing to my 200 employees that the usual wages and salaries would be paid, that interest would be allowed on the capital invested and that the remainder of the net profits would be divided by an equal percentage on capital and the wages of all who had worked six months within the year.

"The announcement was made on slips of paper which were put in the pay envelopes of the men. Two weeks later all the employees were called together and given a full explanation of the matter. They were asked to elect an auditor so they could verify the dividend figuring and they chose a department head, who was a wage earner like themselves.

"Business was poor the first year. because of the railroad strike, and we barely made a 5 per cent. dividend on wages. The dividend was paid in cash, but the men had the opportunity of taking it in stock. A 5 per cent. dividend on wages means $50 to a workman whose earnings amount to $1000 during the year. The men received a cash dividend of 10 per cent. in 1887. Since that year all dividends have been paid in stock.

"In the depressed period from 1894 to 1898, dividends were suspended, and when times grew better all back dividends were paid at the rate of 4 per cent. annually. We announced in 1904 that capital would be paid 6 per cent. and the remaining profits divided in stock to employees and customers. By this plan wages have ranged from 10 per cent. to 30 per cent. annually and the purchases of our patrons, from 15 per cent. to 45 per cent. annually. Customers are paid dividends on the gross profits of the purchases they make. The manufacturing profit on some goods is small, but on other goods it is fairly large.

Workmen Are Directors.

"Employees and customers now own more than half af the capital of the company. The employees have a majority of the directors and at times the customers are represented on the board. The plan has never caused trouble. All of us believe that it has improved our teamwork, made more profit and created good will all through our establishment. When a man quits work he may hold his stock for income or emergencies, or he may sell it. If through misfortune an employee or his family need help, we give it freely and

"We started the village of Leclaire in 1890, on a 125-acre tract of well-drained land, adjoining Edwardsville, Ill., and eighteen miles from St. Louis. Our purpose was to establish a community of homes, with plenty of room for children, all proper and modern facilities for work, recreation and social intercourse.

"Leclaire now consists of about 200 houses of from three to eight rooms each. All are supplied with electric light, gas, water and sewers. The lots are from 50 feet to 100 feet in width. Sidewalks are of concrete and the streets are cindered. Nearly all of the houses are owned by the occupants, about three-fourths of whom are company employees. The other inhabitants are coal miners, retired farmers, railroaders and business men from Edwardsville. My own house is in the village.

"Houses have always been built for employees who wanted them on installment payments about equal to city rent. A house can thus be paid for in from eight to ten years. We have never been compelled to foreclose a mortgage, and few payments go past the days when due. In cases of sickness the payments are automatically suspended. Leclaire has a baseball field, a bowling alley, billiard-rooms, a lake for fishing, rowing and skating, a hall for dances, meetings and lectures and a kindergarten.

The Store at Leclaire.

"There is a co-operative store with about 150 members, each of whom owns one $25 share of stock. Sales are made at regular market prices and the profits are divided every three months in proportion to the purchases of each shareholder. The dividends range from 8 per cent. to 10 per cent. Purchasers who are not members of the store company receive half of the regular dividend. Six per cent. is paid on the capital stock and so far there has been a surplus each year.

"Our manufacturing company has four factories at Leclaire and employs 300 persons, most of whom are mechanics. We work fifty-one and a half hours a week. The village has no corporate organization, no policemen or no taxes except those laid by the county and the State. There isn't a saloon in the place. The public work is done by the company, the expense coming out of the profits and dividends. Leclaire has no rules, no don'ts. All the laws we know are those of Illinois and the nation.

"The referendum prevails, but not officially. If the villagers object to anything that is tried experimentally, they say so and that particular feature is instantly dropped. We don't claim to have worked out a perfectly ideal plan of living at Leclaire. It is a human community of men, women and children, but they are living cheaply and well in attractive homes and every worker has an interest in the business that supports himself and his neighbors.

"Our scheme of dividing the profits of business among all who contribute to it, making them partners, accumulating capital for the oncoming generation, is a long and certain step toward converting business into a social instrument. This has been my motive for nearly a third of a century. It is my pervading motive now.

It Cost Him a Million.

"The company which I established has property valued at $2,000,000. Had I followed the ordinary rules of business, I would have owned it all. I actually own a minority of it. Those who have helped me make the company what it is own a majority interest in the property. I would rather dispose of my profits that way than in founding or endowing colleges and libraries.

"Profit-sharing and co-operation are feasible in all sorts of enterprises, large or small. There could be a division of profits in the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., and there is, of course, among the partners. The employees, also, could be taken in, even the office boys. So, too, profit-sharing would be easily possible with the United States Steel Corporation and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company—interest on capital, wages to workmen, and maintaining and operating expenses to be paid first, and then a fair apportionment of the profits to owners and employees. Growth of the business, I claim, would go on more rapidly than ever before.

"In our own establishment profit-sharing has increased the capital from $100,000 in 1886 to $2,000,000 in 1914. Our 200 original employees have been multiplied five times in number during the twenty-eight years. And all the while we have paid good wages and given capital a return of 6 per cent. a year. There are no more strikes in our factories. The workmen are prosperous and happy and have steady employment. Occasionally the state of business compels us to reduce our production. When that occurs we do not dismiss any of our men; we simply cut down the hours of their work and thus afford them the means to live until times improve. That is better than paying them $5 a day and then laying them off a good part of the year.

What Rochdalers Have Done.

"Broadly defined, co-operation raises the capital among those who want to use it and gives those who use it all that comes out of its use. The principle is workable among a small group of farmers and in a great industrial plant. Twenty-eight Rochdalers, workers in woolen, cotton and iron mills, started a co-operative enterprise in 1844. The Rochdale association now has 2,650,000 members in Great Britain alone. Its capital has grown from $140 to $175,000,000. The business done each year amounts to $600,000,000, and its divisible profits, $60,000,000 annually, are given back to its members.

"Twenty-five years ago the buyers for the Rochdale stores in Great Britain persuaded the farmers of Denmark to improve the quality of their butter, to organize in community groups, to hire experts and so on. The results of the co-operation in Denmark have been actually astonishing. That country soon became the greatest butter producer in Europe. The plan was extended to bacon and eggs. Today Danish producers are selling $65,000,000 worth of butter, eggs and bacon to the rest of the world. Moreover, there are 1300 co-operative stores in Denmark, all of which are supported by farmers.

"I speak of what is being done in Europe in order to show that co-operation contains the germ of growth and can be used in extensive trade and industrial undertakings. The English Wholesale, a distinctly co-operative organization, does business to the amount of $130,000,000 annually. Its own manufactures are valued at $20,000,000, and, besides, it has tea plantations in Ceylon, elevators in Canada, and buyers in all parts of the world. Operating with the Scottish Wholesale in foreign transactions, it has been known to buy shiploads of Grecian currants at one time. Its purchases of other food products are on a similar scale.

Some Nelsonian Philosophy.

"Unless business is a means to better living and fairer conduct between man and man it is a delusion and a snare; much business, I am compelled to say, is both. It is a far stretch from the present ways of doing business to the brotherhood of man; but to this the human race must come if it hopes to survive. I would rather be a peddler from door to door than a captain of industry bent on the pursuit of money alone. Profit-sharing and co-operation will not make any one a multimillionaire. But would that be harmful to mankind?

"All history, we know, teaches us that the downfall of nations has been caused by the rise of the selfish, the rich and the powerful. If profit-sharing, however, stops the accumulation of enormous fortunes, it works on the other hand toward a more equitable distribution of wealth and puts an end to throat-cutting competition. And yet there would be competition enough to regulate prices and to prevent extortion. One co-operative community or factory, you see, would have to meet other communities and factories in the markets where its products were sold. Furthermore, profit-sharing would develop individual ability, originality, and energy, and the services of a worker would be worth all that the highest bidder for his service would be willing to pay."

"You have started a number of grocery stores in New Orleans," I said to Mr. Nelson. "Are they co-operative?"

"I have already opened thirty-two stores," Mr. Nelson replied. "Also I have a large creamery. My object at first was to test the co-operative principle in a big city. I found, however, that American families living in large communities move around a great deal. They will be in one street today and somewhere else tomorrow. Consequently, I changed my plans and adopted a more direct way of sharing profits with customers than is practiced in the usual co-operative store or factory.

Teaching a City to Pay Cash.

"The prices at my thirty-two New Orleans establishments are about 25 per cent. lower than in the ordinary credit grocery stores of the city. We sell for cash and make no deliveries to customers. By and by we shall purchase and develop plantations and raise our own fruits, vegetables, eggs and poultry. Thus we shall show the farmers of Louisiana the possibilities of co-operative endeavor, and meanwhile we shall be teaching the people of New Orleans the advantages of paying cash for what they buy.

"Once a man is on a cash basis he becomes economical and, in course of time, a property owner. Such is my mission in New Orleans. I am also engaged in promoting co-operative movements elsewhere in the South, especially among the agricultural classes. The principle of co-operation is rapidly spreading throughout the United States. In my opinion, it is the only just and sensible way of settling our social troubles."

A colony of seventy Norwegians emigrated to the United States sixty-eight years ago. Nelson O. Nelson, almost an infant in arms, was among the number. He grew up on a farm in Missouri, enlisted in the army at the age of 16—joining a Kansas regiment—and served from the beginning to the end of the Civil War.

When Mr. Nelson started in business for himself, after several unsuccessful ventures, his capital amounted to $2500, "most of which," to use his own language, "I spent on fixtures." He was a prosperous manufacturer at the time he took his workmen into partnership. Making partners of the customers lessened the expenses of selling.

HIGH SOCIETY SEANCE.

Spirit Rappings and Talkings at San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 25.

Dearest Bob: It is a shame to treat you the way I do, dear, but really this is the longest time that you have had to wait for a letter in years. It is your own fault, too, for not coming down here with me. Coronado has never been more wonderful than this fall and there is a bunch down here now that are the busiest people on earth. They take up all sorts of "isms" and are so enthusiastic about them that they needs must make me interested. I have a stack of pamphlets and tracts in my room that would make you weep with envy.

This is really what I had on my mind though, Bobby, and you would not have had a letter if I hadn't been so keen to tell you. Last week I went to a really, truly spiritualist seance. Oh, it was dreadfully spooky, but I had said that I was intensely interested and pretended to have studied the stuff seriously, so I just had to play up. It was this way: Mr. and Mrs. Lyman J. Gage of Point Loma—you remember, he was the Secretary of the Treasury under — oh, I can't remember now, but I have been told a number of times—have a beautiful home over in Roseville on the Point and are both of them ardent spiritualists, so they have fitted up a room on the third floor of their home for regular seances. There is a Mrs. Estelle White, whom I was told has been very much persecuted—it seems that is a failing with all of them, at least they all strive to be martyrs to their cause—anyway, she is their medium. She was persecuted while up in Los Angeles not long ago, and when she returned to San Diego she had long conferences with Mr. Gage, but whether he helped her I don't know. He is very much in sympathy with her, I know, and he is beginning to develop into somewhat of a medium, himself, under her teachings.

There were seven of us that day; and some I knew and some I did not. We were taken into this darkened room up under the eaves; there was heavy black stuff all over the windows and when the lights were turned off there was not a ray or semblance of light in the room, although it was in the middle of the afternoon. The medium sat in the center and we all sat in a circle around her. I reckon that is why they call it a "circle." She had two long, narrow megaphones before her that she said the spirits were to talk through. Miss Helene Richards sat next me; she is the young woman who has always lived with the Gages. At any rate she is an extremely handsome girl and very attractive.

After the lights were turned off the medium's father, who was the only man there, began playing the mouth organ. You know I always did hate those things and that, in itself, put my nerves on edge. But really, dear, it was strange. Before long a loud voice shouted "Wow!" and everyone laughed and began saying, "Hello, Wahabu," or some Indian name, and it proved to be the Indian who is the "guide" for Mrs. Gage. He talked to Mrs. Gage and she talked to him and asked him, "How long it would be, and what she should do," all of which, of course, was Greek to me. Then a child came; she touched me on the head and the hand and I nearly jumped a foot. Really, it was awful, this feeling something touching you that way in the dark. The medium had told us not to try to take the hands that touched us nor try to take the megaphone, so of course I did not dare. There were tests of lights flashing and one woman saw a phosphoresent crescent. I couldn't see it, though, but I did see the lights and there was a phosphorescent light as big as the palm of a hand that seemed to move in one direction. There were two spirits who sang to us and there was an Egyptian spirit who announced himself by sending forth a peculiar perfume. He did not have much to say, but I liked the perfume. They tried so hard to find a spirit for me, but I reckon none of our people would enjoy coming into prominence again after having reached that land of peace, do you, Bob? They told me, however, that it was seldom that a person got a message the first time, but if I would come again I would undoubtedly get something. It seems that the spirits don't know how to talk at first time and they are bashful. When they find some of their own in a circle they go to the other spirits and learn how to talk again.

Do you know, Bobby, they talked there for about two hours and that poor Mrs. White was all worn out when it was all over. I was, too, but it must be a terrible strain to be the medium when it is so much of a strain to merely listen. There were several times when I wanted to shriek, just from nerves.

After the seance we all had a cup of tea and I felt better. I am not sure whether I shall go again or not, but some of the women have had marvelous results. Do you know the real reason I went? I wanted to see if that woman could have a spirit who would tell me if I would ever find that old ring of mother's that I lost last summer. I have often felt that I would find it, but it hasn't shown up yet. If they could tell me that, I would honestly believe in them, Bob.

Mrs. Gage claims that her Indian goes with her into the mountains and guards her and is such a source of strength to her. It seems that most of them have Indian "guides," as they call them. Why is that, do you reckon?

Well, Bobby, you will think that I am always going to be a harum-scarum sister and never become serious. Maybe I am, bruvver, dear, but you brought me up in the way I have gone and I do get lonesome for you and wish most awfully that it would hurry and be time for you to come down. You might at least write and tell me when.

Until then lots of love, from

SPY IMPERSONATES PRIEST.

German's Rendition of "Grace" at French Officer's Table Gets Him into Trouble.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Last week a battalion of French infantry reoccupied a village where the Germans had stayed some time. Everything was destroyed excepting the church and the presbytery. An old cure of venerable appearance received the soldiers with open arms. He told how the enemy had taken him away as hostage and he had seen the hard side of war. Finally they had released him and he had been able to get back home.

The same evening the French officers invited the cure to their table. Before the first course was served the old man rose slowly to say "Grace." One of the officers seemed surprised as the cure proceeded to murmur the Latin prayer. He whispered a word to the commandant and the next instant the cure found himself surrounded by four men, with fixed bayonets.

The lieutenant then approached and posed a few technical questions to the old man. This lieutenant was himself an abbe. The other seemed confused and then appalled. He was unable to reply. "That one," said the lieutenant, "has never been a priest." The man on being searched was found to be a German spy.

The Last Mousquetaire.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch:] Monsieur Carle des Perrieres, who has just died, was the last of the mousquetaires. With him there disappears a type of boulevardier. These amiable Parisians were in evidence at the end of the empire. After the war of 1870 they reappeared at Tortoni's. There upon the steps about De Scholl were seated the famous Alfonso de Almada, Espelata, G. de Borda, Chapron, Feuillant and Gaston Jollivet, who freely employed his valor and the wisdom of his wit in quenching the conflicts. A difficult task, for these altercations frequently were made out of nothing.

"Monsieur," one of the mousquetaires would suddenly declare to an inoffensive passer-by, "you have been looking at me cross-eyed! I do not like that."

"No——" the other would begin his reply.

"Ah, ha! then I have lied! There's my card!"

Then there would be a meeting on the field of honor. Oh, that was a beautiful time!

Goat Hair for Wigs.

[Kansas City Times:] Angora goat hair is fast being used by switch and wig manufacturers, according to members of the Angora Goat Breeders' Association. Goat hair, after it has grown to a certain length, assumes the appearance of human hair, and, because it will hold dye better than any other, it is being made into wigs and switches.

"The public, as a rule, is not let into the secret when it is buying hair, but is led to believe that the product is from the human head," said A. B. Collins of Leguna, Tex. "I know of a case of a young actress in New York who paid $400 to a fashionable hairdresser for a single switch. The hairdresser had bought the hair for the switch from a goat breeder."

FRENCH SLAIN AT CLOSE RANGE.

TERRIBLE EFFECT OF GERMAN HOWITZERS DESCRIBED.

Two Artillery Regiments Annihilated in Ten Minutes by Invaders' Battery at Range of Three Hundred Meters — Fight Develops Rapidly and is Soon Over.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—What the effect of the German field howitzers' fire can be when directed upon troops in close formation, is described in the letter of a German officer, which, published in the Cologne Gazette of September 20, reads in part as follows:

"On August 22, at 8 o'clock in the evening just as we were about to go into quarters a fight developed suddenly. Before we knew what had happened we were in the thick of it. It was a quick victory. The French were badly thrashed. That night we slept in a ditch along the highway with the starry sky for a blanket. The cold was mean.

"On the following day matters proceeded. The French were retiring on the road to Sedan. Following them we saw terrible scenes. This was especially true of a stretch or straight road running through a forest. Here two French field artillery regiments had been annihilated. The pieces stood in the road in marching order; the horses—six to each piece—lay dead in the traces as if struck by lightning. Near them were scattered the dead officers and men.

"There were twenty-eight pieces of artillery and all their crews dead. The thing happened in ten minutes, and Capt. Wilhelmi is responsible for this fine piece of work. He surprised the French with his field howitzers at a range of 300 meters. The captain was shot in the chest, but he could tell us the story. One of the French officers, who happened to be a short distance away from the artillery, and who was wounded, told us that the experience was enough to rob anybody of his senses.

"I will never forget the awful picture. For two kilometers nothing but pieces of artillery, corpses and the cadavers of horses."

ECZEMA ON CHILD ITCHED AND BURNED

In Rash First. Could Not Sleep or Rest. Hard Crust Covered Neck. Awful Disfigurement. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

R. F. D. No. 4, Box 55, Holland, Mich.—"My child's trouble began by getting red and sore around her neck, and her face, behind her ears, under her arms, and different parts of her body were affected. The eczema appeared in a rash first. It was wet and looked as if it was sweaty. It seemed to itch and burn so that she could not sleep or rest. It got so bad at last that behind her ears was one crust or sore so that I had to cut her hair. There was a hard crust covering her neck. She could not have her clothes buttoned at all. I could hardly change her clothes. It caused an awful disfigurement for the time. She would cry when I had to wash her.

"We had her treated for some time but without success. The trouble had lasted about four weeks when we began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had not used them more than three days when I could see she was getting better. I got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and I had not used more than half of what I bought when she was all cured." (Signed) Mrs. G. C. Riemersma, Mar. 21, 1914.

ASSIMILATION OF BELGIANS.

ENGLAND FINDS REFUGEES OF GREAT USE.

People Without a Country are Well Cared for in the Land of Her Ally, and Large Number May Eventually Become Citizens of "Tight Little Island."

BY JOHN S. STEELE.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 12.—"Never since the days of the fall of Jerusalem have we seen such a spectacle of a nation without a home. The Belgians are wanderers on the face of the earth." This statement was made to me the other day by a leading Belgian newspaper man who is one of the half-million or so refugees who are now enjoying the hospitality of England, and it is fully justified by the facts. A colleague who was with him amplified it a little. "We are better off than the Jews," he said, "for even if we have no home, we are still a nation. We have an army and a King."

Not till the war is over and Belgium is re-established again in her own home, will anyone know accurately the extent of the disaster which has overtaken the gallant little country. At the beginning of the war she had a population of 7,500,000, little more than the total population of greater London or greater New York. Today no one knows how many Belgians are left in Belgium. It is certain, however, that only those are left who have been unable to get away, for so great is the terror of the Germans that the mere rumor that they are coming is enough to empty a town or village. As they have overrun the whole country except the little corner around Ostend, it is almost a corollary that the country is depopulated.

It is estimated that there are now nearly 2,000,000 Belgians in Holland and about 500,000 in England. This with the two or three hundred thousand who have fled to France accounts for about half the population of the country. Refugees are still arriving in England as fast as the boats can carry them, and it is quite likely that England will arrange with Holland to relieve her of a large proportion of the Belgians now sheltering there. England feels herself in a special sense responsible for the care of this people whose country has been sacrificed for the general interest of the allies, and she is doing everything in her power to help the stricken people.

Far be it from me to suggest that England has any hopes of ultimate gain from this influx of strangers. I am sure she has not, but I am equally sure that she will benefit in the long run from the introduction of so fine an element in her national life as the Belgians, for there can be no doubt that many thousands of those who have sought the shores of Britain as refugees will remain and become citizens. In fact, Belgium before has contributed to British stock and industry, for the weaving industry was introduced by the Flemings imported by Edward III for that purpose. Centuries later French Huguenot refugees introduced the silk industry into England and now it seems likely that the Belgians will repeat this history.

One of the great problems now confronting British statesmen is how to deal with this vast immigration. At first the policy was adopted of simply entertaining the Belgians as guests, the idea being that they would soon be repatriated, but now it is recognized that the war may be a long one and that even when it is over it may not be possible for many months, or even years, to restore the full population to the devastated country. Evidently then work must be provided for the refugees to enable them to become self-supporting, and it must be work that would not displace native English labor.

The government has tackled the problem with a will, and while it is too early to say yet that a plan has been worked out, I may say that one is well on the way. The first step, of course, was to get information and for that purpose Herbert Samuel, president of the local government board, has appointed a special committee to examine the industrial and economic situation. The Registrar-General has also started a special census of the refugees, with special reference to their age, sex distribution, and economic efficiency. Fortunately the work of compiling information is easy for at the very beginning a government committee with Lord Gladstone, former Governor-General of South Africa as chairman, was formed to deal with the reception of the refugees and their distribution in England. This organization has full records, immediately available, of the numbers and present whereabouts of all the Belgians.

One of the sources of wealth to which many of the Belgians can be turned was apparent at once. That is market gardening, and, generally speaking, small cultivation. The Belgians are the best market gardeners in the world, except perhaps their neighbors, the Dutch, and this branch of agriculture has been sadly neglected in England. Arrangements are now being made for securing tracts of suitable ground near the large towns, where the refugees who have knowledge and experience in this kind of work may turn it to account. The government will probably supply them with capital, where necessary, to start. It has not been decided yet whether a system of tenancy or peasant proprietorship shall be introduced.

Another branch of agriculture in which the Belgian peasant excels is flax growing. The finest flax in the world comes from the region of Courtrai, and the Ulster linen mills all maintained resident buyers there. Courtrai and its fields are now laid waste and Ulster is threatened with a shortage of supply. The soil of Ireland is eminently suited to flax growing, but the supply of skilled labor is short and the Belgians can supply it. It is quite likely that the mixed Scottish and Irish blood of the northeast corner of Ulster may be further diluted by a strong dash of Flemish.

Another direction in which the Belgians may help England is in fine iron castings. Some of the most delicate work in the world of this kind was done about Liege. Many British motor firms, for instance, imported the castings for cylinders from Belgium in the rough and worked them up at home. Already I am told a number of Liege iron moulders have found work in British foundries.

Lace making is another trade which will probably be introduced. The Belgian women are famous lace makers, and efforts are being made to establish the industry here. H. Gordon Selfridge, the Anglo-American storekeeper, has started a little industry of this kind in connection with his store where a number of Belgian women are employed.

WAR DRIVES BIRDS OUT.

Forests of France Are Said to be Absolutely Depopulated by the Feathered Tribes.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The feathered tribe of Belgium and Northern France has been dispersed by the din of war.

In all the districts of the Marne it was noticed after the battle that the birds had disappeared. The Argonne forests also have been nearly depopulated of all kinds of game by the continual turmoil in those regions. Driven to detached woods and thickets where their dangers would have been increased in time of peace, they now find security.

Apart from their enforced exile, birds are not the least fortunate of beings in these times, game shooting being prohibited in France.

The markets furnished evidence that some poaching was going on, however, and the Minister of War issued a warning that the sale of no other than imported refrigerator game would be tolerable. Early in the war soldiers supplemented their rations by taking a hare or pheasant here and there, but this was stopped by order.

Scarcity of game in the market is no harsdhip for it is a small part of the alimentation of Paris. The arrivals amount annually to only 1000 tons of native and 450 tons of imported game, while the arrivals of domestic poultry alone aggregate 21,000 tons.

Belgium sends 50,000 larks to Paris each season, while the game importations from other countries are: Austria, 2500 deer, 80,000 partridges, 50,000 hares; Italy, 25,000 quail; Australia, 100,000 rabbits, 20,000 hares and 50,000 larks; England, 40,000 pheasants and 30,000 partridges.

An effort is being made to substitute the Russian reindeer for Austrian deer.

No doubt considerable game that did not get away from the continually beaten war zone has been dedestroyed, and the sportsmen who have shooting preserves in these parts of the country are pessimistic as to the future; they think it will require several years to repopulate those regions. On the other hand, the prohibition of one season's shooting in the territory not affected by hostilities, it is thought, will result in immense benefit to game in general, and that next year and for many years to come all kinds of game will be more plentiful than ever before.

ATHLETES IN WAR.

Practically All of England's Best College-trained Sportsmen are Serving in the Army.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Statistics show how well the Cambridge University athlete has responded to the country's call. Practically all the best-known athletes of the last fifteen years who have won their varsity emblem have joined the army since the outbreak of war. Many are "double blues," the list including the well-known tennis players, H. L. Doherty, A. F. Wilding and K. Powell.

The list of "blues" serving now is made up of Rugby football, 28; association football, 12; rowing, 34; cricket, 27; athletics, 26; lawn tennis, 8, and boxing, 5.

Twenty-six others are scattered representatives of numerous minor sports.

SOLDIERS' FATALISM.

First Starvation, then Vaccination, Next Innoculation, and Isolation is Followed by Annihilation.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MANCHESTER (Eng.) Nov. 14.—The Manchester Guardian quotes the following passage from a soldier's letter as "another evidence of the cheerful fatalism of the Britisher:"

"'We are going strong. At first we had a day or two of starvation. Then vaccination. Next inocculation. Some have had isolation. We're going out soon, and some of us will meet annihilation. What, oh!'"

TOKIO WOMEN GO IN SOCIETY.

Newspapers Devote Page to Feminine Fads.

Wives of Cabinet Members Have Wide Experience.

Romance Plays a Big Part in the Life of Japan.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, Sept. 10.—What the Japanese call "western society journalism" is gaining a strong foothold in Japan. Both the newspapers and magazines are paying more attention to the women. Although the practice has not developed to the extent of the women's page as it is known in America, the newspapers make it a particular point to tell what women are doing, and, like the magazines, make a specialty of their history, their fads, and their future.

Among the wives of the Cabinet members, all of whom are found especially interesting, the Countess Okuma, consort of the Premier, is constantly held up as a model, possessing all the virtues for which Japanese women are famous. She not only presides over the most celebrated kitchen in Japan, which is capable of serving thousands of guests at one time, but she is known and respected for her noble character and fine womanly qualities.

The Count and Countess have been married now for forty-five years. She, before her marriage, was Aya-ko, the eldest daughter of a vassal of the Shogun. She was sought out by Count Okuma, who, unlike most of the young men of the turbulent Restoration days, was determined to find a woman of fine character and good home training. She has always devoted herself to her husband. A notable instance was when, twenty-five years ago, the Count was brought home wounded in the leg by a bomb. The physicians declared that the leg must be amputated. The Countess made a prompt decision when she was told it was the only way to save his life, and after the operation she became more devoted still.

The Baroness Kato, wife of the Foreign Minister, perhaps has had one of the widest social experiences of any Japanese woman. Daughter of the late Baron Iwasaki, she came from one of the wealthiest families in Japan, and as the wife of Baron Kato she has taken a prominent position, especially in London society, where Baron Kato was formerly Ambassador. She is clever and entertaining, and has complete mastery of English.

A magazine account of how Baron Kato came to marry her is current just now: Young Kato, serving as head of a branch office of a banking concern of which Baron Iwasaki was president, made such an impression that Baron Iwasaki presented him with a gold watch.

"I thank you very much," replied the young man, "but I am not yet in a position to wear such a valuable object. When I am worthy to have it, I shall ask for it. Would you keep it for me till that time comes?"

The bank president agreed, and became still further impressed with his young protege when the latter demanded a receipt for the watch.

Some time later he invited young Kato to his house. "I took charge of your watch at Otaru a few years ago," he said. "Let me give it back to you now with its interest." Calling his daughter, Haruji-ko-san, beside him, he continued. "By interest I mean my daughter. Would you marry her?"

Thus Kato entered the Iwasaki family.

Mrs. Yukio Ozaki, wife of the Minister of Justice, and the daughter of Baron and Baroness Ozaki, who was an English woman, also has a romance. It was the postman who brought Miss Ozaki and Yukio Ozaki, then Mayor of Tokio, together. As the name was the same the postman frequently delivered the young lady's letters to the Mayor and vice versa. They met at a dinner party and laughed over the postman's mistakes and shortly afterwards took the matter much more seriously, for they were married. As the wife of the Mayor, Mrs. Ozaki has been hostess at many brilliant affairs. She has written several volumes and is now completing a collection of love stories and tragedies of old Japan.

When Dr. Kitokuro Ichiki, Minister of Education, was married, Mr. Akada, the bride's father, gave the couple five rules of matrimonial life, which are reproduced as follows:

(1.) Love is essential to matrimonial life, but familiarity harms it.

(2.) Indulgence in love is a cause of losing it. Modesty and respect to each other must not be forgotten even for a day.

(3.) Husband commands; the wife must obey, but the wife sometimes may command and the husband must obey. It is a secret of the sweet home.

(4.) Without fixed property, no one can have a settled mind; affection between husband and wife is kept complete with fixed property.

(5.) Home is, as it were, a boat; life is like a voyage on the sea. Rough waves will upset it, if it is not rowed by husband and wife with joint efforts.

Mrs. Yosano, one of the most popular Japanese women poets of the day, has come forth with some radical ideas about her countrywomen's dress. She says:

"The inactivity which the Japanese kimono costume brings about is in itself a kind of ugliness, and the Japanese dress must be improved in this respect so as to keep pace with the march of civilization. Japanese women are defective in original ideas and follow blindly the law imposed upon them by others. In matter of dress they do not seem to take any interest and do not attempt to improve their own dress so as to afford them greater comfort. I have previously said the French style is preferable; this is simply an idea. As a matter of fact Japan ought to have a dress appropriate to the new conditions of society. If the foreign mode was followed, dresses could be made out of Japanese materials and could be made much cheaper than foreign dresses.

"It may be argued that foreign dress does not agree with the Japanese way of living, but if we do not make some changes in our method of living no improvement can be effected. It seems best to begin where it can be made with the least trouble. It is my opinion that the improvement of dress will be brought about by female students before others because they enjoy so much freedom and have so many opportunities of going out."

You light up my path where I go.
God grant that the future may bring you
No trace of a sorrow or pain,
Till He who hath parted our pathways
Shall bring them together again.

A Prayer.

From rosy dawn till dusk, when purple twilight
Brought to each Pilgrim-heart a deep sweet peace,
Wafted the murmuring strain of prayer and praises,
Whose vibrant harmony shall never cease.

Men with strong hearts! Women with souls of virtue!
Only a small, small band, but
and tried,
Mindful to thank their Maker for triumph
That made men's souls freedom sanctified.

God of our Fathers, from the confusion
And din and roar of life,
minds stray,
To bless this Pilgrim herita-dom
That makes each soul a day.

Grant that our prayer strain of praises
High, high to Heaven, vibrant chord
Grown faint at last, down heights will echo
A nation's Alleluia unto God.

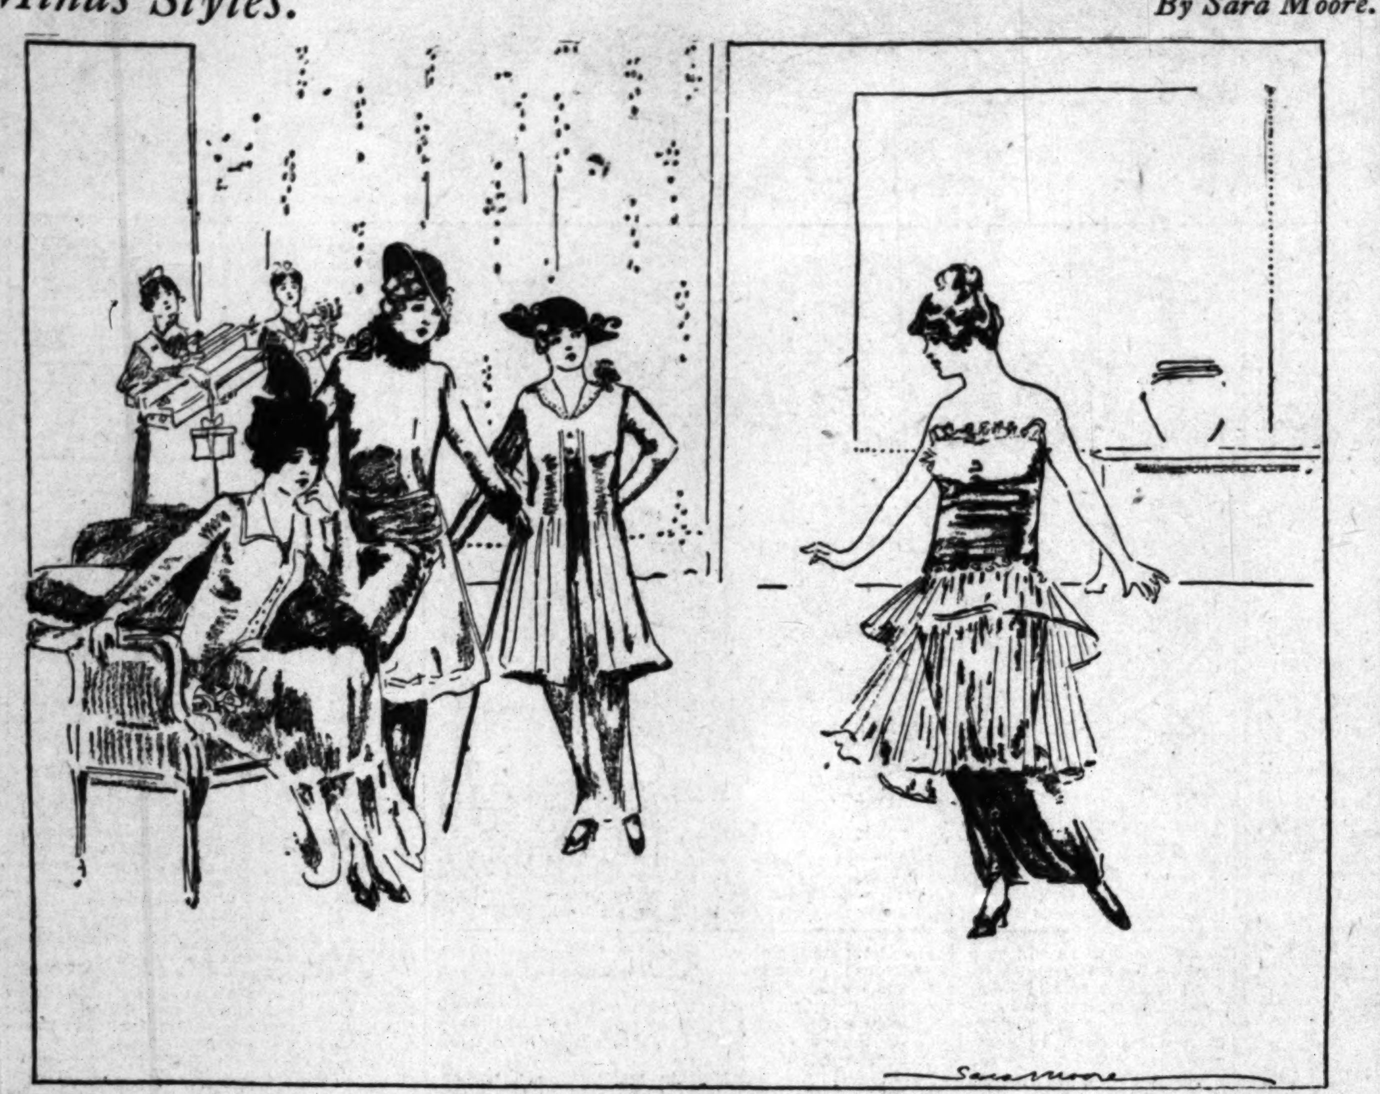
Minus Styles.

By Sara Moore.



Vogue rules that women must have no waistlines. From fashionable shoulders to fashionable knees there must be no sign of a belt. Without a waist there is no place to pin that badge of popularity—the corsage bouquet, and it has had to be abandoned in favor of a single flower worn on the shoulder of the gown.

Now the latest thing in evening gowns is designed without even as much as a wisp of lace shoulder.

Without waists; without shoulders; without sleeves or even shoulder straps; without belts and without bouquets, the modern belle is becoming a problem in subtraction, to which she may find no answer but a gasp.

ny Schemes Devised to Draw Enemy's Fire.

mmy Trenches are Erected by the British.

liograph Men Have Real Strenuous Existence.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Modern fighting strategy, at first rather helpless before the aerial and artillery factors, is beginning to adapt itself to the new conditions and along the great Aisne battle front many fertile brains have been busy devising schemes to meet the problems. Probably the most useful work of the aeroplane has been the location of positions and consequent direction of artillery fire, often resulting in terrible losses to the attacked army.

According to a distinguished London surgeon, now serving as a volunteer in the Army Medical Corps, the British troops have become adepts at building dummy trenches to attract the enemy's fire. These trenches are thrown up with great fidelity and dummy figures and guns are left in them, patiently awaiting the German aeroplane scouts. Believing he has discovered a new position, the aviator signals to the nearest German battery, and a storm of shells fall upon the unoccupied trenches. It is usually only after a great waste of valuable ammunition that the trick is discovered.

Another favorite device is the invention of a British signaler, whereby a heliograph can be operated at a distance of two miles by means of a telegraph wire. This heliograph begins to send out messages purporting to emanate from headquarters staff, and, believing they have located the head of the British army, the German artillery devotes its attention to the spot marked by the flashes from the heliograph. Sometimes the heliograph is destroyed, but usually the operator ceases work when the fire becomes so heavy that no staff in its senses would remain in the vicinity. A new apparatus is set up in some place where the staff would be likely to remove should it be driven from the first selected place.

Along the front, where the opposing trenches are within a few hundred yards of each other, the allies have devised a system of tormenting the enemy by keeping them awake at night. Regular skirmish details are selected each night, and in a thin skirmish line they advance as close as possible and pour in a rattling fire. The response is almost instant and in such volume as to indicate that the Germans believe a general attack is beginning. Several times during the night these tactics are repeated.

The surgeon, who has just returned from the front, reports that, contrary to the usual belief, the trenches are not very wet, but he believes that with the coming of the heavy winter conditions along the Aisne will be terrible. The tension is already so great that many have reached the snapping point, until the ward at Netley is filled with officers and soldiers who have lost their reason when disease is added to the terror of battle.

One of the optimistic features of the situation is an improvement in the transport of the wounded from the battle front to hospitals in England. Two weeks ago it often took as long as three weeks to get the wounded from the scene of the fighting to Southampton, and now the same trip is made in from three to four days. This speeding up has resulted in a great acceleration in the recovery of the dangerously-wounded, for they reach the hospitals within the period of infection.

WOUNDED'S LAMENT.

TOO MANY HOSPITAL RULES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Belgian wounded soldiers in the hospitals of London and other English cities are cared for with so much solicitude that they tire of rules enforced for their good. What they want most is cigarettes, and smoking is forbidden except to those with slight wounds.

"I wish I was in the hands of the Germans," said one soldier to a visitor. "They would not worry me with so many rules."

EXCHANGE STREET NAMES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The municipalities of Berlin and Budapest have been exchanging complimentary messages. The war has drawn the two cities into closer intimacy. The Oberbuergermeister of Berlin has been informed by the corresponding official in Budapest that one of the most beautiful streets and squares of the latter city have been called respectively, "Kaiser Wilhelm strasse" and "Berliner Platz," and the Berlin Oberbuergermeister, not to be outdone in courtesy, replied that the Berlin municipality has decreed that one-half of the Koeniggraetzer strasse is to be named after the Hungarian capital.

REFUGEES NOT ALL POOR.

Thousands of Belgians in London are Well-to-do and Live in the West End Hotels.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The word refugee has taken on a new meaning in London, where the presence of many thousand Belgian and French families of means has given to the city a cosmopolitan aspect which it never wore before. Many of the continental visitors are here because their homes have been destroyed or occupied by the Germans, and there are thousands of refugees who know neither poverty nor real distress. All the better class hotels in the West End are filled with Belgian families, the restaurants are crowded with them, and they throng the haunts of sightseers.

The portly father of a family, with the mother and three or four children, are the most familiar figures on the London streets. There is no mistaking their nationality because all of them display conspicuously the Belgian or the French tricolor somewhere on their clothes.

In addition to the publication here of the Brussels newspaper, L'Independence Belge, several London papers print a page of war news in French or Flemish for the benefit of the visitors, and signs in foreign languages are abundant in shop windows. The personal columns of the newspapers are crowded with inquiries regarding the whereabouts or fate of missing Belgians from husbands, wives, parents and children, and notices of the whereabouts and safety of others.

Small parties of peasant refugees arrive from the continent every day, but the majority of them have been scattered throughout the United Kingdom in homes provided by the relief committees. Each party is met by members of the committee and taken in motors to the headquarters where Lord Gladstone presides, and is then forwarded to the Alexandra Palace or Earl's Court. In these big exhibition halls they live a barrack life until arrangements have been made for quartering them in private houses.

"DOGS OF WAR" PROVE USEFUL.

PLAY AN IMPORTANT PART IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

Trained Canines are Largely Employed by All Armies Now Engaged in Fighting on the Continent and Have Demonstrated Worth in Many Capacities.

BY CURTIS BROWN.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Real "dogs of war," it seems, are playing an important part in the campaign in France and Belgium, and, no doubt, in the fighting on the Russo-German frontier, too, as the Germans, especially are known to make an extensive use of canines, both for ambulance work and in the capacities of sentries and scouts, and, before the war, were said to have over 6000 of them ready-trained for these purposes.

The French, of course, have long recognized the dog's value in war, while the Belgians employ them for drawing machine guns and for many other purposes. Yesterday, moreover, I was told by Maj. E. H. Richardson, the renowned English trainer of war and police dogs, that, since the opening of the campaign, he has supplied fully-trained canines in groups of from four to eight, to practically every English regiment now at the front, and that, while it is too early yet to receive reports as to what service they have rendered there, several had proved their worth as sentinels previous to crossing the channel. These dogs all are Airedales, the breed that the major finds best adapted to the work.

Since the war began, too, he has filled quite a large "order" from the Belgian Red Cross for ambulance dogs (bloodhounds, which are especially trained to find wounded men on the battlefield,) and made a special trip across the channel for the purpose of delivering them in person. Dogs trained by Richardson, who formerly served in the British army and later was instructor to the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid's bodyguard, and who has devoted over twenty years to studying and educating canines, are also used as sentries at Gibraltar, though the number of these animals formerly in use in the British army was infinitesimal when compared with those employed by the various continental powers.

USE IN MANCHURIA.

During the Manchurian campaign, the Trans-Siberian Railway was guarded by dogs, which partially explains why it never was cut. In the last Balkan war dogs were used by all the allied troops, the Greeks, particularly, utilizing them largely to guard the railway lines. For the work done by his dogs in Manchuria and Morocco, Richardson was decorated by both the Czar and the King of Spain, and soon after the opening of the Turco-Italian campaign in Tripoli, the famous trainer was sent for by the Italian War Office and asked to decide as to the desirability of using dogs in the desert campaign. As a result, within a few weeks between 500 and 600 dogs were serving with the colors, and did yeoman service, giving warning of several unexpected night attacks, and at Derna undoubtedly saving a large Italian force from extinction. Four of Richardson's dogs also accompanied the last English punitive expedition in India against the wild Abors, this in November, 1911, and gave timely notice of several attacks by the savage tribesmen.

Maj. Richardson admits frankly that he first got the idea of training dogs for use in war when he discovered, while visiting in Scotland a score of years ago, that the Germans were buying quantities of sheep dogs there for use with their army. The Teutons in their turn, he added, came to realize the value of canines in war owing to American experience with them in the Civil War, when four-footed warriors "fought" on both sides with great distinction, though none of them had been especially trained for war.

RICHARDSON'S THEORY.

"Both the Germans and the French," said Richardson, "believe in dogs as messengers and ammunition carriers. A correspondent who was with the Boxer expedition remarked to me of the dogs that accompanied the German artillery that it always was delightful and interesting to watch their movements. Once, when it was necessary to shell a Chinese patrol, the order was brought by a dog five miles in a few minutes. But though such incidents are picturesque, I personally have little belief in the dog as a dependable messenger in actual war where he is away from his native environment, not to mention the fact that in actual conflict regiments become scattered and hopelessly mixed."

ROYALIST UPRISING.

Portuguese Republican Government Acts Quickly and Embryo Revolution is Suppressed.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LISBON, Nov. 14.—The facts concerning the recent Royalist uprising have now come to hand and it appears that the prompt suppression of the revolution was due partly to the quick action of the Republican forces and partly to the discouragement of Royalists in certain towns where the expected revolution failed to materialize.

Braganza and Mafra were centers of the uprising. Capt. Constanzi, who led the Royalists around Mafra, escaped, supposedly on an outward bound vessel. Col. Bessa, who led the uprising at Braganza, was made prisoner at the very outset, and this, it is supposed, is what discouraged his partisans at many other points.

An immediate result of the attempt was an assault upon the Royalist newspaper offices which were destroyed. The official organ of the Socialist party, A Vanguarda, also was sacked. All telegrams in regard to these events were stopped by the censor. The government has decreed that all persons found with arms in their possession shall be brought immediately before a court-martial; all assemblages and all public manifestations of any character are prohibited.

One explanation of the participation in the revolt of many soldiers of the army is that they are unwilling to go to the seat of war. It is declared that while the government papers announce that Great Britain has asked the government for the co-operation of the army, the proposition comes really from the Portuguese government, which feel that the position of the republic will be strengthened by its co-operation with the allies.

It is reported here that the night of October 20, when the revolution broke out, the deposed King Manuel awaited news of the progress of the revolt, with the Queen and his secretary in an automobile on the frontier.

Grove's Music Simplifier

is a method for the home where a child can from an object lesson listen to the harmonies which the lesson places under the fingers. It educates the ear and prepares the mind for an intelligent idea of music in its different pathways. It also helps the advanced music scholar and teacher, for no person can learn the grammar of music without understanding the facts contained in Grove's Music Simplifier.

In this lesson are presented the chords of the key of F sharp and its relative key of D sharp minor. Both of these keys are regarded as difficult for beginners in music to undertake, but with the use of the charts the chords may be readily played and soon committed to memory.

INSTRUCTION—Place one of the charts at right angles with the keyboard so that the small white letter D at bottom of chart with the dash above it is directly over D on the keyboard. Then the white spaces on the chart will be over the white keys and black spaces over the black keys. The top, middle and lower sections on the lower chart represent the three chords, a mastery of which will enable anyone to accompany on the piano or organ any song or melody in the key of F sharp, and the upper chart represents the chords of the key of D sharp minor.

The white letters are to be played with the left hand and the black letters with the right hand.

Now having placed the chart on the piano or organ, play the white letter on the top section with the left hand, and then the three black letters in unison with the right hand.

Next play the middle section in the same way, then the lower section, and then return to the top section.

The small white letter D at bottom of chart with a dash above it, which gives the chart position, must not be played.

The knowledge of the keys and facility in striking the proper chord form the basis of all musical knowledge. Keep the chart on the piano or organ until you are thoroughly familiar with chords in the keys given in this week's lesson, and when memorized you are quite as well equipped for the playing of accompaniments as one who has studied music for years.

Every triad in black letters is marked 1, 3, 5. Always read triads 1, 3, 5, no matter what position. Triad $\genfrac{}{}{0pt}{}{1\,3\,5}{C\,E\,G}$ —marked—third position, 5, the highest; always read it so. $\genfrac{}{}{0pt}{}{3\,5\,1}{E\,G\,C}$ first position, 1, the highest; read $\genfrac{}{}{0pt}{}{1\,3\,5\,5\,1\,3}{C\,E\,G\,G\,C\,E}$ second position, 3, the highest, read $\genfrac{}{}{0pt}{}{1\,3\,5}{C\,E\,G}$ and so with every triad major or minor.

FRANCOIS VILLON.

THE POEMS OF FRANCOIS VILLON. Translated by H. de Vere Stacpoole. John Lane Company, New York.

IF IT had been our deer that Shakespeare poached, if we had been annoyed by and taxed to support the children Rousseau deserted, and if our purse had been filched by Villon, it is likely that we would not be so appreciative of much that is highly valued in the treasure house of Fame.

Centuries removed from Francois Villon's nimble fingers and ready sword, with only the echoes of his evil reputation in our ears, but with the full substance of his vivid ballads in our hands—ballads graphic as Hogarth's sketches—we may well pay a tribute to his genius. Were he alive today, snooping through dark alleys in search of a belated wayfarer, or editing ballads in some tenderloin barrel-house, we would have no greater love or honor for him than did the respectable Parisians of five hundred years ago. And with our highly-civilized method of catching cut-throats and expediting justice, it is probable that his lean form would soon dangle from the gibbet, and that all of our wide-girthed burgers would puff with relief and remark wisely among themselves that the hangman is indispensable to good society.

But five centuries after Villon's death the most melodious poet of our day cried out:

"Prince of sweet songs made out of tears and fire;
A harlot was thy nurse, a God thy sire;
Shame soiled thy song, and song assoiled thy shame.
But from thy feet now death hath washed the mire,
Love reads out first, at head of all our choir,
Villon, our sad, bad, glad, mad brother's name."

So Swinburne sang, and so the gaunt aristocracy and so the well-paunched middle-class acquiesced with the condescending tolerance of those who patronize rather than enjoy literature. But only thieves and rogues—and poets such as Swinburne—would have welcomed Villon to their tables—Villon, with his pale, peaked face, and who, as he said of himself, "standeth bald, in turnip trim, sans beard, sans hair above the eyes."

But Villon pleaded his own case for future generations in a ballad while he and his companions were waiting expecting to be hanged:

"O brother men who after us shall thrive,
Let not your hearts against us hardened be.
For all the pity unto us ye give
God will return in mercy unto ye;
We five or six here swinging from the tree,
Behold, and all our flesh, that once was fair,
Rotted and eaten by the beaks that tear,
Whilst we the bones to dust and ash dissolve.
Let no man mock us, or the fate we bear;
But pray to God that He may us absolve."

Villon's most important poems are the two Testaments which he wrote in sadness, in satire, in mockery, bequeathing various things, few of which he possessed, to his friends, his enemies and his sweethearts.

To Mother Earth he bequeathes his body, worn out and wasted by hunger. It is so thin, he says, that the worms will get scant good from it—but from the earth it came, and so let it return to the earth. All things are glad to return from whence they came.

To one friend he bequeathes fourteen casks of wine stolen by himself at his peril. To the Prince of Fools he bequeathes, for a companion, one Michault, whose wit is not great. He orders that his body shall be buried in a convent, and that his monument shall be a picture done in ink. He wants no tomb of stone—it would break the floor down.

Villon does not glory in his rascality. He says that if God had given him some compassionate benefactor, then burning would have been just if he did evil—but that hunger drove him forth to rapine as it drives wolves from the woods. Again he says it is true that he has loved, and that he would do so again; but he has always been too hungry and sad to have the full joy of love. Love and a full belly only agree. He laments that he escaped from school and was a bad child, and wishes that he had studied and worked hard in his youth.

H. de Vere Stacpoole has given all of the known poems of Villon in the French, but, additionally, the ballads and rondels are translated into verse, and a running commentary and notes are given with the two Testaments. The translations are very pleasing—more literal and better verse than one expects to find; the spirit of cynical bantering—even in his repentant moods, Villon was not sentimental—and the almost whimsical dignity of his regrets is admirably shown.

He calls upon those who smuggle, those who cheat at games, those who make false coins, "thieves of gold, or virgin's pearls," to consider "where goes what ye get in fees?"—Answering "All on taverns and on girls."

"Turn, before your spirit cools,
To more honest husbandry;
Grooms of horses be, or mules
Plough the fields and plant the tree.
If you've no Latinity,
No more learning than the churls,
Work—nor cast your money free
All on taverns and on girls.

ENVOI.

Stockings, pourpoint, drapery,
Every rag that round you furls,
Ere you've done, will go, you'll see,
All on taverns and on girls."

Yet with the consistency that all reckless poets know so well, he pleads thus with his mistress:

"False beauty that has cost me dear,
Rude in effect, deceiving sweet,
Love that is more than steel severe,
Name whose letters spell my defeat.
Ruinous charms that my heart did eat,
Pride that kills men cruelly,
Pitiless eyes, will her heart not yet
Turn from disdain and succor me?"

The lament of the prostitute is one of the poems that shows how keen was Villon's sympathy, no matter how disreputable may have been his life. La Belle Heaulmiere, once the town's mistress, now grown old, reviews her charms and triumphs, and concludes thus:

"So we regret the good old times,
And squatting around the fire sit we.
Old trips, to watch the flame that climbs,
And in the fire our past we see.
Like sticks to feed a fire we be,
A fire that soon is lit and done;
Yet had we beauty once—pardie!—
Which is the tale of many a one."

As the author points out, nearly everything in life gave Villon a ballad; if not, a rondel; if not, a verse. A tavern, a church, the picture of a saint, a friend, an enemy, himself, his old mother, or Casin Cholet, the duck-thief—all found expression in his genius. He was the voice of Old Paris, and, of the voices of her bells and her people, the only living voice to reach us. Yet he is enough, for he speaks for them all—for the rioters in the taverns, for the chattering girls, for the courtesan grown old; for the creaking gibbet and the howling wolf. There is scarcely a friend that he has forgotten or an enemy that he has missed; and he is frank as day about himself. He says horrible things, he says sordid things, and he says beautiful things, but he says one thing always—the truth.

TELLING THE TRUTH.

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH. By Frederic Stewart Isham. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

TRUTH crushed to earth will rise again, so they say. But Bob Bennett found it rather difficult for the man who tells the truth to get up. He starts in on a bet to tell the truth. He simply has to tell it, for he has given his promise to pay $5000 if he doesn't keep truthful for three weeks, and he hasn't the $5000.

His married friends have much fun out of the wager until Bob is invited to a house party where their wives get him cornered and begin asking questions about the husbands. Then the fireworks starts. Many people think Bob has gone crazy—excepting the wives; they believe him.

Thereupon the husbands start in to advance the "crazy" theory. Divorce and scandal stare them in the face. Bob is carried off to a private sanatorium, from which he is rescued by a temperamental heiress who doesn't think he is crazy, but is confident that he is a "society burglar."

And Gwendoline Gerald—who isn't temperamental—doesn't know what to think and she is the only one for whose opinion Bob cares a rap. She begins to believe he is both "dippy" and crooked, and devotes her attention to a very handsome chap whose grand countenance Bob is rather anxious to spoil.

Between the temperamental heiress, who tries to blackmail Bob into marriage, and the outraged husbands, the same kind of wives, the baffled Gwendoline, and the pestiferous English lord, Bob has an embarrassing time of it.

"Nothing But the Truth" is an extravagant romance, breezy, preposterous and enjoyable. One wrinkles one's forehead considerably as the book draws to a close, in trying to anticipate the author's denouement, for it seems that the tangle Bob gets into can never be cleared up. Of course, some may think the book has a bad moral effect in pointing out the difficulties attending truth-telling. But that can hardly be just, since Bob comes out with flying colors—but slightly adverse to telling the truth when it is unnecessary.

STORIES OF THE SEA.

THE GAME OF LIFE AND DEATH. By Lincoln Colcord. The Macmillan Company, New York.

MR. COLCORD knows the sea, and in a dozen or more short stories tells of experiences in the Far East in a style not so very different from that of Joseph Conrad.

A critical estimate would not perhaps award the palm for merit to "The Measure of a Man," but it is one of the most unusual and absorbing stories in this book of strong stories. An American party—a fashionable lady and her rich husband, a Senator and a few more of the plutocratic type—while "touring" China attend a dinner at which a wealthy Chinaman is a guest. The Americans discuss by what standards manhood and success should be judged, and the Chinaman, being urged to tell a story, relates an experience that never happened, showing how the people of the Orient measure a man.

In "The Game of Life and Death," from which the book takes its title, Lee Fu Chang and the American Nichols have their ship stranded on an island infested by Chinese pirates. The pirates come aboard and find Lee Fu and Nichols playing cards, simulating an indifference to the presence of the pirates. Eventually the chief of the pirates plays with Lee Fu for the ship and the lives of Lee Fu and Nichols. In the handling of this story the author has presented a most dramatic situation in a way that is thoroughly convincing.

"The Moths" relates something of the hallucinations of a man who is afraid of moths, believing them to be the souls of women who have been wronged.

"An Incident in the Pacific" relates the experiences of a crew forced to abandon a burning steamer, and tells of a dog which deserted its master, seemingly with the foreknowledge that the master was to perish.

"De Long: A Story of Sunda Straits" (tells of a faithless wife, a miserly husband and her lover who drowns while attempting to rob the husband) and "The Final Score" (of how retribution came to a mutinous mate of after years) are two of the stories that add little to the value of the book.

But none of them are insipid; all of them have strength and the atmosphere of the sea. There are big, hard men in these tales—the hardest veterans of the foc'sle and quarterdeck—and Mr. Colcord handles his characters well.

FRENZIED ROMANCE.

A SOLDIER OF THE LEGION. By C. N. and A. M. Williamson. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.

ANYTHING is allowable in fiction that sounds probable. If it does not sound probable then we are justified in saying the author is at fault. Some authors make impossibilities seem not only probable, but logical. There is nothing in "A Soldier of the Legion" that might not easily be possible; there is little in it that seems probable.

From the moment Max Doran, a lieutenant in the United States army, learns from his supposed mother that he is merely an adopted child, to the hour when, as a soldier of the Foreign Legion, he is pardoned for deserting to save the colonel's daughter, the book has an air of unreality, the scenes seem forced, the climaxes appear hand-made.

Max, finding he is a Frenchman and that his father served in the Foreign Legion, and that the true daughter of his foster parents may be located in Algeria, goes in search of her, finds her, and surrenders all of the wealth he might have retained by keeping silent. On the ship, from France to Algeria, he finds a young and attractive woman, Sanda, who has entered his cabin by mistake; but he behaves as a gentleman, and she is grateful enough to be his friend; and her father, who is a colonel in the Foreign Legion, is also friendly after Max enlists in that branch of the French service chiefly composed of men who have no country and few friends.

Max is an idealized hero, more beloved of the authors than he will be of the readers; he whips the regimental bully, is worshiped by all of the men and admired by the officers; and at last goes on an expedition to escort the colonel's daughter—her who got into his cabin by mistake—from the home of an Arabian chief to civilization. A muddle of complications arise, a hodgepodge of excited romance involving the love of a noted explorer for Sanda, and their subsequent marriage; the hatred of the natives for the explorer and his punishment, ending with the love of Sanda for Max.

The few chapters dealing exclusively with the Foreign Legion, in which the authors fortunately neglected to jerk in some claptrap sensation, are not only interesting, but have the substance of reality—a substance that seems lacking in the remainder of the book.

A DOMESTIC NOVEL.

THE WOODNEYS: An American Family. By J. Breckenridge Ellis. The Devin-Adair Company, New York.

IT IS difficult to speak justly of this book for the reason that it is not easy to determine exactly what is just. It is not particularly interesting; we do not consider it well written—it is morally good in the superlative degree, a sort of a sermon on making the best of depressing difficulties when even poverty is among them.

The Woodneys are an American family and live in a small village. Mr. Woodney is a blind minister; Mrs. Woodney has aspirations in literature and succeeds in getting her first novel into print; the daughter teaches school, and the son works out as a hired man and loves the daughter of the rich man who has the mortgage on the Woodneys' home. Into the Woodneys' home, without much welcome, comes a relative who has tired of social life in the city and whose substantial income is derived through alimony.

The son is accused of theft, the father loses his pulpit, the daughter loses her school, the mother gets "roasted" by the reviewers, but still their spirit keeps up, and it all turns out very well through the manipulations of a criminal who had an interview with the blind minister in the barn loft. Also the divorced wife is reunited happily with her former husband.

The book is suffused with the desire of the author to do a little good in the world, and though we may be irritated by the Rev. Mr. Woodney's godly speech, and though we may grow weary of the unnatural dialogue, and especially of the lack of artistry in the story, still the author cannot be said to have failed in his desire. It is the sort of book built on the plan of "Pollyanna," "Mother Carey's Chickens" and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," but lacks the fine workmanship and vivacity of those stories.

STORIES OF INDIA.

THE MERCY OF THE LORD. By Flora Annie Steel. George H. Doran Company, New York.

IT IS ALMOST fatuous to say that some of the stories, all of which deal with India, in "The Mercy of the Lord," are better than others; but some of them are so decidedly better than others that one is provoked to be fatuous. Many of the stories are vague in their plots and somewhat so in their conclusion; the reader is left with the feeling that often they are not complete. "The Wisdom of Our Lord Ganesh" is particularly dramatic in presenting the judgment of death conferred by an elephant. "The Mercy of the Lord," from which the book takes its title, is rather vague in its purpose, though tragic in its conclusion. More stories—some twenty-five—than are usually included in one volume are here, and we fancy that they will appeal to those readers who like a touch of the weird, and enjoy the atmosphere that is often almost, but not quite, mysterious.

DRAMA.

A PLAY OF "ASIDES."

ORTHODOXY. By Nina Wilcox Putnam. Mitchell Kennerley, New York.

ON THE slip-cover of "Orthodoxy" there are laudatory remarks credited to a few rather well-known authors. Inez Haynes Gillmore testifies that it is "most interesting," "original" and "awfully well done."

It is "most interesting" as it shows exactly what the author thinks of villagers who attend church.

It is "original" in that it is the first play of which we know consisting entirely of "asides"—remarks addressed to the audience and not to be heard by anyone near by.

As for being "awfully well done"—we can understand how Dante's "Inferno" or Dostieovsky's "Crime and Punishment" might be thought "awfully well done"—even as enthusiastic slang it seems something of an exaggeration in reference to this play.

"Orthodoxy" ridicules church-goers in a provincial town, by presenting what they are supposed actually to think during the services as a contrast to what they say or pretend to think. The result is that the characters mumble their "asides" as Mrs. Putnam is of the opinion it would be interesting to have them—not as it is natural or even likely that they would think.

The sexton, as he shows a man and wife to their seats, "thinks:" "Here is your pew. I wish its floor would collapse and drop you both through."

The butcher's wife comes into church and "thinks:" "How religious I look! It is so respectable to go to church with one's husband!"

The minister in making the announcements is quoted: "Mr. O. Phool will speak about the vital necessity of neglecting our own slums entirely and sending out a few more or less illiterate men and women to try and uproot the ancient philosophical religion of China." It is obviously Mrs. Putnam, not the minister, who thinks that.

We hold no brief for religion of any description. We do hold a brief for satire. It is the most difficult and least appreciated of all literary forms, as we have said many times and expect to keep on saying. Flippancy is not satire; palpable bitterness is not satire; and there is much of both here. The only lines in "Orthodoxy" that are trenchant come at the end when the stranger is ordered out of the church by the sexton, who desires to close up, and he forbids the stranger the right to rest therein because "it is the house of God."

The author, apparently convinced that the book does not explain itself, has installed a preface to do so, stating that she doesn't hold "Orthodoxy" to be a "sacrilegious play," telling us all about how she came to write it, and declaring that she doesn't wish to convey the idea that "there are no really good people in churches." Quite a naive preface in fact, and wholly unlike the conscious effort at cleverness in the play.

SYNOPSES OF GREAT WORKS.

DICKENS SYNOPSES (1) SHAKESPEARE SYNOPSES (2) WAVERLEY SYNOPSES (3.) By J. Walker McSpadden. (Three books.) Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

THE chief value of these books is as a guide to the student and as a reference for the scholar. Anyone who hopes to get a tabloid education by digesting these three volumes will be deservedly disappointed. One may read all three and still have no knowledge of Dickens, Shakespeare or Scott; but to anyone who already knows something of those authors, or is preparing to begin learning of them, these synopses, also containing an index to the characters arranged alphabetically, may be of interest and service.

In the arrangement of the books a chronological list of the writings is succeeded by a brief study of each work—its date, first appearance, scene, time, personages and plot. The chief threads of the plot are laid bare.

A MEDICAL INQUIRY.

THE CANCER PROBLEM. By William Seaman Bainbridge, A.M., Sc.D., M.D. The Macmillan Company, New York.

IN FIVE HUNDRED closely-written pages Dr. Bainbridge presents every phase of the cancer problem as it appears today. Such subjects as the contagiousness, heritability and curability of cancerous growths are treated in detail, with a concise summary in a paragraph at the end of each chapter that puts the thing in a nutshell.

The author, who, as founder of the research department of the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, speaks authoritatively, asserts that habits of life, climate, diet and race have nothing to do with the production of cancer, so far as can be ascertained. He shows that it is a universal malady, from which no race is free, and to which no race is exceptionally predisposed. He finds that heredity plays a role, but not one of sufficient importance to cause anxiety. And, although he admits that the available records seem to show that cancer is on the increase, the disease does not appear to have gained ground to any alarming extent in the last quarter of a century.

The first chapters of the book, which are devoted to the history, general distribution and statistical considerations of cancer, make interesting reading for the layman. The remaining chapters are too technical for the general reader, but should be of great assistance to physicians and students of public health and hygiene.

The author's method of presentation is clear, and his literary style is a pleasing contrast to that of many technical books.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

The publishers have not forgotten the kiddies and young people; indeed, not. There are all varieties and sizes, colors and material for the interest of the little folk. A book designed to be instructive and interesting is "When Mother Lets Us Make Gifts," by Mary B. Grubb (Moffat, Yard & Co.,) whch shows both boys and girls how to make all sorts of useful and fancy things to keep or give to friends—things such as fancy boxes, desk blotters and cards for Christmas or Easter.

"The Bubble Ballads," by Melville Chater (The Century Company) are poems and pictures, and the title "Bubble Ballads" is taken because the bubble is thought to be "the perfect symbol of childhood's day: The Wonderworld of the Real-Unreal: A gossamer glory that melts away." "The Baby Bears," by Grace G. Drayton (The Century Company) sets forth the quaint adventures of two little bears that go out "to see what they can see," and what they do see is told both in comic rhyme and in pictures.

"Tik-Tok of Oz," by L. Frank Baum (Reilly & Britton Company) is well illustrated in colors and has a charming text about Queen Ann of Oogaboo, who, with an army of sixteen officers and one private soldier, sets out to conquer the world.

"The Willy Pogany Children" (Henry Holt & Co.) are exceptionally attractive and unique. They fold together in the same manner as a panorama map, and on one side appears the story and on the other are illustrations. The new books in the series are "The Three Bears," "Hiawatha," "The Children at the Pole," "Red Riding Hood" and "Robinson Crusoe."

"Remember Rhymes," by A. A. and E. B. Knipe (Hearst's International-Library) are designed to teach while they interest; they form a volume of some size and with jingles children are advised in manners and hygiene.

"The Universe and Mayonnaise," by T. Brailsford Robertson (John Lane Company) is a fairy tale that draws an analogy between the universe and mayonnaise for the interest of the young people.

"The Peggy and Pussy Book," by Mary A. Hays (Duffield & Co.) and "Strange Playmates," by Martha Strong Turner (Duffield & Co.) and "Perez the Mouse," by Lady Moreton (John Lane Company) are three little volumes with striking pictures for wee folk.

"Imagina," by Julia Ellsworth Ford (Duffield & Co.) is illustrated by Arthur Rackham and Lauren Ford and tells several most charming stories for children.

"The Eskimo Twins," by Lucy Fitch Perkins (Houghton Mifflin Company) describes life in snow-land where boys play and hunt and have merry times together without having the bother of going to school.

"Dutton's Holiday Annual" (C. P. Dutton & Co.) comes out for the twenty-seventh time full of stories and pictures for children who are of the age when they enjoy reading for themselves—yes, and even before, when they enjoy being read to. The Annual is edited by Alfred C. Playne.

"Come Unto These Yellow Sands," by Margaret L. Woods (John Lane Company) and illustrated by J. Hancock, is one of the most attractive children's books of the season. The pictures are gay and brilliant, and the stories about fairies and a boy and a girl who met them.

"Hans Andersen's Fairy Tales" (Harper & Bros.,) with a hundred illustrations and an introduction by William Dean Howells, is too well known to need comment. "The Diamond Story Book," by Penhryn W. Coussens (Duffield & Co.) is the second volume of children's stories collected by Mr. Coussens, and contains some excellent and almost unknown stories translated from Hindu folk-lore, with many other stories of fairies and such things as children like to read about.

"Good Stories for Great Holidays," arranged for story-telling, reading aloud and for the children's own reading, by Frances Jenkins Olcott (Houghton, Mifflin Company) contains over a hundred stories selected from many sources, and has attractive illustrations.

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

"Jim and Tim," by Charles Lincoln Edwards (Grafton Publishing Corporation) is a short Christmas story for children and one that will certainly please the young people. Jim is a small boy and Tim is a Scotch collie; and when Jim goes to buy his widowed mother a Christmas present with the pennies he has saved, Tim goes along. And when Jim meets with an accident, it is Tim that shows the kind stranger who helps the boy the way home. And it would be spoiling the story to tell what happens then.

PUBLISHERS AND AUTHORS.

The authorship of "The House of Deceit," the life history of a modern English demagogue, is assigned by the San Francisco Chronicle to J. C. Snaith. London Punch is certain that the author is revealed by the style and construction of the novel, but does not go on record with its guess. The other guesses vary as much as these two territorial extremes.

Rev. Abraham Mitrie Rihbany is dividing his time this winter between the pulpit and the lecture platform. Mr. Rihbany, who landed in New York not very many years ago, a penniless Syrian emigrant, is now pastor of the famous Church of the Disciples in the Back Bay district of Boston. His own story of this amazing transformation, recently published under the title "A Far Journey," is a striking refutation of the charge that America is no longer the land of boundless opportunities.

Possibly German influence upon the small disaffected Boer element in South Africa may have an effect similar to that which German music once had upon one of its animal citizens—according to an incident related by Sir Gilbert Parker in his novel "The Judgment House." One of the characters said: "I saved my life with the cornet once. A lion got inside my zareba in Rhodesia. I hadn't my gun within reach, but I'd been playing the cornet, and just as he was crouching I blew a blast from it—one of those jarring discords of Wagner in the 'Gotterdammerung'—and he turned tail and got away into the bush with a howl."

A. S. M. Hutchinson, the author of "The Clean Heart," laments that his defective vision prevents him from enlisting in the British army. As he expresses it:

"Lo, the poor author, who mid war's alarms
Hawks in the market his unwanted charms,
Credit him this much—that he can but write
Since, being nearsighted, poor wretch he cannot fight."

Louis Joseph Vance has been visiting the moving-picture colony in Southern California where he was warmly greeted as one of the most successful of the popular novelists who has taken up scenario writing. Mr. Vance's new novel, "The Lone Wolf," will not only be filmed, but it will be produced on the speaking stage.

Clark Stocking, the central character of Edgar Beecher Bronson's tale of the Old Frontier, "The Vanguard," is a perfectly real man, now an old man living in Los Angeles. Bronson first met him under highly dramatic circumstances. Nearly forty years ago, when Bronson was a young ranchman of Wyoming, he was traveling down from Deadwood on a stage coach guarded by Stocking. They were held up, at dusk, by a gang of seven desperate road-agents, and Bronson and Stocking [illegible] jumped into the fray, side by side. MRS. MASSON, the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.
PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.
MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE NEW YEAR AND YOU.
Are you thoroughly satisfied with the past twelve months of 1914? Have you done as well as you intended to do? Have you saved as much money as you meant to save? Have you earned as much money as you wanted to make. In a word—are you thoroughly satisfied? If you are not, you are probably forming resolutions to do better in these respects in 1915, but what is your definite plan of action? Would you like to participate in a monthly pay roll of about $5000 a month in commissions divided among comparatively a few men. Men who six months ago were not in any better a position than you are now—who are earning as high as $500 to $1000 a month. If you can give me your undivided time, pleasant manners, truth, hard, conscientious work, and a willingness to learn, I will equip you with the necessary knowledge, training and mental fitness to enable you to do what other men are doing for me now. Don't squander another year as you have done in the past year. Start 1915 right. This is your opportunity to change your vocation. Realize on the talents that God gave you, and which I will train and direct to make it possible for you to accomplish what you have always wanted—your success. I only desire men of the highest character and integrity, with red blood and a well-placed confidence in themselves. If you are such a man, see me any day from 9 to 5, and it will be a pleasure for me to go into detail with you regarding this serious matter. Room 323, Los Angeles Investment Building.

LOS ANGELES INVESTMENT COMPANY.

WANTED—SALESMEN.
I'm a little particular of the class of men I want surrounding and representing me. But that discrimination is a guarantee that your associates will be quality men. If you're a white man at heart; a salesman throughout; square; broad-gauged; reasonably intelligent and able to present a business matter to a business man in a businesslike manner, come in Tuesday, December 1st, and decide for yourself whether or not there's a million dollars a week in it. (That million is about the amount the adverage adv. guarantees can be made, isn't it?) Room 522, WASHINGTON BLDG.

WANTED—
ARE YOU A 20TH CENTURY MAN?
Do you think when you think, or only think you think when you think?
If you think when you think and are up to date enough to be convinced to in turn convince others that a 5-acre piece of land scientifically planted and cared for can make a man independent by a 20th century plan. Call and see us.
This is not the tail-end of a campaign, we are just starting and have sold a number of tracts in the last month with no sales force.
If you are looking for a live seller and are prepared to work conscientiously 8 hours a day and really try for two weeks at least, we know you can make more money for the time and energy expended than in anything else. Call any time Monday between 8:30 and 12 noon.

EXPLAINS ARREST AS GERMAN SPY.

BARON'S SOCIAL ASPIRATIONS CAUSE ACTION BY ENGLISH AUTHORITIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—Social aspirations were the cause of the arrest in England of Baron Louis von Horst as a German spy, according to his brother, E. Clement Horst, a hop grower of Wheatland, now residing here. Baron von Horst has been in an English detention camp for three months and the Washington authorities are trying to obtain his release.

The Baron married the daughter of D. J. Partello, former United States Consul at Coburg, Germany. There he became a friend of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who conferred upon him the honorary title he bears.

When the Baron went to England, his brother said today, he feared his right to his title might be questioned if he registered as an American citizen. So he registered as a native of Germany.

After the war broke out and he was arrested, the Baron tried to fall back on his American citizenship.

Horst said he expected to receive a cablegram in a day or two saying that the Baron had been given his freedom.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam, says:

"Friday morning fresh German marines, who recently arrived at Bruges marched toward the Yser. Some were singing, others were crying, as the Yser has a bad reputation. A high officer addressed the troops at Bruges Thursday and promised to take them to Calais.

"Several natives of Flanders were arrested as spies, after the bombardment of Zeebrugge."

BISHOP QUITS IN COLORADO.

HEAD OF EPISCOPAL DIOCESE RESIGNS AS RESULT OF TANGLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DENVER, Nov. 28. — Bishop Charles S. Olmsted, for twelve years Episcopal bishop of the Colorado diocese, has surrendered his post as head of the church in this State and will present a formal resignation later to the house of bishops of the church. He is now at Olmstedville, N. Y., where he was born, 61 years ago, and it is said he will spend the remainder of his days there with relatives.

Worry over financial entanglement of the diocese funds, which are now being straightened out in the courts, and factional troubles in the church are said to have determined Bishop Olmsted upon retiring from actual participation in the government of the church.

CAUSE OF DELINQUENCY.

Lack of Proper Home Training and Early Evil Environment Disadvantages for Girls.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Nov. 28.—Lack of proper home training and early evil environment are held to be the prime causes of delinquency on the part of the girls in California, in a report submitted to Gov. Johnson by the trustees of the Girls' School at Whittier. Larger appropriations are asked in order that the work of reforming these girls may be carried on more successfully.

The report declares that dealing with the girl question is more difficult than coping successfully with the boy problem. More sympathy and understanding is demanded; more care is essential and more understanding of human nature required. This has been brought out by a study of the sixty-two girls in the Whittier institution. Of the girls in the State institutions, the report points out that 66 per cent. are afflicted with venereal diseases, this showing plainly that the early environment has been very bad. In fact a study of the lives of these girls shows that over one-half of them come from homes where parental care has not been what it should have been. A large percentage of the remainder find themselves in trouble because of an apparent lack of innate ability to distinguish between good and evil.

The report declares that the girl must be first brought to realize her own failings and then that only through her own determination can she be brought to overcome her early defects of character.

The board of trustees, which consists of Mrs. D. G. Stephens, Mrs. C. M. Weymann, Mrs. E. P. Foster and Mrs. I. Lea Collins, asks for an appropriation of $249,000 for improvements this year.

JAP WARNING IS INCORRECT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Nov. 28.—The Japanese steamship Chicago Maru, bound for the Orient, recently sent a warning that German cruisers were in the North Pacific, which warning was picked up by the west-bound Tacoma Maru and carried to Victoria and Tacoma. The Chicago Maru afterward sent a message saying she was mistaken about German cruisers. The Canadian government has made public announcement that the Tacoma Maru was incorrectly advised. The North Pacific is entirely safe, without a single hostile ship in it, the official statement says.

OUR MAIL SAFE, SULTAN REPORTS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Turkey has assured the United States that mails between the Embassy at Constantinople and the Consulates scattered throughout the country will be safeguarded. Inasmuch as dispatches have been coming through in code from Ambassador Morgenthau and other agents in the Ottoman empire, it appears that the vigorous protests of the United States against the proposal of the Porte to restrict code communication between neutrals has been effective.

GERMAN ADVANCE COMPLETE FAILURE

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 29, 3:51 a.m.—In the statement issued by the Russian headquarters staff, various rumors circulating on the scope of an alleged Russian victory between the Vistula and the Warta rivers are dealt with. The statement says:

"These rumors are partly based on private letters from the seat of war published in certain journals.

"The headquarters staff warns the public that these rumors are not founded on facts and must be received with reserve.

"At the very beginning of the war the headquarters staff recommended the necessity of receiving with reserve all news not emanating from an official source.

"Undoubtedly the German plan to pierce our front on the left bank of the Vistula and surround part of the Russian army has completely failed. It appears from the communications of the staff commander-in-chief that the Germans have been compelled to fall back from Rzgow and Tuszyn through Brzeziny and Strykow under conditions most disadvantageous to them. The Germans suffered enormous losses during the retreat.

"The fighting, however, is not yet finished. The battle on the whole front is developing very favorably for us.

"The enemy, however, continues to offer stubborn resistance. It is impossible, therefore, to consider the operations ended and it is necessary to await the revelation of its final results in the firm assurance that the Russian troops are fully conscious of the necessity for successfully concluding their heroic efforts in order to finally shatter the enemy's resistance."

TRENCH EDITIONS OF BELGIAN PAPERS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—"Trench editions" of Belgian newspapers have reached the Belgian Legation here disclosing the efforts being made to re-establish communication between the men on the firing line and their families in territory occupied by the Germans or who have fled to France, England or Holland. Besides the news of the day and humorous remarks aimed at the enemy, the papers carry columns of paragraphs addressed to individual soldiers by company and regimental designation, telling each the whereabouts of his relatives. Each paragraph begs that the soldier "send news."

FACT AND COMMENT.

Several Los Angeles and San Francisco men were having a friendly argument on the "Owl" the other evening. All were business men, one of the southerners being a prominent Los Angeles realty broker. The San Franciscans were contending that the prices asked for lands in Southern California were "outrageously high." They were sure, so they said, that no acreage could produce enough to pay a fair return to such investments as were being made right along south of the Tehachepi. The Los Angeles man cited facts and figures galore, but without any great effect. "It simply didn't stand to reason," the Bay City men kept on urging, that country land could be worth so much. "It wasn't worth that much around San Francisco;" ergo—that settled it.

The realty broker, although undismayed, was at the end of his string. His most telling efforts weren't getting him anywhere. Suddenly his face lighted up.

"Suppose," he said to the San Francisco men, "that your city were suddenly to be absolutely depopulated. What would your harbor and water frontage be worth?" The northern men exchanged glances. One of them conceded that "no property would be worth a great deal unless there were people around." "Not a great deal is right," affirmed the broker instantly. "You'd better say it wouldn't be worth anything." To this, somewhat reluctantly, the Bay City champions had to agree.

"Now suppose," continued the city man innocently, "that instead of your city's being entirely depopulated, its present inhabitants were to be replaced with the lowest types of savages from the heart of Africa. What would your real estate be worth then?" "Nothing," promptly replied one of the San Franciscans, and the others, after some discussion as to whether the skyscrapers and other buildings might not have some value to untutored inhabitants as dwelling places, finally agreed. The man who had assumed the role of spokesman for the northerners permitted his concessionary attitude to carry him still further. "Anybody can see," he said, "that real estate couldn't have value unless there were people on it or unless the people occupying it had advanced far enough in the scale of civilization to begin to make some use of it. What of it?"

"That's just what I'm getting at," said the Los Angeles man gleefully. "The higher the type of the people occupying land the higher values it is bound to possess. Now take the lands around Los Angeles and—" But the laugh was on the San Francisco crowd and a few minutes later, in one of the big Bay City hotels, they paid up like men.

Arguments.

All of which, of course, outside of being rather rough on the San Francisco contingent, didn't have any special value in an argumentative sense. The story does illustrate one thing, however, and that is the actual attitude that a great many San Franciscans and others west and east maintain as to Southern California lands. The idea that acreage in this part of the country has soared to figures out of all reason exists in many quarters, and all that the land owners and others hereabouts who really know what they are talking about can say has not served to entirely dispel the notion. Many look at it in the same light as did the Bay City man when he said "it didn't stand to reason."

The Fact and Comment man knows a mechanic whose experience will serve to illustrate some of the points pertinent to an inquiry into land values in this vicinity. This man had been drawing down $4.50 a day in wages for several years and because of his steadiness and ability had never been out of employment from the day he started to work. Three years ago this workingman had managed to pay off the last cent of indebtedness on a home in Los Angeles.

One day he got to thinking real hard. He was through with the long grind of payments. He owned his home. He was free from the landlord. Even his taxes, high as they were, could not be called oppressive. He had realized a dream of years. One element in his satisfaction was lacking, however, that home wasn't bringing him in anything. He was still a mechanic on wages, with only a workman's chance to save and get ahead. All he ever saved up for the rainy day that might be ahead for his family and himself was set aside out of that $4.50 a day. The more he thought of it the more he longed for a better way in which to get some action on his savings.

The upshot was that he sold his home for $5000 cash and put half the proceeds into a five-acre tract of good land a short distance out from the city. The remaining $2500 went into an expensive bungalow, chicken corrals, garden tools, stock, seed, trees and the like. It was a modest investment so far as improvements and equipment went, but the $500 an acre he had paid for the land really worried him for awhile. That was three years ago.

Today that mechanic is netting absolutely clear of all expenses for maintenance and other costs $5.50 a day on his little ranch. His wife with hired help is able to attend to the business they have built up in the raising and marketing of chickens, Belgian hares, berries, fruits, vegetables and small farm produce generally and to accomplish everything with no more fatigue than she had experienced in housekeeping in the city. His children are rugged and healthy as only the children that live the out-of-door life of the country can be. They go to as fine a district school as may be found in the city itself. Most remarkable of all, the head of the family is still drawing down his $4.50 a day as a mechanic, traveling back and forth from the factory every day on the electric cars and making as good time at it as do many of those living in the city limits.

That man and his family enjoy every advantage that any dweller on a city lot can lay claim to, and they are doing what the average city dwellers are not doing — making money out of it. They shop in downtown Los Angeles and they come to the city for their amusements. Who would say that their five-acre tract wasn't intrinsically worth what they paid for it, even forgetting the inevitable increases in value due to the upbuilding of the community at large and of their own region in particular? Five hundred dollars an acre and up sounds like a lot of money to prospective investors from other parts of the country, but their criticisms will not hold water.

Works Both Ways.

Those who are wont to declare scornfully (and ignorantly) that Southern California is "nothing but climate" fail to take into consideration just what its climate really means to the Southland. The climate of this section makes Southern California more than merely the pleasantest place on earth to live. It makes this an agricultural region in which there are no "off" seasons, no months in which lands are lying idle and useless. It enables a grower to be producing something twelve months in the year and to be making money the year round. Southern Californians take many crops instead of one crop from their acreage. They market many crops instead of one crop. Their harvest is a perennial one, their market illimitable. Why shouldn't they boast about their climate and why shouldn't their lands be higher as a consequence of it?

Prices in Southern California are also governed as in no other part of the country by the law of supply and demand. There are in all the Southland only about 2,000,000 acres capable of profitable development, and of this total a large portion is today already under cultivation. The rest is being rapidly reclaimed by irrigation. There is no possibility of adding to the aggregate area. Every piece of ground developed diminishes the actual supply just that much. If there is such a thing as a land monopoly on earth the owners of the lands in Southern California have it. To cap it all, the population of Southern California is growing more rapidly than that of any other similar area in the world. It is therefore a case of monopoly plus demand. Almost literally is the owner of a piece of land in this paradise of the Pacific a dictator to himself.

PLANNING CHURCHES.

Local Architect Preparing Designs for Catholic Edifices in Riverside, Lamanda Park and Los Angeles.

Architect T. Frankling Power of this city is completing plans for three important religious edifices to be built in Southern California for the Roman Catholic Bishop of Los Angeles and Monterey. One is a two-story brick parish-house to be erected on Santa Monica boulevard near Franklin avenue in Hollywood for the parish of the Immaculate Heart. The building will contain ten rooms, three sleeping porches and three bathrooms. Excavations for the structure are now being dug.

Mr. Power has practically finished plans for a brick church of the English Renaissance type to be built for St. Francis parish in Riverside. The building, when completed, will be 47x140 feet in size, with a transept 62x27 feet and an eighty-foot tower. Only a portion of the building will be erected at this time, the present outlay being about $25,000.

The third structure being planned is a frame chapel to be erected at Lamanda Park. The building will be of the rustic type and will have a seating capacity of about 200 persons.

PERMITS ISSUED FOR FINE HOMES.

CONSTRUCTION WORK TO BE BEGUN AT ONCE ON WINDSOR SQUARE MANSION.

The city building department granted a permit during the past week for the construction of a twelve-room brick residence for Sam Behrendt in the Windsor Square tract. The house will cost about $17,500. A permit was also issued for a $13,000, twelve-room frame house to be erected by C. C. Maxon at the corner of Sixth street and Ardmore avenue. Both places were planned and are to be constructed by the Milwaukee Building Company.

C. H. Isler has had plans drawn for a nine-room house he will build for himself at No. 1807 Tenth avenue. Work will begin this week. The contract has been let for a seven-room dwelling to be built by C. F. Miller at No. 111 North Hobart boulevard. Work is about to be begun on an eight-room house projected by Neil Durflinger for a site on St. Andrews place near Eighth street.

Permits have been taken out for a bungalow court of eight four-room bungalows to be built by Barbara M. Smith at Nos. 1195 to 1201 South Bronson avenue. The cost is given at $8000. Plans have been completed for four bungalows of four rooms each to be built by Mrs. L. S. Bombach at Twenty-fifth street and Hooper avenue.

WITHDRAWS FROM FIRM.

Edgar B. Giles has withdrawn from the firm of Giles & Thatcher to become vice-president and general manager of W. J. Pearson & Company. Mr. Giles received his early training in the real estate and general brokerage business in Chicago, and for twenty-five years has been identified with these interests in the East and Middle West. He has made a special study of ninety-nine-year ground leases. He came to this city four years ago, since which time he has been instrumental in closing a number of notable real estate transactions in downtown Los Angeles. With his former partner he recently concluded the century lease deal by which W. J. Pearson acquired the northwest corner of Tenth and Hope streets from the Germain family.

CHANGES FIRMS.

C. E. Marshall has severed his connection with the Harry H. Culver Company to become assistant sales manager for the George D. Robertson Company. Mr. Marshall was formerly associated with the Janss Investment Company and the Braly-Janss Company. He will assume his new duties tomorrow.

Important Deals.

LEASES HOTEL FOR LONG TERM.

Local Man Secures Control of Woodward.

Lessee Now Managing Two Other Hostelries.

Tenant Secured for Windsor Apartment House.

A deal has just been consummated through the agency of E. W. Cason & Co., associated hotel brokers, whereby George A. Eastman leases from Theodore M. Walker the Hotel Woodward at No. 421 West Eighth street. The transaction covers a term of years and involves a reported total rental of $14,000 a year.

The Hotel Woodward is a fireproof, commercial house containing 125 rooms with a cafe and was erected about eight years ago by Robert Marsh. The property was purchased by Mr. Walker a few months ago.

Mr. Eastman, the new lessee, is at present operating two other hotels in this city, the New Morrison at Pico and Hope streets and the new Addington at No. 735 South Hope street. Prior to coming to this city he was proprietor of the El Capitan Hotel at Merced.

The Hotel Woodward will be continued on the European plan and will have several thousand dollars worth of furnishings added immediately. Mr. Eastman takes possession on December 1.

Another important leasing transaction was that involving the new Windsor apartments at the southeast corner of Orange and Kip streets. C. Wellington Howard was the lessor and Lillian F. Olds, a local hotel woman, the lessee. The life of the lease is ten years, the total rental consideration for this term being given at $110,000. The firm of Whilton & Hahn acted as brokers.

The Windsor is a four-story brick structure containing 137 rentable rooms together with a ballroom, lobby and parlors. It fronts 100 feet on Orange by 125 feet on Kip and is attractively faced with white brick and art stone.

SELL LEMON LAND TO CONGRESSMAN.

OWNERS OF FAIRVIEW FARMS TRACT REPORT SALES OF CITRUS GROUND.

The sale to the Hon. William Kettner, representative from the Eleventh Congress District of California, of six acres of recently-planted lemon land at Fairview Farms in the Newport district is reported by A. C. Tobias, with the firm of Bryan & Bradford, who represented the owners, Bryan & Bradford and H. H. Cotton, in the transaction. The consideration is given at approximately $4500, Mr. Kettner bought for investment.

The following additional sales in the same tract are also reported by the owners:

Harold Smith, five acres, $2250; J. H. Stearns, ten acres, $4250; M. C. Arnold, nine acres, $4800; W. W. Carruthers, ten acres, $6500; J. H. Dresback, two acres, $1000; Lee C. Green, five acres, $2375; Louise J. Bandholt, eight acres, $4536; M. D. Payan, fourteen acres, $7843; E. L. Bennett, five acres, $3250; Peter Hansen, five acres, $2125; Clarence A. Wilkinson, five acres, $3523; H. B. Mellott, five acres, $3250, and A. L. Sonderegger, ten acres, $4750.

The planting of lemon trees at Fairview Farms has been discontinued for the winter. It is announced that during the past season more than 75 per cent. of the purchasers in the tract have planted their land to lemon trees, making a total of more than 400 acres planted to date. Planting will be resumed in the early spring and it is expected by the owners that the entire tract of 1000 acres will have been set to lemons by the middle of the coming summer.

FOR SALE— IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A LOT THIS AD WILL SAVE YOU $350.

I have a splendidly-located lot on West 38th place, just around the corner from Wilton place, and I am going to sell it today for $825. I know that at this price there is not a bigger bargain in the southwest, and I know that you will say the same thing when you see it. It has gas, water, sewer, phones, electricity and all street work and Exposition Park assessments are paid. Lots in the next block sell for $1150, and this this lot is actually worth that amount. It commands a really beautiful view. The car service is exceptionally good, as you will see when you come to investigate this offer. The neighborhood is all that anyone could ask for—there has never been a shack or an undesirable building of any sort in this vicinity. Surrounding streets are built almost solid with the best types of bungalow homes. Come and see this lot, and when you are satisfied of the truth of everything I have said—when you are convinced that you can save $350 on this lot at the price I ask—then pay $25 down and the balance in $10 monthly payments. Take a West 39th-University car going south on Spring street, ride through the prettiest part of the city to Western avenue and walk two short blocks north to corner of 38th place and Western avenue. I will be there all day today (and today only) to answer truthfully and satisfactorily any and all questions. Ask for MR. WARNACK. After Sunday, phone Home F5925.

FOR SALE— GOOD CORNER ON EAST FIRST AT A BARGAIN PRICE. ON EASY TERMS.

East First street is the main thoroughfare and main business street of the Boyle Heights section, growing better all the time.

Inside lots on this street are held at $100 a front foot.

Here is a corner, right across from the site of the new public library, 100 feet on East First, 90 feet on Breed street, for $7500.

The reason for this exceptional offering is the absolute, bitter necessity of the owner. A first payment of $1000 gets this, balance on easy terms, five years in all. It really looks like a chance to invest a thousand dollars and double it before the next payment comes due.

UNEQUALED OPPORTUNITIES
IN SAN FERNANDO VALLEY
FRUIT AND FARM LANDS.

We have choice lands in all parts of the San Fernando Valley, all close to the boulevards, county road, Pacific Electric line, Sherman Way, towns, schools, etc.

All these lands are included in the irrigation district, bonds for which have carried, which means AQUEDUCT WATER, at low rates, under pressure, in mains, within a quarter of a mile of every piece of land.

To encourage settlement and improvement NOW, when it is TIME TO PLANT TREES, we have greatly reduced the amount of the first payment required on this land. We retain the original low prices. Give five years' time.

ANNEXATION is the next step after irrigation. When this is all a part of the city of Los Angeles, with Aqueduct water and city advantages—these prices will look very small indeed.

TULARE COUNTY LAND.

NOT

ONE CENT DOWN.

I own 640 acres of land two miles north of Orosi, Cal., in the early orange belt of Tulare county, and offer for sale 240 acres, in 20 and 40-acre tracts, on unparalleled terms.

IF YOU WILL IMPROVE THE LAND, I WILL GIVE YOU POSSESSION WITHOUT PAYING ME ONE CENT DOWN, AND YOU NEED PAY ME NOTHING FOR THREE YEARS, EXCEPT THE INTEREST AND TAXES. I WILL GIVE YOU SIX YEARS TO PAY FOR THE LAND.

Every acre is orange land, and the soil is also especially adapted to the raising of figs, olives, peaches, plums, table and raisin grapes, and many other crops, which are in full bearing on all sides of this section.

The property is located one mile from the Santa Fe "Orange Belt" Railroad. The soil is a rich loam, and this tract is considered one of the richest in the Orosi district.

Water is easily, and cheaply, obtained. The water stands at 18 feet. Pumping plant for 20 acres costs about $300. Four good wells are already developed on this section.

The land is priced as low as any surrounding it.

Improvements put on this land will enhance its value so rapidly that you can borrow enough on the property at three years to pay for the land. This is the history of all good California farm lands, where improvements have been made.

If you want to live in the country, and are willing to put your time, and a little money into improvements, where you will get quick returns, and where you are sure of success, this is your opportunity.

As there are only twelve 20-acre tracts offered for sale on these terms, you must act quickly.

For further particulars, address A. B. BEVANS (Owner,) Orosi, Tulare county, Cal., or call on J. B. SHERWOOD, 936 Merchants National Bank Bldg., Sixth and Spring sts., Los Angeles, Cal.

FOR SALE—

FELLOW LAND AGENTS:

YOU WILL DO MORE BUSINESS SELLING PLANADA LANDS. Commissions are generous. Commissions are paid monthly. You will not have to leave your territory for a day; our organization shows the land and closes deals without expense to you. The personal co-operation of a member of our firm is given whenever you need help.

PLANADA LANDS ARE EASY TO SELL BECAUSE THEY PLEASE FARMERS. The soil is good on top and all the way down. The water supply is abundant, reliable and cheap. It is also soft and pure. The ground is unusually smooth, well drained and easy to irrigate. The surrounding country is good. There are demonstrations of principal crops and of the personal success of settlers—on PLANADA LANDS, on neighboring land of similar character, and on our older subdivisions in the same county.

PLANADA, THE CITY BEAUTIFUL, our own modern town on the main line of the Santa Fe, JOINS PLANADA LANDS. No undesirable class or nationality will be admitted to either the town or the land. San Francisco is only four hours distant; Stockton, two hours. THE LOCATION AND ITS ADVANTAGES APPEAL TO EVERY MEMBER OF A FARMER'S FAMILY. The climate is pleasant, healthful, and keeps land and labor at high efficiency the year through.

PLANADA LANDS MEET ANY COMPETITION you may encounter in your work with DAIRYMEN, HOG RAISERS, poultrymen, growers of ALFALFA, CORN, FIGS, olives, almonds, peaches, and all kinds of garden vegetables.

THE PRICE OF PLANADA LANDS IS LOWER, we believe, than that of any other California acreage of equal value. The terms offered will accommodate any good farmer who is ready to buy land.

OUR METHODS YOU WILL LIKE. CONSERVATIVE REPRESENTATIONS. Every sale closed a distinct and SINCERE SERVICE to the purchaser. You will sleep well nights, and your talks will carry earnest conviction.

YOUR WORK WITH US WILL BE CONSTRUCTIVE. Every sale made will influence others and make you friends. The tract is large enough to supply you for some time to come. You can please your last customer as well as your first, for the subdivisions of PLANADA LANDS are so uniform in quality as to be very like a standardized manufactured product.

Planada Development Corporation, the owner of the property, is well financed, well managed, has DEEDS to the land it is selling, and can deliver UNLIMITED CERTIFICATES OF TITLE to purchasers.

Let's co-operate during 1915 for satisfaction in our work and more business. WRITE US FOR LITERATURE AND COMMISSION OFFER.

Yours sincerely,
CHILDS & RYAN,
General Agents,
202 Lissner Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—SPECIAL BARGAIN, by owner—

The best 130-acre alfalfa ranch in Southern California, including all stock and equipment of the very best. The stand is only three years old and absolutely first-class and clean of all foul grass. It is now in its best producing period. Cut about nine tons per acre this year. The location is in the famous Chino section, about 40 miles from Los Angeles, and one-half mile from shipping point. One of the best locations in Southern California for dairy. Has large pumping plant, delivering 100 inches water, large hay barn, modern six-room house, family orchard, tenant house; will show good return on hay this year, with prices lowest for 14 years. Paid big return last year.

TEST WELL CEMENTED.

Union's Test on Buell Ranch, Santa Maria Field, Down Three Thousand Feet.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MARIA, Nov. 27.—The Union Oil Company was expected to cement its test well on the Buell Ranch this week. The drill is down some 3000 feet. The location is near Los Olivos on the Pacific Coast Railway and is remote from any production. The region has frequently attracted oil men and wells have been put down at various points, notably by the Associated Oil Company, but without results.

The Pinal Dome Oil Company's test well on the Escolle estate not far from Carnelia and west of the proven field at Santa Maria is down 2600-odd feet and is showing such good indications that land owners in the vicinity are holding their tracts at twice their former prices and more. Such oil as has been found is of 22 gravity. A number of Los Angeles oil men have been to see the well. The company has some 5000 acres in this tract and this the first test well.

Santa Maria Oilfields, Ltd., has two wells about to come in with every indication that they will be good. The Shaw No. 1 lying to the south of the Cat Canyon field, was down some 3250 feet at last reports received and was flowing between the six and eight-inch casings. There is a very heavy gas pressure, which greatly impedes the work of completion. The company's No. 5 in the old Cat Canyon field is standing with the eight-inch cemented and in the oil sand.

This company is finding a practically unlimited market for its heavy road oil, of which variety it is the largest producer in the State. It has just made a substantial contract with the State Highway Commission to furnish this oil for State highways.

PROTECTION TO BE URGED.

Oil Men Would Safeguard Fields from Water.

Legislation Idea is Taken up Again.

Developments in the Valley Oil District.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 27.—When the Legislature convenes this winter the oil men will be represented at Sacramento in a strong effort to get much needed laws to protect the oil fields from the influx of water. Two years ago a bill of this kind was passed, but was vetoed by Gov. Johnson through the pocket method.

Introduced by Assemblyman Sutherland of Fresno, the bill provided for the formation of water protection of districts in the oil fields, and also for the election of commissioners, to assess properties; to employ experts, to compel operators to follow out orders in guarding against the flooding of wells, and to go upon properties and repair or plug wells when owners refused to act, charging the cost against the owners and collecting the money by civil suit. The reason assigned for the Governor's action was that he feared the power, which the bill gave the big companies, inasmuch as voting potentiality was given to operators in proportion to their holdings.

The State Mining Bureau has been making an extended investigation of field conditions, with reference to the water problem and will be prepared to recommend some action.

Refinery at Vancouver.

Presumably the refinery at Vancouver, B. C., which the Imperial (Standard in Canada) Oil Company is building will be run on California oil. In fact, it is certain that such will be the case for there is no other oil available, except for small amounts brought from the Orient. There is very little oil produced in Canada—none west of the Rockies.

Crude oil enters Canada free of duty, while refined products are taxed for the purpose of encouraging home industry. All oil and its products enter the United States free of duty, hence there would seem to be a strong probability of competition between the new refinery and the California refineries, unless, as probably will be the case, the Imperial Oil Company declines to do business on this side of the line, because of some agreement with the Standard of California.

When the news first came of the intended building of this refinery, it was widely reported that it was to be built by the Standard Oil Company of California, which, however, is not the case.

Royal Dutch-Shell.

The latest reports are that the Royal Dutch-Shell has let the contract for its refinery at Martinez and that work is to begin in the immediate future. It is said that part of the plant will be ready by the time the Valley Pipe Line is completed.

With the purchase of the Turner property at Coalinga, the European combination acquired also a large casinghead gasoline plant with a substantial trade already worked up with various refineries that desire such product for blending with their refined gasoline. Shipments are continued from the Turner plant by the new owners and there is talk of its being enlarged to handle, not only the remaining gas from the Turner wells, but also the gas from other wells belonging to the Royal Dutch-Shell.

The Europeans have under construction on section 36, 19-15, a 750,000-barrel reservoir and the material for five 55,000-barrel tanks on section 4, 20-16.

May Resume Drilling.

A report comes from Coalinga this week, credited to a Los Angeles oil man to the effect that a large amount of development is to be done on the Royal Dutch-Shell properties during 1915. The fact that the Shells have a big contract to supply the British navy with oil, and that shipments from Russia, Roumania and Borneo to the United Kingdom are almost, if not absolutely, impossible at this time, would seem to render such development quite probable.

If the oil be needed before the completion of the Valley Pipe Line there are other ways of moving it. For instance, under the law of California the Standard Oil Company is a common carrier of oil and has acknowledged its obligations in this respect, although never as yet actually called upon to fill them. While this is not the way the Shells would naturally choose to move their oil, it is available in case of temporary need.

The Shells are expected to ship some California oil to the British navy from Los Angeles. This will be the product of Midway, purchased from the General Petroleum and piped by that company to Los Angeles Harbor.

Buy in Oklahoma.

Back in Oklahoma the Shells are busy and have just purchased the properties of P. J. White and H. F. Sinclaire of Tulsa with a production of 34,00 barrels daily. The combine already has large Oklahoma properties.

Mohawk Wells.

Phil B. Daubenspeck, general manager of the Turner Oil Company until it passed into the hands of the Royal Dutch-Shell, has taken charge of the Coalinga Mohawk property on section 2, 20-15, adjoining the Turner, and has begun the overhauling of the company's well, No. 6, in an effort to locate the source of the water that has been coming into this well for some time past. The company's No. 1, is entirely free from water troubles.

In Roumania.

Roy McCallum, formerly with the John F. Lucy Company at Coalinga and now with the same company in Roumania, writes from Bucharest to friends at Coalinga that the country around Bucharest is overrun with fugitives from both Austria and Russia, the adjoining belligerent countries—that the oil industry is suffering from the conditions of war and that California would look very good to him just at present.

Belridge Prospect.

At 2900 feet the Belridge Oil Company on section 35, 27-20, appears to have excellent prospects of getting a good paying well. The location is near that of the Mannell-Minor Oil Company, which has several good wells. Otherwise the territory is unprospected. It lies between the Belridge district proper and Lost Hills.

Definite.

FIGURES COST OF HILL CUT.

Plans to Slice the Bunker Barrier Take Form.

More Than Three and a Half Millions, Estimate.

Engineer's Report to go to Council Tomorrow.

An open cut through Bunker Hill, making a swale across the hill from a line 140 feet north of First street to a line 140 feet south of Second street, would cost $3,730,695, according to the City Engineer, who completed his estimates yesterday for presentation to the City Council tomorrow morning.

The report, which was asked for by the City Council a few weeks ago, says in part:

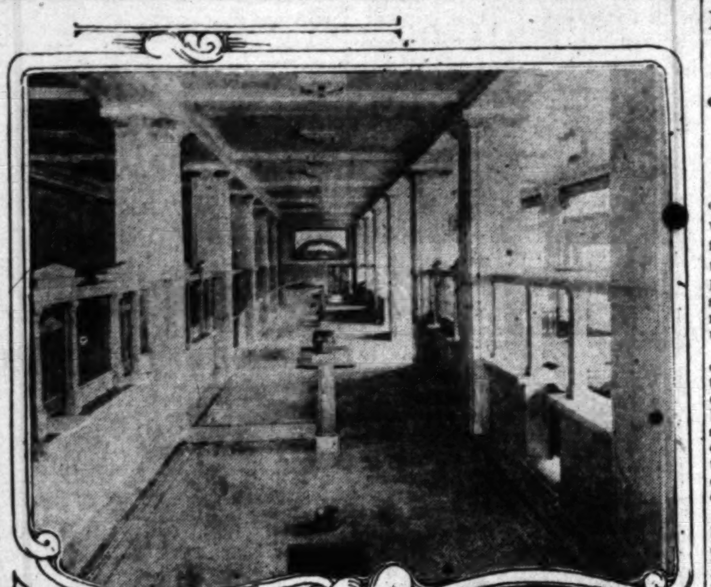
"In accordance with your instructions of November 6, I transmit herewith estimate of the cost of opening new streets across Bunker Hill, 140 feet north of First street and 140 feet sout hof Second street, and the cost of cutting down the area between these new streets connecting Hill street and Fremont avenue, with grades not exceeding 2 per cent. The work involves lowering Hill street about eight feet at First street and four feet at Second street, reducing the grades in First street and Second street between Broadway and Hill street to about 6 per cent., and lowering and underpinning the city's portion of the Hill-street tunnel from First street to Temple street."

The City Engineer's estimate of the cost of physical work shows that 1,334,000 cubic yards of earth must be removed for grading of streets, at a cost of 35 cents a yard, or $466,900. To grade property affected, 2,407,000 cubic yards of earth must be taken out, at a cost of $842,450. Sewer changes will cost $37,000, maintaining sewers during construction will cost $3000, changes in storm drains, $1500, and changes in water pipes, $25,000, according to the estimate. Stairways and retaining walls would be built at a cost of $486,400. The city would have to pay $32,000 to lower its portion of the Hill-street tunnel. Street improvements would be destroyed, for which $132,405 would have to be paid, it is figured. Superintendence, legal outlay and incidentals for the work are placed at $50,000. The total for this physical work is, under the estimates, $2,076,655.

Based on the Assessor's estimates of market values, the following sums are added for damages in figuring the total cost:

Cost of the land for new streets, $271,480; payment for improvements now on site of new streets, $129,560; payment for improvements on private property, which is to be lowered, $1,000,000; damages due to grade changes outside of razed area, $253,000. The damages aggregate $1,654,040. This makes the total estimated cost of the improvement, $3,730,695.

There are, the Engineer's report states, in the tentative assessment district, 16,780,000 square feet in the portion outside of the cut and 1,050,000 square feet inside the cut.



AFTER REBATERS AND "TWISTERS."

LOCAL INSURANCE MEN PLAN NEW LAWS FOR COMING LEGISLATURE.

A movement to have stricter and more comprehensive insurance laws enacted in this State at the next session of the Legislature is on foot in the local field. A Committee on Legislation composed of I. J. Muma, F. E. McMullen and George A. Rathbun has been appointed in the Los Angeles Underwriters' Association to formulate plans for carrying on the campaign. A definite programme will be arranged shortly after the annual election of the association to be held next month.

The two principal points upon which it is desired to secure legislation are rebating and "twisting," according to W. McClelland, secretary of the Publicity Committee of the association. Rebating means a case where an agent gives away a part of his commission, while "twisting" refers to the replacing of a policy of one company by that of another.

"The insurance laws of California are very lax. The present commissioner, John E. Phelps, has announced his intention of bringing them down to date, and he has the hearty support of all insurance companies in this plan," said Mr. McClelland yesterday. "There have been a great many complaints lately against 'twisting' in California. The general public needs protection in these matters, as much as the insurance companies. A man, for instance, never knows what the lowest price for a policy is if he encounters rebating."

The annual election of the local life underwriters' association this year will assume greater importance than ever, according to members, in view of the fact that entertainment must be provided for the life insurance company representatives who will attend the insurance congress at San Francisco next October. Hundreds of insurance organizations will send delegates to this meeting, it is stated.

AMALGAMATED "GASSER."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Nov. 27.—Gas broke loose in the new well of the Amalgamated Oil Company in La Habra Valley this morning. The flow is coming from between the eight and a quarter and six-inch casings, and the well is proving one of the greatest "gassers" in this section of Fullerton field. There is not much oil appearing. The well produced at a higher level some time ago, but as the yield was only about 200 barrels daily it was decided to drill deeper.

NEW BANK WILL OPEN TUESDAY.

CONTINENTAL NATIONAL TO OCCUPY HOME IN THE MARSH-STRONG BUILDING.

The Continental National Bank will open for business next Tuesday in its well-appointed quarters on the ground floor of the Marsh-Strong building on the corner of Ninth and Main streets. It will have a paid-up capital and surplus of $275,000, and a strong directorate, headed by R. S. Heaton as president.

Mr. Heaton was formerly cashier of the Commercial National Bank of this city, and prior thereto served as cashier of the National Bank of the Pacific at San Francisco, which has since been absorbed. He is considered well suited by temperament and training for the position of president of the new institution. His experience has covered about fifteen years.

Other officers and directors are Sol Davis and W. D. Howard, vice-presidents; Ed Siefkin, cashier; Fred J. Kinney, assistant cashier; George W. Dickinson, Thomas Haverty, Harrington Brown, Harry W. Watson, S. M. Gangestad, A. V. Andrews, R. A. Fowler, Edwin B. Root, John W. Kemp, J. J. Andrews, F. R. Feitshans, Anton C. Olson, W. H. Clune, R. C. Hamlin, Frank R. Strong and John P. Mullin.

The Continental National will of course be a member of the new Federal reserve system and has applied for membership in the local clearing-house association. Its banking-rooms occupy about 12,000 square feet of floor space. The arrangement of the officers' quarters, tellers' cages and other appointments throughout the bank are in harmony with the modern trend of efficiency, and the decorations indicate richness without being garish. There are 2300 safe deposit boxes in the basement. A special feature will be the Scandinavian department, under the management of R. O. Belland, formerly cashier and director of the Scandinavian-American Bank of Fargo, N. D.

Although the Continental will raise the total number of national banks within the city limits to thirteen, the management does not in any sense regard this as a hoodoo, but rather as an omen foreshadowing a brilliant career. The successful organization of a bank under the generally unsatisfactory conditions which have prevailed in the financial world during the past year is regarded as a very remarkable achievement. The directors announce their readiness to raise the capital to $625,000 in six months should it seem advisable.

OFFICIAL GAS FIGURES.

Nineteen-Thirteen is Shown to have been Greatest Year for Industry, in Government Report.

The year 1913 was the greatest in the history of the natural gas industry of the United States, according to a bulletin on the production last year prepared under the supervision of David T. Day by B. Hill, and received in this city yesterday. The year surpassed any previous one in both the quantity and the value of the gas produced.

While there was a decrease in the domestic consumption of gas, compared with the previous year, the industrial consumption is shown to be steadily increasing by the figures of the report. One of the important features of the industry was the greater effort made last year to conserve the natural gas resources of the country by saving the gas from oil wells, etc., the report states.

The total gas production in the United States in 1913 is estimated at 581,898,239,000 cubic feet, valued at $87,846,677, an average price of 15.10 cents per thousand cubic feet, an increase of 19,794,787,000 cubic feet in quantity and of $3,282,720 in value over the previous year, the report's figures show. Of the product 32 per cent. was used for domestic purposes and 68 per cent. for industrial purposes.

Great Help for Some.

[Washington Star:] The Duchess of Marlborough, at a tea in Newport, praised the toilets of a Baltimore girl.

"She dresses exquisitely," said the duchess, who, dressing exquisitely herself, is an admirable judge. "Her hats, her shoes, her coiffure—it's all exquisite.

"And I like to see her take such pains with her appearance," the duchess added. "It is wise. For a girl can't help her looks, but her looks can help her."

BUREAU TO AID CITY'S MOTHERS.

CEREMONIES MARK OPENING IN OLD NORMAL SCHOOL.

Policewoman Tells Her Plans for Helping Erring and Declares for Industrial School and Home for Deficient Children—Judge Thinks Good will be Result.

The City Mother's Bureau was formally opened yesterday in handsome headquarters in the old Normal School building. Exercises were conducted in the auditorium of the building. Several city officials, ministers and other persons of prominence took part in the programme.

Frank Owen presided at the meeting. The speakers included Mrs. Aletha Gilbert, City Mother; Rev. Baker P. Lee, Judge Taft, Rabbi Hecht and Councilman Whiffen. Police badges were presented to the following assistants of the City Mother: Mrs. Frank Stoddard, Mrs. Jefferson Gibbs, Mrs. Frank Wolfe, Mrs. Frank Owen, Mrs. R. J. Waters, Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. James Westpheling and Mrs. Bertha Baruch.

Music was furnished by the police band.

The bureau is under the supervision of the police department. Several of the speakers complimented Chief Sebastian on his wisdom in organizing it. The headquarters are located on the second floor of the building, near the Fifth-street entrance.

The several hundred persons present listened with much interest to an address by Mrs. Gilbert.

She told of how she had obtained the consent of the Chief of Police to remove the bureau from the morbid crowds and publicity of the police station. She declared she believes the bureau will do a splendid work, standing for prevention and protection, especially of minors whose parent or parents fail in their duty.

Mrs. Gilbert declared further that she hopes to see an industrial school here, where girls may be trained to fill worthily any place to which they may be called. The city is also [illegible] in need, she said, of a home for deficient children.

Judge Taft declared that he believed the bureau could reduce the work of the Juvenile Court [illegible].

"No person is more interested in the work of this bureau than I," Judge Taft said. "From the vantage point of the Juvenile Court, I am able to appreciate the work which it is undertaking. I am fully able to recognize the importance of preventive work.

"The question, 'am I my brother's keeper?' has long been before the world. It has been left to these times for the question to be answered in the affirmative.

"The City Mother's Bureau has undertaken important constructive work. That is the kind that counts. The undertaking is highly practical and with the sympathy and tact which I know will be displayed by the good women at the head of it, I am sure it will be a strong force for good."

Rev. Mr. Lee's speech was followed with much appreciation. He was given an encore and responded with a graceful story.

"You are starting something important here," he said. "I believe in the gospel of another chance. Preventive work is the kind that counts. It's the mother element in the work that makes it great. Love will be the great magnet to draw out the best that is in boys and girls. In this work love is greater than law or justice."

MAY DELAY ASSESSMENT.

Head of Bureau Wants More Time to Consider the Problem of Opening Broadway.

The Board of Public Works yesterday acquiesced in the request of Shreiber, head of the Assessment Bureau, for an extension of thirty days from November 30, in which to complete and file the assessment for the opening of Broadway from [illegible] to Pico streets.

"The assessment needs extraordinary consideration," said Mr. Schrieber, "owing to the large amount to be raised, making the rate of assessment per foot in some [illegible] $1000, and I have been working the last thirty days to give my undivided attention to this assessment."

The board has asked the City Council for the extension of time and action will be taken Monday, the day named for the completion and filing of the assessment.

MAKE NURSES OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

FIRST AID AND HOME NURSING TAUGHT IN POLYTECHNIC NIGHT SCHOOL.

Ability to make a bandage that will stick, adjust a pair of splints satisfactorily, or the faculty of knowing just what antidote to give in a poison case, may not be included among household necessities. There is, however, a chance that they will become a generally-recognized asset in domestic life, if the classes in home nursing and first aid at Polytechnic High night school continue to make the progress they have since the courses were introduced last September.

One hundred and twenty pupils have registered for the three courses in nursing which are offered at the school. Fifty-eight of these are in the first-aid class, which meets once a week. This number is about evenly divided between boys and girls. They learn all phases of the most essential emergency work, such as bandaging, care of fractures, applying splints, various treatments for burns, poison cases, minor injuries of the eye, ear, nose and throat, etc.

Arrangements are being made by Dr. J. Edgar Colloran, secretary of the local chapter of the Red Cross Society, to secure the certificates of the National Association for the pupils, after they complete the forty-week first-aid course, and pass the required examination.

The class in home nursing and one for mothers meet twice a week, on alternate nights. In the home-nursing course actual care of the sick is taught, as well as the avoidance of minor diseases which may become major in character. Instruction is also given in the nature of symptoms, so that a patient's ailment may be readily determined. The prime thought throughout this course is the prevention of disease, through hygiene, ventilation, etc.

Mothers are taught accurately to know the general care of infants. This includes instruction in feeding formulae and their uses. Particular stress is laid on the care of the nervous system, so that the child's mental and physical caliber may be kept up to standard from infancy. On the same evenings that this class is held, instruction is also given in massage treatments.

High School credits are secured by the pupils who complete the courses in home nursing. The curriculum of all three classes is supplemented by lectures on hygiene, ventilation, physiology and anatomy.

The work is in charge of Mrs. M. Elizabeth Hodges, who has had extensive practical experience in the care of the sick. A. N. Hatherell, the principal of the night school, has co-operated in every way to make the course a success.

WHAT WE OWE TO THE BRITISH.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLIONS RATHER THAN FIVE BILLIONS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—An international banking house with influential British connections today received a cable from London touching upon the statement of Chancellor Lloyd George in the House of Commons on Saturday that this country's debts to Great Britain aggregated $5,000,000,000.

The cable intimates that the statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer was misinterpreted and that British bankers estimate the amount of this country's obligations to London as not exceeding $250,000,000. This was the maximum named by Sir George Paish, the British treasury official, during his recent visit to this country.

Local bankers believed that Lloyd George probably referred to the amount of American securities held by bankers and individuals of Great Britain. At no time, the bankers said, have this country's obligations to England and her colonies ever amounted to the colossal sum said to have been named by the Chancellor.

REOPENING STOCK EXCHANGES EVENT OF THE WEEK.

Extension in Operation of Federal Reserve System Proceeds Cautiously, with Constant Necessity of Study and Test of Untried Questions—Cheerfulness Prevails.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The event of the week, mainly because of its sentimental influence, was the reopening of the stock exchange for limited trading in bonds. The net result shows a preponderance of declines, due in large part to the pressing needs of some home investors whose interests and incomes have been adversely affected by the foreign cataclysm. Elsewhere in the general financial situation there was further substantial progress in the repair of damage caused by the war. The Chicago Stock Exchange successfully resumed operations and other domestic exchanges, including the local coffee exchange, prepared to reopen. Extension in the operation of the machinery of the Federal reserve system proceeded cautiously, with the constant necessity of study and test of untried questions. Rapid retirement of clearinghouse certificates and emergency currency removed elements of threatened redundancy. The weekly bank statement in its modified form showed a moderate increase in loans and a cash loss much below estimates, but the excess reserves, although decreased by about $5,500,000, aggregated the unusual sum of $132,424,000. In other respects the exhibit was a virtual rectification of last week's confusing statement. Much of the news from abroad was in keeping with the more cheerful sentiment prevailing here.

DECIDED RALLY IN WHEAT PIT.

CLOSE IS STRONG AFTER AN EARLY DECLINE.

Increasing Belief that Estimates of Argentine Exportable Surplus had been Grossly Exaggerated Helps Prices—Big Receipts of Hogs Depress Provisions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Increasing belief that estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus had been grossly exaggerated helped bring about a decided rally in the wheat market today after an early decline. The close was strong at ⅞@1 to 1 net advance. Corn finished a sixteenth off to ¼@⅜ up, oats varying from ⅛ decline to an equal gain, and provisions the same as last night to 17½ down. Dispatches received here from Argentina all expressed conviction that the official forecast of 200,000,000 bushels as the crop total and 144,000,000 bushels to be available for export was entirely too optimistic. According to a dispatch today the crop was likely to be 140,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels, with the surplus 78,000,000 bushels to 112,000,000 bushels. Continued depression in values at Liverpool made the wheat market here take a downward slant during the first part of the day. Corn swayed with wheat. Traders' views were about evenly divided. Covering by shorts offset to a great extent liberal sales that were chiefly in the nature of hedging. Trading in oats seemed unusually cautious. Larger receipts of hogs than expected had a depressing effect on provisions.

New York Cotton Market.

[Furnished by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The cotton market again was dull, with fluctuations within a narrow range. Reports from the South today tell of good inquiry for actual cotton at higher prices and of firm offers. However, stocks are piling up and as exports are very small, it will be quite a task on the southern holder to keep from selling at least a portion of the surplus to be able to care for the constantly increasing receipts. The opinion prevails in trade here that many investment orders are in the hands of brokers to take advantage of any drastic decline and the wisdom is beyond question. The December position continues to dominate the market and the situation can be termed a technical one.

COMMERCIAL.

Although the week was broken by a holiday, the volume of trading was very heavy and better prices prevailed in many lines. Demand for fresh fruit, vegetables, fancy dried fruit, nuts and cheese was particularly noticeable and dealers are all assuming a more optimistic tone. Valencia oranges have been cleaned up and a few scattering receipts of tangerines are reported coming in, but not in sufficient quantities to make them quotable. Grapefruit is meeting a very brisk demand and is plentiful. The eastern call is increasing gradually and advancing quotations would not come as a surprise. Grapes are climbing. Red emperors are the most choice on the market and are quoted at $1.50 per box. Pears are also moving better.

The price of eggs declined 1 cent, sales being concluded at 44 cents on case count. In the north the market dropped to 45 cents. Receipts were 147 cases. Storage stock continues to move freely. Butter arrivals marked 71,070 pounds. The call for cheese has been excellent. Receipts were only 470 pounds.

Potatoes continue steady. Receipts were 4106 sacks. Onions are advancing very slightly, but enough to be noticeable. Arrivals were 603 sacks. Bean receipts were 425 sacks and sweet potato arrivals were 217 sacks. Tomato arrivals were 537 sacks.

Receipts of apples were only 355 boxes and the average arrivals have been growing smaller right along.

Permit to Export Wool.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

MELBOURNE, Nov. 28.—The Minister of Trade of the commonwealth announces that it has been decided to permit exports of wool to Canada and Japan.

EXTRA-FINE fruit, vegetable and alfalfa land can now be bought in Calipatria Farms of Imperial Valley for $65 an acre ($13 an acre cash.) See Carl F. Schader, 610 Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles.

BUY NOW

The financial situation is fast clearing, and it looks as if it would only be a short time until conditions will again be normal. We base our opinion for this from the fact that all stocks are showing a better tone, especially is this true regarding mining shares which have in some instances advanced over 1000 per cent.

Now is the time to buy.

The Los Angeles Stock Exchange will open December 7th, and we predict a considerable movement in many of our most active traders.

In executing your orders we can give you the best of service, both here and in San Francisco.

We receive daily quotations from San Francisco.

War to the End.

FEDERAL BOSSES HAVE NO MORE HOPE FOR BARGAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Hope of making peace with organized baseball until at least another season of warfare has passed appears to have been abandoned by Federal League owners, who held their annual meeting here today. Preparations for the 1915 season were undertaken enthusiastically, the baseball magnates not even stopping for lunch.

A committee to draft a schedule of 154 games was appointed by James A. Gilmore. Robert B. Ward of Brooklyn and Lloyd Ricket, secretary of the league, were named and will report at a meeting to be held at Buffalo, probably in February.

President Gilmore also appointed E. W. Gwynner of the Pittsburgh club, C. E. Rasin of Baltimore and himself a committee to draw up rules and regulations.

Twenty-one representatives of the league were present, and both Cleveland and Cincinnati sent agents to plead for Federal League teams in those cities. If any action was taken on the petitions it was not announced. Despite the assertion of a representative of the Kansas City club that that city had pledged greater suport next season, it was generally admitted there was a possibility of the Kansas City franchise being transferred.

That Pitcher Ray Caldwell of the New York Americans had been signed by the Buffalo club was the only announcement made of an acquisition of a player from the old major leagues. It was said that fifteen additional players in the National and American leagues had signed Federal League contracts, but that to make public their names at this time would be premature.

FOR CITY JOBS.

The City Civil Service Commission has announced examinations for various positions in the municipal service, as follows:

December 12, deputy City Clerk, $100 a month; asphalt worker, $3 per day; meter inspector, $75 to $90 a month; gutter layer, $3 a day; counter clerk, engineer's department, $78 a month.

December 19, deputy Tax Collector, $110 per month; computer, Public Utilities Commission, $75 per month; stenographer (male and female,) $60 to $80 per month; caretaker, playgrounds, $65 per month.

January 9, patrolman, police department, $83 a month.

UNDELIVERED TELEGRAMS.

There are telegrams at the Western Union for W. H. Crawford, Hans Debes, L. Harry Eldridge, Edward Friedman, W. H. Hart, James Hollis, P. J. Kiengl, Mrs. Herbert W. Latheline, Bert Mitchell, Miss Susan O'Brien, C. P. Randolph, Ernest C. Reed, Rev. William J. Ryan, R. H. Schultz, A. R. Stettler and H. S. Tyler; at the Postal for Mrs. Grace Barber, Claude E. Eight-cylindhr Cadillac Arrives-

ARMY FOOTBALL MACHINE ROLLS UP 20 TO 0 SCORE ON MIDDIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—The United States Military Academy football team defeated the Naval Academy eleven by a score of 20 to 0 in the annual service game on Franklin Field today. Once the powerful and well-balanced Army machine started its march for the initial touchdown the ultimate outcome of the game was never in doubt. The Annapolis combination was outplayed and outclassed in every department and but for the splendid fighting spirit of the Navy in the face of certain defeat, the score would have been larger.

BIG CROWD.

The famous University of Pennsylvania athletic amphitheater was thronged with close to 33,000 spectators, every available foot of space, both permanent and temporary stands, being occupied.

The weather was a perfect Indian summer afternoon, which was appreciated far more by the spectators than the players, who suffered considerably for conditions were more favorable for baseball than football.

Each team in turn tried out the opponent's defense, but there was no continuity in the play of either eleven during the early minutes of the game. As a result punting was resorted to and the Army's first score came as a result of these exchanges.

FIRST BLOOD.

Coffin kicked from the cadets' 40-yard line and the ball after hitting several players, rolled to the Navy's 5-yard line where Blodgett fell on it. His attempt to punt out from behind his own goal line on the first line up was blocked and he fell on the ball for safety while several Army line men were struggling to secure possession of the spheroid.

The second period opened with the ball in possession of the middies who could make little progress through or around the Army line. The cadets gained on every exchange of kicks and when Blodgett fumbled one of Coffin's kicks Merrill fell on the ball on the Navy's 15-yard line. Here the Army secured its first touchdown when Prichard made a perfect forward pass to Merrillat who ran across the sailors' line without opposition. The try for goal was a failure.

SAME STUFF.

The second touchdown was made on a repetition of these plays.

The middies fought desperately in the third period, but they never threatened the Army goal.

When the final quarter opened, a punting duel finally worked the ball within striking distance of the middies' goal and the soldiers uncovered an old-fashioned attack which proved irresistible.

After the ball had been carried across the line the Army failed to convert the touchdown into a goal and the scoring ended.

The victory was particularly pleasing to the soldiers for as a result of today's win, the series, which began in 1890, now stands a tie, each academy having won nine games of the nineteen played with the 1905 contest a 6 to 6 tie.

FINE RECORD.

The result also rounded out a triumphant season for the Army team which now takes its place as one of the very few eastern elevens to complete the 1914 football campaign without being either defeated or tied.

DETAIL OF PLAY.

First period: Navy won the toss and chose the east goal. Army's kick off was run back by Falling to the 25-yard mark. Two tries at the line were checked and Blodgett punted out of bounds at Army 30-yard line. The first Army play was a fake punt which gained thirty-five yards.

A forward pass gained twenty more and the ball was on the middies' 15-yard mark. Three plays gained eight more, then Army missed a field goal. Scrimmaging from the 20-yard mark, Navy failed to gain and punts were exchanged, the Navy gaining eleven yards.

Mitchell went around Merrillat for seven yards and two tries at the line made it first down. A fumble was recovered, then Blodgett punted to the West Point 27-yard mark. The kick was returned and then a bad pass by Perry went over Blodgett's head and lost twenty yards. Another exchange of kicks ensued, Army's punt rolling to the 51yard line.

Blodgett stood behind his own goal

SPEED KINGS INSPECT CADILLAC "EIGHT" ON THE CORONA COURSE

BY AL G. WADDELL.

THE much-heralded, long-expected eight-cylinder Cadillac has arrived in Los Angeles and it is truly a great automobile. Never has any car created the sensation in Los Angeles that the new Cadillac has, not even in the days of the old curved dash Oldsmobile.

EAGER.

After weeks of anxious waiting and speculation, the motor-car fans were primed for the first glimpse of the new eight-cylinder car. When the machine arrived, the attractive body lines were overlooked. All hands wanted to see the new motor—the eight-cylinder creation, which has stirred the automobile industry from top to bottom.

The Don Lee organization of Los Angeles had made extensive preparations for the arrival of the new "eight," but the most sanguine expectations of the local Cadillac men were eclipsed when the car actually arrived.

Before the public was given a look at the new machine, the car was given a trial trip. Both a five and a seven-passenger car were sent out on the maiden demonstration trip.

FIRST TEST.

A drive to Thousand Pines was the first test to which the "eight" was put by the local Cadillac men.

Early Wednesday morning, the two cars left the local Don Lee establishment and were driven to Pasadena, where the rest of the party was picked up.

The following were in on the first Cadillac run: J. E. Brown, Los Angeles manager for Don Lee; A. E. Landman, Lester G. Patee, Tim O'Neill, R. S. Breyer, Richard Carlson, H. I. Borden, Irving Eubanks, D. L. Bolton, M. E. North, F. E. Ginney, R. H. Miller and the automobile editor of The Times.

At Pomona, where the party stopped for breakfast, a large crowd gathered around the two machines, although the hoods were not raised. The Cadillac was recognized and it was known as once that the machines were the new "eights."

BIG CROWDS.

From Pomona, the cars were driven over to Corona for the purpose of inspecting the roads the day before the great road race for the benefit of the readers of The Times. It was almost impossible to get out of the Circle City. Crowds flocked around the machine and the great racing drivers, who were to drive in the gasoline classic on the following day, stopped working on their cars long enough to inspect the strange eight-cylinder motor.

It was almost time for practice, the drivers were putting on the finishing touches to their cars; but their curiosity was too strong and they had to look at the new Cadillac. Brown lifted the hood and for a full half hour, the race men and other spectators gazed at the strange looking eight-cylinder power plant.

THE BIG LEAGUERS.

Among the drivers who gave the new machine the once over were Bob Burman, Billy Carlson, Harry Grant, Harry Babcock, Teddy Tetzlaff, Barney Oldfield, Eddie Rickenbacker, Louis Nikrent, Huntley Gordon, Hughey Hughes, Mel Stringer, Tom Alley, Ralph de Palmer and several others. Even Frank Lowry, the man who officiated as assistant starter at the great race under Fred J. Wagner, stopped to look at the new car. Lowry got out of his car and spent about a half hour studying every detail of the eight-cylinder motor.

Finally the Cadillac crowd was able to get away and the cars were driven over to Riverside, thence through San Bernardino and up to Thousand Pines. It was on the climb up the mountain side that the car showed to best advantage. On the hills near Corona the eight cylinders had their first chance in Southern California to smooth out the road and they did. The new motor pulls up hill without any noticeable effort and when the steep grade was reached the motor kept up the good work.

IT WAS EASY.

From San Bernardino to Thousand Pines is a hard run for any car, that is, any car has to do some pulling. From Los Angeles to the resort and back the cars did not boil once and no water was taken on. Many cars find it necessary to water up many times on the climb from San Bernardino.

Just forty-five minutes were consumed on the run to the mountain top from the Gate City. The first time that gears were shifted on the entire trip was two miles up the heavy grade from the Arrowhead turn-off. Even then the low was not used. The eight made it on the second.

Shifting gears is practically eliminated on the new "eight." In crowded traffic the car can be brought down to a slow crawl of about one mile an hour, stopped and started without touching a gear.

SIMPLE THING.

The machine is the simplest to operate ever put on the market with the possible exception of the electric. A child can handle the "eight" and drive with ease. A feature of the car is the easy steering quality.

Strange as it may seem, the engine does not pull as does the six or four-cylinder motor. Riding in the tonneau of the new "eight" is like riding in a steamer. The car moves ahead, picking up fast, but without any seeming pull from the motor. In the front seat there is a difference.

The engine is felt when at the wheel or riding with the driver, but there is little or no vibration.

GREAT WELCOME.

Greatest of all was the Cadillac reception held at the Don Lee establishment Friday night. There had been 1500 chairs placed in the large salesroom and all these were filled. The cars on the floor were occupied and there were many interested followers of the motor game crowded upon the stage, where the members of the Cadillac organization were seated.

It is estimated conservatively that there were 2000 persons in the salesroom. There were about twice as many turned away. There was an overflow reception in the service room in the rear, and police officers were called upon to direct the traffic around the place, there were so many machines parked around the block.

Getting Close.

PALO ALTO HIGH NEARS NORTHERN RUGBY TITLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PALO ALTO, Nov. 28.—Palo Alto High School Ruggers today won the right to meet Lowell High for the northern prep school championship by defeating Berkeley High by a 6-to-5 score.

The winners of the next match will meet Pomona High for the State title.

The contest was the most interesting, the headiest, and perhaps the fastest played on Stanford's turf this season.

The score does not indicate the relative merits of the teams, as all the Berkeley boys had was fifteen pounds of extra weight, which helped them to gain yards in a tight scrum.

BROWN, WAYNE WIN TOURNEY.

Lack of Team Work Defeats Bundy and Duncan.

Breeden and Frees Fussed by Gallery.

Bill Bacon Breaks Record at San Gabriel.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

Nat Browne and Claude Wayne, a tennis team that has enjoyed many triumphs, were the victors in the Los Angeles Country Club's annual invitation tennis tournament. They defeated Tom Bundy and A. V. Duncan, 6-3, 6-2, 6-8, 6-2, yesterday afternoon, with a gallery that would do credit to a Coast championship. And it does make victory sweet when one has an adequate and stylish gallery.

Some really first-class tennis was witnessed yesterday, and the quidnuncs were loud in their praise of Bundy, who was in his very best Napoleonic mood. But lack of team work between himself and Duncan proved their weak point, Browne and Wayne working so well together that they never lost an opportunity. All of them were playing largely for safety, however, caution rather than dash, and Browne's famous little semi-demi-chops went far toward settling the last set. He is a master of that dainty, piquant, curried little shot which he seems to make with the grace and confidence of a Pavlowa. Every set was contested every inch of the way and rallies followed every service, so dear to an audience.

PROMISING.

Breeden and Frees likewise played a first-class match with Bundy and Duncan in the semi-finals. Darkness intervened before they had finished on Thursday, when the "promising young men" had won a game from the star couple and were in brilliant vein. So it was decided to play it all over again yesterday, with the result that the veterans had all that advantage that goes with established assurance and a stage presence, while the newer men suffered from that hope deferred that makes the heart sick and springs a leak in one's self-confidence. Both are young and handsome fledglings from whom much is expected. They eliminated such old-timers as Sinsabaugh and Variel on Thursday. Frees is a fully-fledged M.D., and was very indignant when some one called him "Dr." in a recent story. Inverted commas can be so insulting.

In addition to the men's doubles there were two sets of mixed double round robins which are still in active operation. The winners of each set in the round robins will play each other in a straight match this afternoon, both receiving prizes. The other winning team, Browne and Wayne, get their names inscribed on the club championship cup, three of which distinctions entitle them to own it.

The club presented a very gay scene all day yesterday, with riotous colors in the women's sporting clothes which were all quite dangerously becoming. Society was in pronounced evidence both on the courts and on the grand stand. Miss Katherine Mellus was playing with Reed of the Midwick; indeed, Midwick seemed to have come over in a regiment for a proper tennis party. Mrs. Avery McCarthy and Dr. Kaarthoven, Mrs. Hutton and Turner, Helen Jones and Lovett, Mrs. Hickman and A. Howard, Mrs. Bruce and Wains, Dorothy Morphy and Hook, Gladys Morphy and Neberkér, Nellie McCall and Byers, Louise Burke and Walter Van Pelt, Mrs. Chandler and Sinsabaugh, comprised the first set, the latter being the selected favorites for the final winners, with an eye to Mrs. Chandler's handicap and Sinsabaugh's skill.

Miss McCornish and Turner, Mrs. Walter Leeds and Roger Topp, Mrs. A. L. Cheney and Sayre McNeil, Miss Marjory Tufts and Butler, Miss Joan McCall and Proctor, Miss Louise Hunt and Gay, Mrs. Harry Kearne and Charlie Sutton, Mrs. Widdowson and Martin Redmayne, Mrs. Jack Nivens and E. H. Seaver, and Mrs. Myrick and Charles Seyler were all in the second set.

Papa and Mamma Tufts duly supported Marjory, who looks just as radiant after her exciting war experiences as she did before. They have been back three weeks now but Marjory still has scores of thrilling stories to tell.

In the afternoon Mrs. Joseph Sartori had a large tea party with plenty of dancing to occupy restless feet, and the evening wound up with numerous dinner dances wherein Miss Juliet Boileau, Mrs. Jack Niven, Mrs. Holderman, W. W. Woods, Robert Sweeney, A. W. Black, Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, W. R. Millar and Miss Katherine Mellus all figured as delightful hosts and hostesses, and one large table was devoted to the distinguished Dutch-Treaters.

THE GOLF.

In the meantime Bill Bacon was busy breaking the record of the course out at San Gabriel. He has beaten the hitherto invincible record of 72 held by E. S. Armstrong and George Cline, with a brilliant and glorious 70. Two nice, neat, orderly 35's, with a dainty little row of unalloyed fours in the homeward nine, nicely balanced in the middle with a pretty 3.

Here's his card:

Out .... 3 5 3 4 4 5 3 3 5—35
Home ...... 4 4 4 4 3 4 4 4 4—35

Naturally with a score like that he won the class A prize with 4 up on par.

Dr. H. D. Requa won the sweepstake at the Los Angeles Country Club with 9, 8, 1 down, a score with which Norman Macbeth tied from scratch. C. A. Henderson and Carl Knappe came second with 2 down on 6 and 5 handicap, respectively, and H. B. Brown third with 3 down on 7 handicap.

On the Map Now.

EYES OF MOTOR WORLD TURNED THIS WAY NOW.

Two Great Races, with Another Coming Soon, Have Made Southern California the World's Greatest Motor Racing Center for the Season of 1914—Great Things Promised for Next Year.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is now recognized as the motor-racing center of the world. The Phoenix road race and the great Corona classic have attracted the attention of motor-racing fans throughout the country to this section and with the San Diego event scheduled to take place before the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize events are held in San Francisco, Southern California is due for a long inning in the motor-racing limelight.

Until this season the Los Angeles-to-Phoenix road race has been considered a second-rate affair. With the classy field attracted to the starting line for the Cactus Derby this year, the stock of the desert race went up 100 per cent. When Barney Oldfield finished in front and won the diamond medal and title of master driver of the world, the Phoenix race was at once a big league affair.

NOT APPRECIATED.

The men who, up to this year, had entered the Cactus Derby did not appreciate the severe course over which they drove. Never in the past had the course been described. The drivers entered, drove the race, said that it was a hard race and that was all.

No one knew the inside of the race, until this year. The Howdy Special followed the race so closely over the Santa Fe-Grand Canyon-Needles National Highway that the drivers were seen in the fight for place and their efforts were appreciated.

One great factor in making the Cactus Derby the great success that it was this year was the course. The Needles route is popular and the towns along the course were most enthusiastic over the race.

SOME PLACE.

Prescott was the one big town along the course. The city gates were thrown open to the racers and the race followers and there was nothing too good for the visitors. There was a celebration at Phoenix also which showed that the visitors were welcome guests.

The Phoenix road race has existed for seven years on nothing. The purse has been so small that there was really no object in a man's going into the race, except out of pure sportsmanship. It is doubtful if there will ever be another Cactus Derby, but there will be a strong sentiment in favor of the great race, nevertheless, and it is probable that enough money will be raised to make the purse really attractive.

FOR THE SPORT.

The Phoenix race has always taken on the color of a varsity football team. The men drove and risked their lives for the glory and the sport alone, just as the college men train and work all season just for a rag letter on a wool sweater. The sportsman has always been among the Phoenix race entrants and sportsmanship alone has kept the great race alive until this year, when it eclipsed all past revivals of the strenuous grind.

The Corona road race was an agreeable surprise to all followers of the motor racing sport in this section. It was predicted that a new record would be established, but it was not believed possible that every car finishing could beat Teddy Tetzlaff's time on the Santa Monica course two years ago nor that the first four cars in would beat the time of Rene Thomas's Delage at Indianapolis last May; but that was just what happened.

Eddie Pullen,

First place winner Corona road race with a Mercer.

Louis Nikrent,

Second in Phoenix road race with a Paige.

CORONA'S WONDER RACE.

Never in the history of automobile racing has there ever been such a race. From the start the drivers risked lives on the fast course like they were to be bought for pennies. Pullen and the daring Rickenbacher seemed to forget that there were pepper trees around the course and that cars sometimes turned over. All they knew seemingly was that the race was on and that there was a $6000 prize at the finish line for the winner.

The Corona course was proved to be the fastest in the West if not the fastest in the world. There was great improvement shown over the track driven last year. Where tires were torn to shreds in a lap or two last season, Oldfield made the entire run on one set of Firestones and one of these had been used on the Stutz roadster with which he trained for the Phoenix road race. This tire had traveled 700 miles on the desert roads.

SOME CLAIM.

It is claimed that an average of ninety miles an hour will be made at Corona next year. According to the drivers, tires will have been perfected, motors will be trained for more speed and the course will be worked down until it is even faster than it is now. Another thing, the majority of the drivers did not believe speed possible on the Corona course until Pullen tore out an average of close to 100 miles an hour and they followed.

SAN DIEGO NEXT.

The San Diego race coming as it does while all the driving stars are out here, will also be a great race, although not as fast as the Corona classic. The San Diego race is over one of the most spectacular courses in the world and while there will be great speed in spots, there are too many dangers to permit of a speed equal to that made on the Corona circle.

San Diego's race will be one of those spectacular affairs where speed and driving generalship will combine to win the prize money.

TIMERS CLAIM NO ERRORS MADE.

SCORERS AND STARTER HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CORONA AFFAIR.

The timers at Corona who have been blamed for the mistake of giving Barney Oldfield third place instead of second have risen to defend themselves. They say that it was the fault of the scorers. They gave the wrong lap to the starter.

L. Webster Wickes, hea timer, made the following statement yesterday: "We have been unjustly blamed for this mistake. I think it is going too far to call it anybody's mistake. We had to accept the waving of the starter's checkered flag as final. We saw the flag wave and we took the time of the flag. If the flag signalled the wrong lap, we had no choice but to take the time up to that point. We had nothing whatever to do with the scoring, or the lap numbers. Our part of the work was executed accurately and we were not responsible for any mistake.

Mr. Wickes stated that the time as finally determined and the position at the finish was as follows: First—Mercer, Pullen, 3:26:02; second—Maxwell, Oldfield, 3:29:58; third—Duesenberg, O'Donell, 3:31:12; fourth—Mercedes, De Palma, 3:31:51; fifth—Gordon Special, Gordon, 3:52:10; sixth—Maxwell, Carlson, 3:53:10; seventh—Mercer, Nikrent, 3:55:10.

DE PALMA DRIVES TOURING CAR, TOO.

USED MACHINE AS SERVICE CAR IN RACING CAMP WHILE IN TRAINING.

Ralph De Palma drives a Chandler Six when not on the track.

The Chandler was used as the supply and service car for the De Palma camp at Corona and in this capacity has been called upon to make many trips between Los Angeles and Corona. It has always been right on the job and not once has caused a moment's delay.

The feature which won De Palma to the Chandler is its quietness. The man is all steel on the race course. He does not know the meaning of the word "nerves." But off the course he demands an absolutely silent car, and for this reason more than any other he chose the Chandler Six.

De Palma is known as much for his mechanical skill with a motor car as for his driving, and a car which is not mechanically right has no standing with the champion. His indorsement of a motor car means it is mechanically right.

MOTOR BUSSES FOR SAN DIEGO.

The twelve Velie motor busses which will be used in San Diego at the exposition, will be ready for delivery by January 1, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Bentel-Mackey Company, in whose shops the busses are being built.

They will be put in service in San Diego immediately upon delivery, being used in carrying people from the railroad stations and hotels to the fair grounds. Each of the busses has a capacity of twenty-five passengers in addition to the driver.

PLUGHOFF VISITS THIS CITY AGAIN.

A. D. Plughoff, general manager for the J. W. Leavett, spent last week in Los Angeles after a visit to the Overland factory. Plughoff says that the whole East is looking in the direction of California and talking the expositions.

The local agency, according to Plughoff, is due for the biggest business it has ever seen when the Overland owners begin touring across to the expositions.

There is not a particle of opium or other narcotic in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and never has been since it was first offered to the public.—[Advertisement.

AUTO STAGE LINE PUTS TIRES TO SEVERE TEST.

EVERY day new examples of the general uses to which United States "Nobby Tread" and "Chain Tread" tires are being put is received at the offices of the company. Sometimes it is a city taxicab company, which has found that these tires not only give the greatest wear, but in addition, give the greatest margin of security for winter travel over the wet and greasy pavements of the city.

Other instances tell of how stage lines and bus lines operating between centers, where railroads have not yet penetrated in the sparsely settled regions, where roads are necessarily rough and steep, have adopted either the "Nobby Tread" or "Chain Tread" tire and found them best fitted for this work.

The Issaquah-Seattle Auto Stage Line has completely equipped its Winton stage coaches with "Nobby Tread" tires—single nobbies in front and double tires in the rear. It is another instance in which an interurban traction company has found that the "Nobby Treads" give satisfaction in every respect.

Floor Position.

AUTOMOBILE SHOWS WILL PROVE AMERICAN ABILITY.

THE National Motor Vehicle Company has been awarded a position of honor on the ground floor at the coming automobile show in New York next January. Ground floor positions are greatly desired, and are allotted according to the volume of factories.

While the National company builds quality cars and makes no claims as to quantity, yet the demand for these machines has so steadily increased that the National has won its place of distinction on the ground floor.

This year the New York show will be exceptionally interesting, not only because of the tremendous strides made in the industry and shown in the 1915 cars, but also because this marks the year when American manufacturers steal a march on the European builders. It will be a good opportunity to conclusively prove to the American public that we American builders are entirely capable of producing stylish, comfortable and serviceable cars without leaning on foreign examples.

Important Factor.

MODERN MOTOR CAR NOW AS NECESSARY AS PHONE.

STYLE, power, comfort and economy are the essentials of motoring satisfaction. Every automobile must measure up 100 per cent. to each of these requirements to meet public favor.

Automobile users have been quick to realize that "appearance" is a big asset, for the occupant of a motor car rides before the public eye; hence beauty of appearance and graceful design are of prime importance.

Plenty of reliable motor power is required to traverse any sort of road under all conditions and designers of motor car power plants certainly deserve a prominent place in the Hall of Fame for breeding the crude forefather of the gas engine into the highly efficient, silent, capable, easily controlled automobile engine of today.

The motorist desires to ride many miles without fatigue, making necessary the most advanced types of body design, luxurious upholstery, resilient easy springs, roomy seats, plenty of leg room and luggage space.

Touring radius is important. The car that rolls up more mileage for less gasoline, oil and tire expense will suit the pocketbooks of more people because automobile travel is getting more and more to be figured on a transportation basis.

The modern motor car is no longer a luxury. It has taken its place with the electric light, telephone and trolley car as a public necessity.

CAR IN UNIQUE SERVICE.

With its many new features the 1915 Maxwell touring car has won its way not only because of its beauty and mechanical perfection, but because of the many uses to which it can be put. Several farmers, owners of Maxwell touring cars, have converted their cars into temporary stationary engines and have cut their ensilage, sawed wood, even pumped water for their stock by this means.

BACK FROM THE WAR ZONE.

Returning from his duties as special representative in Russia and the Balkans of the Maxwell Motor Company, A. Foerster reached Maxwell headquarters in Detroit last week. Foerster, who is a naturalized American citizen, formerly was lieutenant in the army of Austria. His family since a century ago has become prominent as Imperial Court architects. Foerster's permanent headuarters in Russia were in Odessa.

New Road.

DIXIE ROUTE LATEST PLAN.

Proposed Highway is Now Being Mapped Out.

Road Should be Popular for Auto Travel.

Highway Name not Decided upon as Yet.

Latest among the good roads projects under consideration is a new route from Chicago to Jacksonville. The movement for this North-to-South highway was launched by W. S. Gilbreath, secretary of the Hoosier Motor Club, at the recent good roads congress held in Atlanta, and the proposal was so enthusiastically received and indorsed by the State officials of Georgia, that no time was lost in doing the preliminary work in connection with the project.

To route the highway is the task assigned to H. M. McDermid, district manager of the Empire Automobile Company. Driving a new 1915 Empire touring car, the route-blazing party left for the South on November 25. The route taken is through Indianapolis, Louisville, Chattanooga, Macon, Atlanta to Jacksonville.

There has been such an increase in traffic between the Middle Western States and Florida in the past few years that such a highway should be well traveled. The route selected is by far the most favorable for the proposed road, and the marking of the highway would make touring much more pleasurable.

The name of the new road is still undecided. "The Cotton Belt Route" and the "Dixie Way" have been suggested, but the final decision will be left to the Governors of the States through which the highway leads.

REDLANDS TO DO ROAD BUILDING.

NARROW BOULEVARD TO BE CUT WIDER FOR BENEFIT OF MOTOR TRAFFIC.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 28.—G. S. Hinckley, City Engineer, has announced that the work of widening and improving Sylvan boulevard from Church street to the eastern city limits has practically been finished. This work opens up another beautiful drive for the motorists of Southern California, as it follows the winding zanja, the mountain irrigation stream, for several miles.

The boulevard has been so narrow and the turns so sharp that it was considered dangerous for automobile traffic. It has been widened to a uniform width of twenty feet and the road placed in the best condition by harrowing, rolling and oiling. The work that has been completed to the city limits is only part of that planned to be done.

The boulevard will be widened east of the city limits by the county and will connect with the Mill Creek road from this city, which is to be paved as far as the mouth of Mill Creek Canyon under the good roads bond issue. Sylvan boulevard drive is considered one of the most beautiful drives in this section, and will make a direct route through Redlands, by way of Colton avenue, from the western entrance of the city to the mountains.

The Highway Commission has announced that the Mill Creek road will be one of the first paved and it is hoped to get this work completed in time for the mountain travel next summer.

Wonderful!

THE most exclusively beautiful enclosed cars ever shown will be exhibited in all important cities of the United States during the week of November 30th to December 5th inclusive.

Los Angeles will do its share by having a complete line of those wonderfully attractive cars, including the Limousine—the Landaus—the Coupes—and the Convertible Roadsters on exhibition at our show rooms, 1128 South Olive Street, all this week.

SAVES THE COIN.

Prompt service on the part of the service department of Hawley, King & Co. was instrumental in saving a deal involving $100,000 for Thomas L. Gilmer of Bakersfield. Gilmer bought one of the new National cars and without any preliminaries invited a party of friends to accompany him on a sight-seeing expedition. A mishap befell them in which the car was damaged, but not so it could not get to the garage under its own power. The superintendent of the service department said it would be impossible to get the car out before 10 o'clock the next morning, as it was almost quitting time. Gilmer had to get to Bakersfield that night, as he had a $100,000 cattle deal coming up the next day. Needless to say, the car was got out in time and word from the north was to the effect that the National saved the deal.

SOME RECORD MADE.

Detroit staged an economy test in which an Oakland "37" touring car made 28.7 miles on one gallon of gasoline. The route traversed included six miles through city traffic, three miles of country gravel road and the remainder over macadam. The gasoline tested .29. The car was inspected and sealed officially and Marc Brown of Motor Age rode as the judge and observer.

WHY LOS ANGELES HAS SO MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS.

Traffic Lieutenant Butler Gives His Views as to the Prevention of Our Appalling Fatalities—Some Rules Concerning Which Chauffeurs Should Be More Careful—Right of Way at Crossings.

Written for "The Times" by Lieut. Butler.

IT IS a regrettable fact, one which every careful motorist deplores, that this city stands at the head of the list in the percentage of fatalities resulting from the operation of motor vehicles. Of ten of the largest cities in the United States, in deaths resulting from this class of accidents this city leads Washington, D. C., the next highest, by more than two to one.

I do not mention this fact by way of criticism, but merely for the information of motorists, in order that they may give the matter of accidents more consideration and co-operate in an effort to erase the stigma which has been cast on the motor drivers by reason of such facts.

There are many factors which indirectly contribute to this condition which do not have to be reckoned with in other cities. The climate here permits the use of the motor vehicle almost every day in the year; the wealthy tourist comes here with his car or purchases or hires one as soon as he arrives and spends most of his time on the road until he is ready to leave. Other tourists who do not possess a car take advantage of the good weather and spend most of their time on the streets, in sight-seeing, etc. Residents of the city who have nothing to do but enjoy life, spend their time on the streets in motor car or on foot, as their business or fancy may dictate. This added to the normal traffic incident to a busy city of one-half million population serves to bring into daily contact more people and vehicles than in any city of its size in America.

The hundreds of miles of paved streets connecting with other hundreds of miles of boulevards of the county and State highway systems combine to make Southern California the favored country of the world for motoring. This fact is emphasized by the number of machines in use in the southern portion of the State. Of the first 100,000 automobiles registered in 191′ in California, 33,000 were registered to residents of Los Angeles county, 21,000 being registered to residents of this city. Of 19,000 motorcycles registered, 5941 belong to residents of Los Angeles county, 3700 belonging in the city. These figures show that one in every five automobiles registered in the State belongs in Los Angeles and that one in three is registered to residents of this county. In other words, one-third of all the autos in the State belong to residents of Los Angeles county. With this number of machines in constant use in the city it is not strange that accidents are of frequent occurrence. So much for the conditions which are indirectly the cause of traffic accidents.

NOT RECKLESSNESS.

I do not believe that, as a class, the drivers of this city are more reckless than are those of other cities. From my personal observation and investigation of scores of cases of accidents and charges of careless or reckless driving, I am convinced that the major portion of the accidents occurring in the business district is due to a failure to observe the laws regulating traffic, either through a lack of knowledge of such laws or through indifference as to the result of such violations.

Another prolific source of accidents is inexperience in handling a car. A driver should be thoroughly familiar with the movements necessary for the proper control of his car, and be able to make the changes quickly, involuntarily and with precision, and should thoroughly understand the effect each of these movements will have upon his machine. It is this lack of knowledge that often causes drivers to "kill" their motors on railroad crossings in the face of danger, frequently with fatal results to the occupants of the machine.

This condition is being daily augmented by dealers delivering cars to inexperienced drivers. I believe dealers are often responsible, morally, for accidents, and even loss of life, on account of this negligence on their part. It is this indifference of dealers in turning the ignorant driver loose to menace the public that will ultimately result in requiring every operator to undergo an examination as to physical fitness and ability to operate motor vehicles before he will be permitted to drive.

I desire to impress on the motorist the importance of a thorough knowledge of the laws and ordinances regulating the operation of vehicles,' and also that of thorough familiarity with his car.

With this object in view I shall take up what I consider the more important rules as contained in the ordinance and endeavor to make plain the necessity for these rules, and why it is so important that such rules be strictly obeyed. The rapid increase in the number of motor vehicles will, as a natural consequence, further congest traffic, and in order to meet the new conditions it will be necessary to more rigidly enforce ordinances now in effect, and pass new ones to govern contingencies which are certain to arise in the future.

DRIVE CAREFULLY.

Section 5 of the traffic ordinance says that "the driver of every vehicle and the operator of every street or interurban car shall drive such vehicle or operate such street or interurban railway car in a careful manner and with due regard for the safety and convenience of pedestrians and all vehicles and cars upon the streets upon which such vehicle or car is driven or operated."

If every driver of a vehicle lived up to this admonition a large percentage of accidents would be avoided. When driving on a public street it must always be borne in mind that the highway is public and that all drivers are equally entitled to the use of same, and are on an equal footing and subject to the same regulations. It naturally follows that where large numbers of vehicles meet and cross each other's paths, great care must be exercised in order to avoid accidents, and the one safe rule is to at all times have your machine under control so that you can stop without colliding, should another vehicle suddenly appear in your path.

BLIND CORNERS.

When approaching a blind corner have your machine under such control that you could stop without colliding, should a machine shoot out from a side street.

If following another machine allow a safe distance between the machines, so that in case the forward machine is forced to make a sudden stop you will have room to stop without colliding.

When traveling between streets on a street lined with vehicles standing at the curb have your machine under control so as to stop before striking a person, should they unexpectedly step into your path.

On streets where you are permitted to pass street cars taking on and discharging passengers, drive carefully; the fact that the law permits you to pass the car does not remove the restraint of driving with due regard for the safety and convenience of others.

RIGHT OF WAY.

Remember that the new ordinance gives the right of way to the vehicles approaching from the right, so it is up to you, no matter in what direction you may be traveling, to prevent colliding with a vehicle approaching you from the right. This rule supersedes the old rule of north-and-south right of way, thus dividing the responsibility between the drivers approaching a crossing instead of placing it all on the driver on the streets running east and west.

In addition to the foregoing I wish to call attention to other rules which are very important in the matter of accident prevention.

Before backing in the street for any cause see that there is no obstruction in the rear of your machine before backing and give warning signals while backing.

When turning from one street into another, especially when there are pedestrians in the street, sound your signal and put your car under control; there may be a deaf person crossing who cannot hear your signal, or an afflicted one who cannot get out of your way. Do not depend on the signal to clear your path. When turning into side streets or when making turns in a street or at a crossing, be sure to give a signal which the driver following will be able to see and understand.

It is the driver who makes a short turn to the left without signaling that is responsible for a large percentage of the serious accidents. The driver turning should be sure he has ample room to make the turn in safety before attempting it.

TEN FEET—STOP!

Section 22 requires vehicles to stop ten feet in the rear of street cars which have stopped to take on or discharge passengers and to remain standing until such passengers have safely alighted or boarded such car, or until such car shall have started. This rule applies to the entire city, except that in the business district between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., vehicles may pass cars loading or unloading passengers, but must leave a space of at least four feet between the vehicle and lower step of the car.

One of the greatest menaces to the general public is the drunken driver, and I consider it the duty of every good citizen to assist in apprehending and prosecuting this class of offenders, to whom no leniency should be shown.

The cut-out is a superfluous adjunct to an auto, the use of which is prohibited in the city. A jail sentence should be the punishment of the driver who uses it at night.

Opposite the point where street cars stop to pick up and discharge passengers in the business district, signs have been placed warning drivers not to allow vehicles to stand along the curb between such signs and the next corner, except while actually loading and unloading. This leaves the space between the street car and the curb open, permitting moving vehicles to travel near the curb and allowing free access to and from the cars with a minimum of danger. All drivers should leave all the space possible between their vehicles and street cars, especially while the latter are taking on or discharging passengers.

SPEED.

The question of speed is one that has never been satisfactorily settled. Some drivers believe that twenty miles per hour is as fast as a machine car be driven with safety, on city streets, others insist that the maximum should be twenty-five miles. Some say thirty is perfectly safe, while still others insist that all restrictions should be removed, except that the driver should drive in a careful and prudent manner and at a rate of speed that is not greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard for the traffic, and at such rate of speed as not to endanger life or property.

I do not favor the last-named regulation, or rather lack of regulation, for it places the regulation of speed within the discretion of the driver, and while such procedure might be proper so far as the majority of motorists are concerned, the reckless driver would take advantage of the provision of the law and until he had an accident would go unmolested, and in case of accident it would be up to the authorities to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he was driving recklessly; which is often a very difficult matter to do.

Again a large percentage of the reckless drivers are irresponsible, as many motorists can testify who have obtained judgment for damages sustained as a result of recklessness on the part of one of said irresponsibles, only to find that he has nothing upon which to levy, and the injured party must charge his loss to experience and let it go at that.

STREET CONDITIONS.

I am of the opinion that a great many accidents are caused by the fact that drivers fail to take into consideration the condition of the street upon which they are traveling, and that the average driver is lacking in judgment of distance, speed, etc.

Investigations and statistics compiled show that deaths from traffic accidents have increased at an alarming rate since the advent of the motor vehicle, and that as the use of this class of vehicles becomes more general, the rate of deaths increase. Several factors serve to bring about this result. The motor vehicle and its widespread use has been so suddenly thrust upon us that the average pedestrian has not become sufficiently expert in judging speed, distance and road conditions to avoid placing himself, often times, in perilous positions.

A large percentage of drivers are almost as careless and ignorant of the possibilities and consequences of the motor vehicle as is the pedestrian.

STOPPING QUICKLY.

A test made in New York with a fifty-horse-power machine, with brakes properly adjusted, resulted as follows:

At eight miles per hour [illegible] stopped in six feet.

At fifteen miles per hour [illegible] stopped in fifteen feet.

At twenty miles per [illegible] stopped in twenty-three feet.

At thirty miles per [illegible] stopped in fifty-three feet.

At thirty-five miles per hour [illegible] was stopped in eighty-seven feet.

At forty miles per hour [illegible] stopped in 103 feet.

This table shows that [illegible] the speed 50 per cent. above [illegible] miles per hour increases the distance in which the vehicle [illegible] stopped by 130 per cent., and [illegible] bling the speed it requires [illegible] of 390 per cent. of the [illegible] which to stop, or 4.46 times the [illegible] required to stop at a speed of [illegible]ty miles per hour. These are [illegible] the things the general public [illegible] not realize and this lack of [illegible] no doubt goes a long way [illegible] creasing accidents.

Quoting from Consul-General [illegible] Griffith's report on traffic [illegible] in London:

In 1905 there were 173 killed [illegible]

In 1911 there were 410 killed [illegible] increase of 138 per cent. [illegible] a nincrease certainly out of [illegible] portion to the increase of [illegible] and this in London where [illegible] controlled by an army of the [illegible] trained traffic men in the world.

In New York in 1912 there [illegible] more than 200 deaths from [illegible] accidents, and in June of 1913 [illegible] persons lost their lives in [illegible] bile accidents in Chicago.

Another menace to the [illegible] public is the unnecessary use of [illegible] glaring headlight now in [illegible] great many of the larger cities.

The use of these lights on the streets is a serious matter and [illegible] used on the boulevards where the roadway is narrow it becomes [illegible] tive menace to drivers [illegible] the opposite direction.

Several eastern cities have [illegible] stringent laws regulating the [illegible] of lights, and no doubt this city [illegible] soon take steps to protect [illegible] using the streets against the [illegible] attendant on their use.

In the meantime the [illegible] driver, the one who really [illegible] assist in the elimination of [illegible] will voluntarily seek a means of [illegible] coming this objection so far as [illegible] car is concerned and will [illegible] the passage and enforcement of [illegible] lations against the road hog [illegible] sists in their use, remains in the [illegible] dle of the road, forcing [illegible] to take the ditch, often with [illegible] results.

The Salt Lake has representatives at the different factories and shipping points who wire the forwarding of a shipment to the local office, which in turn is given to the dealer.

These cars are handled in through trains under wire manifests and a system has been established which enables the company to furnish daily reports of any car in the train. For the benefit of the consignees, certain towns, or passing points, have been named which are so many days from point of destination, and a daily report is given showing the date, and time a car passes these points, so that one is able to figure just when a shipment will arrive.

By a dealer who has an anxious customer this report is appreciated, as it enables him to show his buyer where his car is and when he can make delivery. Almost the same report is furnished on the small or less than carload shipments, they being handled in what is known as "through package cars."

BARNEY USED ONE OLD TIRE.

COULD NOT GET EQUIPMENT AT TIRE BRANCH.

Decided to Enter at Last Minute and had to Use Own Tire to Fill Out for Race and Made Great Non-stop Run with Shoe Used on Run to Phoenix.

When Barney Oldfield established the new world's non-stop record at Corona Thursday he also set a mark for tire efficiency that perhaps never has been equalled.

Oldfield's car was equipped with Firestone tires, but one of the four that established the perfect score had seen 700 miles of service on the desert and mountain roads in preparation for the Los Angeles-Phoenix race.

Barney decided to enter the Corona event almost at the last minute, and previously had given the subject of tires no thought. He telephoned the manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and asked for equipment for his Maxwell racer. He asked for 35x5 inch tires, the size he was accustomed to use, and was surprised to learn he could not be supplied.

He asked for the next size, 34x4½, and was told there were only eight tires of that size that could be obtained. Then it was he made up his mind to look over his stock at home, and decided the used tire as one of the four he would start with. At the finish it looked no worse for wear than the others.

The four cars in the race that were equipped with Firestone tires covered 285 laps, with only three changes.

Snow and Blizzards Put Machine to Hard Test on Trip from Detroit to Los Angeles on an Average of Nineteen Miles to the Gallon of Gasoline, at Small Cost.

A terrific six-hour snowstorm in Utah, a twelve-mile run in a river bed through Nevada, and fifty miles of motoring over the ties of a railroad in Wyoming, constitute some of the unique features of a transcontinental trip just completed.

W. M. Mack, accompanied by his three children, left Detroit in his Hupmobile and started for the Coast some thirty days ago, and reached Los Angeles with a total mileage of 2923 miles on an average of nineteen miles to the gallon of fuel.

"One puncture was all we had in the long ride," boasted Mack in telling of the trip. "In the Rocky Mountains we encountered blizzards. It was impossible to put up the roof and we were packed in the car like in a refrigerator."

In Nevada they experienced unusually rainy spells and in one place the entire roadway had been washed away, making it necessary to do twelve miles of motoring in a river bed.

The car took the route somewhat north of Denver and came through Omaha, Salt Lake, Ely and into the Owens Valley. The total time on the road consumed twenty-four days and the transportation for the four passengers from Detroit to Los Angeles cost $37.

While snow and rainstorms caused the party a great deal of discomfiture another trying ordeal was the covering of more than fifty miles in Wyoming over railroad ties. It was the only possible road—and a rough, bumpy road at best.

Mack has been the owner of several cars, changing every year. "But after the wonderful accomplishment on this trying test," concluded Mr. Mack, "it's a case of nothing but a Hup for for me in the future."

Billiard Champions.

BALKLINE AND ENGLISH EXPERTS TO PLAY HERE.

FINAL contracts between William Hoppe and Melbourne Inman, respective world champions of balkline billiards and English billiards, and the Los Angeles Athletic Club, assure the appearance of the two experts at the rooms of the club on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, December 14 and 15, where they will contest with each other two games, one at each style.

Manager George L. Towle is arranging tiers of seats throughout the gymnasium, each of the 700 chairs affording a clear and unobstructed view of the table.

Manager A. E. Mackenzie of the Majestic Billiard Academy is furnishing his English table, the only one in this part of the country, for the first night of play, and Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company supply a regulation American table for the balkline game of Tuesday night.

All of the equipment conforms to the highest regulation requirements, and in the hands of the greatest living exponents of the games, will give the public an unequalled opportunity of comparing their respective merits.

George Slosson, who played against the Japanese champion, Koji Yamada, in the same rooms two years ago, adds interest to this occasion by challenging Hoppe to a match for the 18.2 championship. Though the latter match is to be played in New York, the comparative styles of the two men are subjects of much interested chat on the part of Angelenos. Slosson won a majority of off-hand games from Casignol, the French champion, who is said to be Hoppe's most promising rival, during the foreigner's recent visit to this country.

SAN DIEGO ROUTE WILL BE POPULAR VERY SOON.

WITH the opening of the San Diego Exposition, hundreds of touring parties will motor to San Diego from this city to visit the exposition. Both routes are in good condition at the present time and before the first of the year, the various counties will do a lot of repair work on the roads.

Last week, J. F. Andrews of Pasadena motored down to San Diego in his 1915 light six Haynes with a party of friends. The inland route was followed as stops were scheduled at Riverside, Corona and Elsinore. The State Highway between Los Angeles and Riverside is completed with the exception of the last two miles entering Riverside, where a detour around the construction work on Rubidoux Hill is necessary for a distance of about two and a half miles.

Mr. Andrews stated that the three bridges on the State Highway east of Ontario are in very poor shape and that the motorist should go slow over them. The surfaces are filled with chuck holes and ruts and to a car traveling at a fair rate of speed, the bridges are dangerous.

The Haynes was piloted on to Elsinore by way of Allesandro and the Box Springs grade. The road is in splendid shape between Riverside and Allesandro, as it is macadam, but from the latter point on to Elsinore, the road is of dirt.

From Rainbow on into San Diego the road is in good condition.

INCREASED TAX ON LATE LONG-STROKE MOTORS.

A LITTLE Christmas present for California motorists in the shape of an increased State auto license fee for every machine using the modern long-stroke motor was announced this week by W. R. Ormsby, superintendent of the State motor vehicle department.

Just what the increase will be on each make of car will not be known until December 1, when the local branch of the State motor vehicle department begins to receive applications for next year's license numbers. It was admitted yesterday, however, by Corning DeSaules of the local office that the new formula that will be used for determining the horse power will probably mean an increased tax on all but those on which the piston stroke is the same as the bore of the cylinders.

The method used last year for determining horse power was the A.L.A.M. formula, which takes into consideration only the bore and number of the cylinders. It is understood that the formula contemplated this year is based on the cubic inches of piston displacement of the various motors.

The proposed change has naturally aroused bitter resentment among local motorists, who were quick to point out that the Johnson appointees reserved their announcement of the tax increase until after election.

Down auto row feeling is particularly keen, and it is probable that the change will be bitterly fought by the local dealers' association.

Earle C. Anthony, Packard distributor for Southern California, interviewed at the train yesterday afternoon as he was leaving the city, was strong in denunciation of the new change.

"Advices from Sacramento are to the effect that the change will probably mean an increased burden upon the motorists of the State of not less than $150,000," said Anthony. "It would seem that the State motor vehicle department, instead of making any effort to cut down the expense of $230,000 which it cost to run their department last year, have adopted the simple expedient of making the motorists pay more.

"The tax is simply a penalty on up-to-dateness, that's all. Practically every motor made today is of the long-stroke type. That one man in Sacramento should have the authority to lay an added burden of $150,000 on part of a certain class of taxpayers is an outrage.

"Anyone who knows anything at all about gasoline engines knows that any attempt to get their horse power by any formula is at best an approximation. The Peugeot which took second place at Indianapolis last May had less piston displacement than a Ford, yet undoubtedly was capable of developing more than seventy-five horse power. There is no justice in the proposed change that I can see—it is merely a scheme to stick a part of the motor-owning public, already doubly taxed, a little harder."

AMATEUR CUEISTS IN HOME STRETCH.

Amateur billiardists of the Los Angeles Athletic Club are in the last half of an interesting three-cushion handicap tournament, in which Johnston, receiving five points from the scratch man, has completed his schedule with a score of thirteen wins to three losses, and will be found difficult to head. Gordon, Wiley and Merrill have also made good scores, with promising chances for the prize list.

A silver cup goes to the tourney winner as first prize; a fountain pen to the second, and a special cue to the third.

With fifty games, out of 136, yet to be played, the score stands as follows:

Johnston (25,) won 13, lost 3; Gordon (30,) won 8, lost 1; Merrill (30,) won 8, lost 2; Wiley (25,) won 8, lost 5; Treen (25,) won 7, lost 4; Moore (25,) won 7, lost 4; Callender (25,) won 5, lost 4; Percival (22,) won 5, lost 5; Easton (20,) won 5, lost 7; Hollbrook (25,) won 4, lost 12; Hopkins (20,) won 3, lost 3; Burnham (25,) won 3, lost 5; Burns (20,) won 3, lost 11; Gysin (25,) won 2, lost 4; Williams (20,) won 2, lost 4; Banks (25,) won 2, lost 13; Carter (25,) won 1, lost 2.

CAR TAKES HEAVY LOAD UP HILL.

TWO PASSENGERS AND THREE HUNDRED-POUND BAGGAGE TO BEAR VALLEY.

While mountain driving is one of the most exhilarating pastimes of the motorist, it takes a sturdy car, and of all mountain drives which test the metal of a motor, the Bear Valley trip is without doubt the hardest in Southern California. From East Highlands, where the ascent of the mountains begins, the grades are terrific, and only a car with an abundance of power and a perfect cooling system is able to make the climb.

From East Highlands to the summit the distance is about twenty-five miles. East Highlands is at an altitude of 1350 feet, while the altitude of the summit is 7950, making a total climb of 6600 feet in twenty-five miles.

It remained for a Paige of the 1912 vintage to perform the remarkable feat of carrying not only two passengers but 300 pounds of baggage, extra gasoline and water, and a camping outfit over the grades. The owner of the car, H. E. Kunkel, purchased it two years ago second hand.

BEACHEY ATTACKS WARSHIP AT ASCOT

Lincoln Beachey is out to set a record at Ascot Park today, both in point of attendance and in new skyland thrillers. The master birdman, who will perform at the local track to help swell the Children's Hospital fund, has announced that at the benefit performance he will record loop-the-loop No. 1040, a mark which has never been reached by Pegoud or the other foreign air pilots who essay the death-defying aerial somersault.

According to eastern reports, the battleship scene is wonderfully realistic. Trained sailors act as the crew and every little detail in construction of the ship to make it look like a real man-o'-warsman is carried out. Real bombs are exchanged by the aviator and those below him, and enough fireworks are used to portray vividly what is going on in Europe during the present great war.

Have You Ridden in the New Eight Cylinder Cadillac?

If you have, you can understand the helplessness of an advertising writer who undertakes to tell of this new masterpiece of the Cadillac company.

To say it marks a new epoch in the motor industry is a mild expression of a great truth.

The writer of this advertisement just returned from his first long ride in the new Cadillac. He has seen it flatten out the hills. He has seen it thread its way through crowded traffic at a snail pace, but always on the high gear. He has seen it roll along at sixty miles an hour with no more apparent effort and with as little noise as a canoe floating down stream.

Words and words and more words could be written about the flexibility, the wonderful sensation of floating on and on, carried by some unseen and unfelt power; the richness and refinements of finish that eclipse anything ever offered anywhere at any price.

But all that is accomplished by the sentence:

See the Car and Ride In It

Then in your own mind you will feel all the thoughts that could be put on paper.

Trying to write an advertisement to do full justice to this motor creation is too mighty a task for the brain of one man.

FIVE POMONA RUGGERS ON ALL-SOUTHERN TEAM.

SIX high schools are represented on the all-southern interscholastic Rugby fifteen. They are Pomona, Manual Arts, Los Angeles, Poly, Hollywood and Riverside.

Pomona, the State champion, grabs the lion's share of five men. Manual, its closest rival, and Los Angeles High have three men each. Poly places two, while Hollywood and Riverside give one man apiece. All of the city league teams are represented and two from the Citrus Belt.

Necessity has forced shifts both in the forwards and among the backs.

FRONT RANK.

The front-rankers are Henry of Los Angeles, Nesbit of Pomona and Slobahm of Manual. Each of these men has a hammerlock hold on his position. Slobahm of Manual is a fighter from the word go. In every Toiler game his shocky head was in the midst of the furore, while he pulled and kicked the ball toward the opponents' goal.

"Babe" Henry of the Cliffdwellers was invaluable to L. A. He is an especially strong defensive player and shines on the line-outs. Like Slobahm, he is in the midst of the play, always.

Nesbit is the clever hooker who heeled the ball into the Pomona pack. He started the Cardinals on their scoring. Besides, he is a dribbler of note.

FFICIALS CHECK TONS ON COUNTY BOULEVARDS.

tomobile Club of Southern California to Give Out port on How Much Tonnage Highways Carry and umber of Automobiles Passing Given Point on Each ell-traveled Road.

AT 2200 tons of automobiles ssed over the Harbor boulevard n fourteen hours of the day, is n in a census report submitted erday to the directors of the Au- bile Club of Southern California F. H. Joyner, chairman of the Los les County Highway Commission. o learn how much tonnage the ty highways carry, and the num- of automobiles passing a given t on each road, checkers have placed on all county highways d an exact census is under way. which is expected to reveal as- hing figures is being gathered by Highway Commission and will be died in a comprehensive report to filed by the Auto Club and later is- broadcast throughout the United checkers, stationed at given have worked in eight-hour day and night, and the com- report for three main county ways considered yesterday by Club officials shows that Los county is probably the most motoring center in the world. statement was made by Secre- Mitchell of the Auto Club, and s only a comparison with any other territory of the same area as this county.

On the Whittier boulevard it was found that from 4 p.m. until 8, an average of two automobiles per minute pass a given point every day. It was learned that the heaviest traffic conditions prevail on this highway between 5 and 6 in the afternoon.

On the Harbor boulevard, between the hours of 3 and 4 p.m., and average of 203 tons of traffic pass each day. This is only in motor-driven vehicles. In comparison, 142 tons passed at the same time on the Long Beach boulevard.

The lightest travel as per weight on the harbor route, is between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning, and from that time on it steadily increases until the maximum is reached in the afternoon. Just how much more freight in motor-driven vehicles pours over Los Angeles county roads than over those of other localities in America will not be known until the final figures are in Mr. Joyner's hands at the conclusion of the census.

It is believed by Auto Club officials, however, that the local highways sustain more traffic of this sort than any others of similar length. That this experiment in tonnage and traffic census is new in America, and that a French system has been followed, was stated yesterday by Joyner.

"We are using an arbitrary scale of weights, and each checker is supplied with the table, recording accurately the tonnage of each vehicle as it passes," he said. "In this way we are securing what we believe to be a fair estimate of the comparative strain on each highway which will be used in a plan for road maintenance."

Air Munchausen.

PEED, NOT HEIGHT, SAVES AVIATORS FROM BULLETS.

NE of the newspaper correspond- ents in France had a talk with a military aviator about the perils is job, and he quotes the bird man speaking with airy contempt of efforts of riflemen to pot him on wing. The flying man averred at an elevation of 4000 feet, balls had little force of impact that he could almost catch them his hand, which is a lofty flight of imagination or some tall lying.

It seems to be a fact that efforts of men to hit airmen or their ma- es have been generally futile, al- gh some aeroplanes have been ght down by shrapnel or other projectiles. But the failure of en to score hits on the filers is to the small size of the target, difficulty of estimating the range the trajectory of the bullet, the movement of the target, wind ection and other factors familiar marksmen; not to any loss of ve- ity of the bullet at any elevation inable by aeroplanes.

GRAVITATION.

To one who has not calculated the ical range of rifle balls, the ex- height attained by a projectile is amazing as to be almost in- ible. Yet the calculation in- in application of the laws of ation to the problem is very e. The retardation of a body upward is the same as the ac- ion of a falling body. The of the earth's attraction, which called gravitation, pulls a falling sixteen feet the first second, y-eight feet the next second, eighty the third second, and so on. The of fall, or velocity, is ascer- d by multiplying the number of ds by thirty-two, which gives rate in feet per second.

COMING DOWN.

A bullet fired vertically will go up the pull of gravitation stops it, then it will fall practically at same speed at which it went up, ing at the end of the fall the velocity at which it started. Incidentally, a bullet fired in the is just as dangerous when it comes to earth as it was when it left muzzle of the gun. That is why lo Bill fires fine bird shot in- of bullets from his rifle when breaks glass balls while riding the circus ring—or rather one reasons, the other being that uld not hit the balls with bul-

A bullet starts from the muzzle the modern military rifle with a of more than 2500 feet a second. is called its initial velocity. Some have initial velocity as high as feet a second, but for illustra- of the absurdity of the French n's fairy tale about catching bullets with his hands—a feat, way, that Baron Munchausen performed with cannon balls fired at him in battle, only the Baron completed the job by throwing the balls back and killing the gunners—a velocity of 2500 feet may be assumed That is the velocity that would be attained by a falling body in seventy-eight seconds; the distance it would fall in that time would be 97,344 feet. A bullet thrown up with an initial velocity of 2500 feet would be retarded or pulled back 97,344 feet in seventy-eight seconds. If not pulled back by gravitation, the bullet would travel 195,000 feet in seventy-eight seconds. Subtracting the retardation from that figure gives us 97,656 feet as the vertical distance traveled by the bullet before it stops and then begins to fall.

18.5 MILES HIGH.

The same result is reached by another route. Without going into all the calculations upon which the law is based, or using algebraic forms, it may be stated the law of gravitation in this case is that the height attained by a body thrown straight upward is ascertained by dividing the square of the initial velocity by sixty-four. The square of 2500 is 6,250,000; divided by sixty-four gives 97,656 feet, or 18.5 miles. In other words, a military rifle will throw a bullet more than eighteen miles high, and the speed of the bullet at a mile above the earth will be about 2400 feet a second, which is enough to drive it through half an inch of tough steel. The bird man who should try to catch the ball might find it too hot to hold. Even the old Colt forty-five revolver throws a ball two miles high, and at a mile that would be hard to catch.

An aeroplane or a Zeppelin cannot fly high enough to be impervious to rifle bullets. Its safety depends upon its rapid movement and upon the difficulty of taking accurate aim at a moving object at unknown range.

MOTOR CAR IS AID TO HEALTH.

Motor cars have done more than any one thing to take people out of doors and consequently are a great factor in the health of the nation.

That statement was made by Harry Lord, recently, in explaining why he thought the adjustable front seat was one of the most valuable features of the new 1915 Maxwell.

This construction enables the Maxwell driver to convert the car into a comfortable bed, perfectly protected from the elements, in just a few minutes.

It enables the owner of the car to start out any time with only a few blankets and go up into the mountains or out into the country anywhere and just stop any time and camp, without putting up a tent or having along any special equipment.

During the past twelve months 18,000 miles of hard-surfaced roads were built in this country.

Closed Car Luxury At Chandler Profit-Sharing Prices

CHANDLER closed cars for 1915 are as great an achievement in their field as the Chandler Light-Weight Six touring car, which revolutionized automobile construction. The foremost designers of Europe and America have contributed to these designs and the result is a beauty of line and proportion never before equalled. They combine grace, elegance, comfort and luxury heretofore found only in the highest priced cars, at Chandler profit-sharing prices.

The Chandler Sedan

Many who have seen the Chandler Sedan, illustrated above, declare it is the most beautiful car ever built. The flowing grace of its lines, the comfort of its wide, deeply upholstered seats, the luxury of its roomy body trimmed in imported grey cloth and lace with satin curtains, the completeness of its appointments, leave nothing to be desired.

The electric lighting is perfect. Besides the two reading lights and dome light, the entrance when open is illuminated by a light that is automatically turned off when the door is closed.

The Perfection window regulators permit the windows in the doors to be readily and quickly adjusted, giving perfect ventilation. The double adjustable glass windows in front give the driver a clear vision in all kinds of weather.

The Sedan seats five passengers all facing forward. Its weight completely equipped is 3125 pounds.

The free flowing, flexible power of the Chandler makes it an ideal car for city driving.

Jeffery Surprised Us

Only last Sunday we announced through these columns that we had linked our success with that of The Thomas B. Jeffery Company.

We expected several of our friends to drop in on Monday to look over the new line. We counted on making some new friends, too, as a result of our invasion of the moderate-priced field.

We were literally taken by storm. Before we could get the show cars arranged on the floor a score of substantial-looking citizens were there to look them over.

There was one marked characteristic about almost all of those who gathered around the cars. They knew motor cars. They were well read in trade journal lore. There were garage proprietors and even chauffeurs and mechanics among the well-to-do car owners.

The ladies came, too—we never had so many Los Angeles ladies in our showrooms before. We made bold to question a few for the reason for the unusual feminine interest in Jeffery cars. "Because The Jeffery Chesterfield Six is a style carriage, not a machine," said one. "Because I ride with my friend, Mrs. ——, who drives her own Jeffery Four, and it's no more trouble to drive or care for than an electric," said another.

We listened to the conversation of the men with amazement. They told one another about how Jeffery owned his own five million dollar plant and could build a car after his own ideals without consulting a mercenary board of directors. They said he wouldn't "go broke" and leave his owners with a badly depreciated motor car investment, no matter what happened this year or next.

They remarked about the wonderful "scoop" that Jeffery made in introducing the light, high-speed, economical foreign type of motor into this country. How the Jeffery Four was and still is the "best buy" in the four-cylinder field.

One man told of driving the Jeffery Big Six up from San Diego in four hours, "keeping the old speedometer at fifty most all the time, without the slightest sign of vibration or overheating."

Imported annular ball bearings, the worm drive rear axle, vanadium steel parts, the Bijur starter and lighter, the Daimler leather coupling, the three-plate dry disc clutch, Rich Tungsten steel valves and cantilever springs, all came in for their share of the discussion.

The public knows Jeffery superiority, apparently. We were amazed at their knowledge.

It will do you good to come in tomorrow and just stand around and listen. We ought to know you, anyhow, no matter what car you drive or when you will buy again.

There are still a couple of good opportunities for dealers in Southern California.

Demonstrations of the Chesterfield Six and Jeffery Four may be had by telephone if you can't find time to drop in.

NOVEL FEATURES WITH NEXT ELECTRIC TOUR.

Run is Planned to Orange County by Beardsley and Owners are to Compete for Prizes in Long Mileage Contest to be Staged After Long Trip to Santa Ana and Return.

VOLNEY S. Beardsley and his associates are planning another Beardsley Electric tour, inviting all owners of their cars to participate. This tour will occur on December 5.

The party will leave the company's headquarters on Saturday morning at 8:30. The Pasadena owners will join the Los Angeles owners, and the destination of the day's run will be Orange county, going over the new boulevard just completed, through Whittier, Fullerton, Anaheim, Orange and Santa Ana.

The headquarters and luncheon will will be at the Hote lRochester, Orange. The day will be spent in a general good time, and the round trip by the time the party reach Los Angeles will be about eighty miles. However, the builders of these popular cars are not satisfied with a mileage of this kind, although this is considered over rolling country roads an exceptional good performance for any electric car.

This tour is going to combine with it a long mileage contest, and the merry party will be entertained on returning to the city as guests of the company at a banquet to be held at the Log Cabin on West Adams street, which will be turned over to the exclusive use of the Beardsley party.

Music and a general good time is expected, after which the owners will run the cars down, and suitable prizes are to be offered to those obtaining the longest mileage. One prize will be offered to all who reach ninety miles. A prize will be offered to any who reach 100 miles, and a particularly attractive prize will be given to the one who makes the greatest mileage on the run.

The builders of this car have made great claims for the long mileage ability of their cars. The owners are proving this to be true, but this day's run will establish some mileage records for the Beardsley electric cars that should convince any prospective buyer that this car makes good any claims represented by the builders.

A committee consisting of prominent newspaper men will award the prizes and check the cars in at the completion of the day's run and make report on the actual mileage obtained by each driver.

This will be an exceptional test as to what the cars will do so far as long mileage is concerned, for two reasons: First, these cars will not be driven by experts, but in nearly every instance by owners. Second, the trip to Orange county and return is not an easy trip for an electric to make, as the road is quite hilly and several long grades will have to be encountered. The company could lay out a route that would be much more favorable to the cars to produce long mileage, but desires to make this a severe test.

Beardsley electric owners have become very enthusiastic over these monthly tours conducted by the company, and the coming tour promises to be one of the most interesting yet held.

MISSION PITCHERS EASY FOR ANGELS AND TIGERS.

LOS ANGELES and Venice ran a close race in building up for the Sacramento-Mission pitchers the record of having more home runs made off them than were made off pitchers of any other club—Los Angeles made ten home runs off Sacramento-Mission pitchers, and Venice made nine.

Home runs were made off Sacramento-Mission pitchers as follows:

Off Arellanes—Lober, three; Johnson, Wolter, Cartwright, Mundorff, Quinlan, Zacher, Meloan; total, ten.

MOTOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING NEWEST.

There are more motor cars than ever before in Los Angeles, and with the motor car comes another Christmas gift outlet. Something for the car is always appropriate.

In view of this, the Weinstock-Nichols Company has fitted up a corner of the big supply-house as a Christmas department, and is prepared to offer suggestions as to gifts which will meet the approval of the sender and receiver.

Confronted with the necessity of paying out more money because of cars stolen than is taken in from insurance premiums, the various automobile insurance companies of the country are proposing a system of card-indexing under which it would be possible for them to locate the stolen cars.

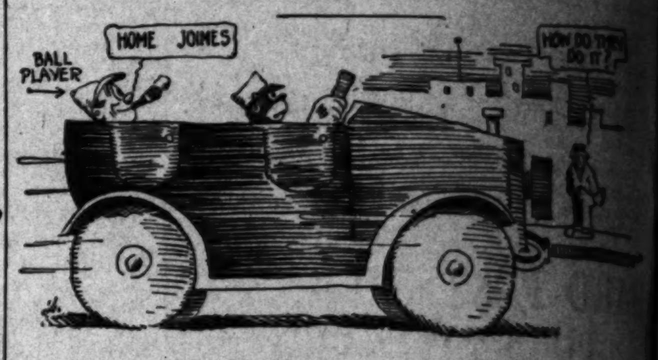
GASOLINE AND JOY IN LIFE OF BALL PLAYERS.

Diamond Athletes Have Become Enthusiastic Motorists — Scores Now Own Automobiles — The Money Received from "War" has been Invested in Machines. No Trouble to "Kill Time" Now.



BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THE life of the modern ball player is a combination of gasoline and gladness.

Where the old-timer traveled to and from the park on the lowly horse car, in a sea-going bus or on his own shoe leather, the latter-day athlete scorns such laborious and vulgar forms of locomotion.

He lolls back luxuriously in his limousine or touring car. He lets the chauffeur do the heavy work, and when things are dull instructs him to run down a pedestrian or two, picking out for the purpose some guy who had stood up in the bleachers the day before and yelled "bonehead" at him.

To paraphrase, it is an ill financial wind that blows no good, and while the baseball war has done much to put the game on the blink, it has worked a great benefit to the struggling automobile industry.

Large lumps of that Federal League money, and equally large lumps of "dough" with which organized baseball has sought to counteract the coin of the Feds, put into circulation in the shape of fat salaries, has been socked into automobiles by the players.

Thus the consumption of gasoline per capita by the players has just about doubled within twelve months.

For every player who sported a machine a year ago, two are sporting machines today.

Incidentally, the athletes have found a new joy in life. Killing time in the winter is no longer a problem with them. Swinging along the boulevards of Southern California, smooth as a ballroom floor, and visiting the thousand and one points of interest to be reached by auto from Los Angeles, they have found to be more enjoyable than trying to put the "pay ball" in the corner pocket, or "fanning" on the curbs of Spring street resorts.

The fascination of motoring is slowly but surely taking a strange hold on them, to the exclusion of other forms of amusement.

Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner and other big league stars have for years known the real meaning of gasoline, but it is only in the last few months that the motor epidemic struck the Coasters.

And it is no uncommon thing for the big leaguers to ship their cars here at the close of the season, or tour across the continent in them, being attracted here by the conditions which make this the winter paradise for motorists.

Frank Chance has adopted another system. The "P. L." maintains two cars—one here and one in the East, the latter being for winter use.

Charley Chech of the Angels and Capt. Dick Bayless of the Tigers are among the latest to fall for the lure of the automobile.

Chech has a Studebaker and Dick is the proud possessor of a Buick. Two days after Bayless purchased his machine he had mastered it sufficiently to make the long drive to Calexico, where he is now playing.

For the past month Chech has had his motor purring almost constantly, and he has come to consider a run of a couple of hundred miles a mere jaunt.

Frank Dillon has pinned his faith in a Ford—the mustang of the motor world. It is the same machine that Christy Mathewson used here [illegible] winter, and for that reason [illegible] garded as the most famous Ford [illegible] the West.

Long Tom Hughes and Jack [illegible] also thought seriously of becoming Ford owners, but each fell short [illegible] game short of realizing that ambition.

Ryan then sought solace in a Chalmers, buying one of these machines just before the close of the [illegible]. Like Bayless, he made the trip to the valley in it.

Hap Hogan is the pioneer [illegible] among Coast League managers and players, with the possible exception of "Gasoline Gus" Hetling, who received a Chalmers for his noble [illegible] playing three years ago.

A Peerless, surnamed the "[illegible] Streak," is the pride of Hap's [illegible]. For a long time Hap entrusted the steering to a chauffeur, but [illegible] seats himself at the wheel and [illegible] roams around the landscape.

Ole Olson of the Cincinnati [illegible] and recently of Cleveland, is [illegible] toring across the continent [illegible] to his winter home in Whittier.

The Federal League [illegible] Angeles are fully holding [illegible] with the opposition [illegible] owning automobiles.

Chester Chadbourne [illegible] Krueger, [illegible] Kansas City outfield, [illegible] to travel in automobile [illegible] bourne drives a [illegible] and Krueger a [illegible].

Arthur Wilson of [illegible] passing his second winter [illegible] Southern California. [illegible] chine is a [illegible] Elmer [illegible] player himself.

Playing ball half the [illegible] toring the other half—[illegible] is the life.

What would the late [illegible] and old Swat Mulligan say [illegible]

TIGER PITCHERS WERE VERY EFFECTIVE AGAINST SEALS.

VENICE pitchers were the most effective against San Francisco when it came to home runs. Seal batters made only one home run off Venice pitchers, Hitt being touched up by Schaller. Seal batters made ten home runs against Oakland, eight against Portland, seven against Los Angeles and five against Sacramento-Mission as follows:

Schaller—Off West, 2; Hitt, Prough, Gregory, Higginbotham, Ryan and Evans.

Fitzgerald—Off West, Chech, Higginbotham, Martinoni and Love.

Tobin—Off Chech, Crabb (Los Angeles,) Christian, Gregory and Kremer.

Corhan—Off Krause, Malarkey (Oakland) and Killilay.

Downs—Off Christian, Geyer and Ables.

Mundorff—Off Higginbotham, Malarkey (Oakland) and Arellanes.

Cartwright — Off Arellanes. Charles—Off Evans.

Clarke—Off Pruiett. Howard—Off Malarkey (Oakland.)

The tail-end Oakland crew picked on San Francisco and Sacramento-Mission pitchers as their chief victims in registering home runs, making five off Seal pitchers, four off Sacramento-Mission; three off Venice, two off Los Angeles and one off Portland, as follows:

Zacher—Off Arellanes, Leifield and Hughes (Los Angeles.)

Alexander—Off Pernoll and Higginbotham.

Quinlan—Off Arellanes and Kremer.

Dowling—Off Hughes (Los Angeles.) Gardner—Off Fleharty.

Kaylor—Off Klawitter (Sacramento.) Murphy—Off Powell.

Klawitter—Off Leifield. Ness—Off Leifield.

Middleton—Off Standridge—Cook—Off Powell.

Besides registering more home runs than any other club in the league Venice batters did the lion's share in making Higginbotham of Portland the victim of more home runs than any other pitcher in the league. Of the twelve home runs [illegible] made against Portland, [illegible] made against Higginbotham. Venice home runs were [illegible] Sacramento-Mission, [illegible] against San Francisco [illegible] and only three against Los Angeles, as follows:

Walter Leverenz of the St. Louis Browns recently completed a similar tour, using a Velie for the purpose.

Dutch Sepulveda of the Seals, whose home is in the south, scorned the street cars when playing here—scorned them so completely that he used two autos. One day he would swing up to the Washington-street curb in a touring car and the next day in a roadster. Dutch seems to be quite versatile.

For more than a year now Pete Daley has driven a Hudson. This machine represents part of his portion of the world series receipts in 1913. As a driver Pete is a .300 hitter any day in the week.

Jim Scott of the White Sox is now the proud possessor of the first auto that he ever owned. It is a Cadillac of the latest vintage. Jim is so stuck on the machine that he shipped it to the Coast and then lugged it over to Honolulu with him.

The Federal Leaguers now in Los Angeles are fully holding their own with the opposition when it comes to owning automobiles.

George Stovall, manager of the Kansas City Feds, sometimes known as the "fire brand" or "human torch," always has at least two Velies concealed on his Moneta avenue premises. He finds them very useful in scouting for players. No athlete whom he has wanted has yet been able to escape him.

Chester Chadbourne and Arthur Krueger, composing two-thirds of the Kansas City outfield, are also equipped to travel in automobile society. Chadbourne drives a Speedwell roadster and Krueger a Studebaker.

Arthur Wilson of the Chifeds is passing his second winter motoring in Southern California. Wilson's machine is a Howard, purchased from Elmer Thorsen, who used to be a ball player himself.

Playing ball half the year and motoring the other half—that certainly is the life.

What would the late Luke [illegible] and old Swat Mulligan say to that?

WINTER TOURING STRENUOUS.

Motorists Shrink from Crossing Country in Winter Months as Usual Thing, but this Season there will be Several Machines Bring Parties—First Arrivals Here Now.

TRANSCONTINENTAL touring in the fall and winter is accompanied by difficulties which make the nary motorist shrink from the , but this winter there will be several parties who will drive across the thern route to California in their tor cars.

The advance guard of these hardy torists arrived in Los Angeles last when Charles Wilson and his ily, in a Peerless Six rolled over last stretch of boulevard from San nardino to Los Angeles.

Wilson was fortunate in not meeting any severe storms on the way to Coast. He missed several by a few days only, and the roads for a large part of the way were in bad condition, but the big Peerless made the trip without mechanical trouble.

The heavy blizzard which gripped the East a few weeks ago was escaped. Wilson was well over the Raton Pass and into New Mexico when it broke.

No great difficulties were experienced in crossing the Raton Pass, although the travelers complained a little of the cold in the high altitudes. There had been a light fall of snow before they began the ascent, but the road was well broken and the powerful Peerless motor easily carried them over the mountains.

Through Arizona the roads were badly cut up, due to the rains, and the mud was deep in places. In California the roads were excellent.

He Knows Now.

HARD TEST GIVEN TRUCK PUTS IT IN FRONT RANK.

JUST what sort of a test should establish a light commercial car as equal to the best in the world? That tion will probably never be answered accurately, though Y. R. del declares that he has found sufficient proof to settle the question. figures that he shows to back his tion about the Vim truck are interesting.

Just a few months ago a Vim light was sold to a Los Angeles man name of J. H. Baker. This par owner was of the opinion that truck was for service and service and so proceeded to get his y's worth out of the little Vim. week one of the salesmen from Valle's office went out to see Baker and found him at the wheel of Vim. He was just getting in, and it is this trip together with the load carried that Del Valle thinks justifies his aforesaid opinion of the car.

Baker had hauled 1500 feet of lumber out to his farm, at one place making a 40 per cent. grade, and for good measure traveling four miles through a deep sand.

"That," said Del Valle, "is certainly a record for a 1000-pound truck, and I challenge any other dealer to show me anything as good with a car of equal capacity. And, mind you, this was not a test, but in every day service."

The Vim will travel under such heavy loads, simply because of the almost unbelievable sturdy construction, thirty-five to forty horse power construction to back up a fifteen-horse-power motor. And another feature of the Vim is that it is not too light, yet not heavy enough to cause excessive upkeep expense.

AMERICAN PREP ELEVEN PICKED FROM FOUR TEAMS.

Magee, Pasadena	Right end
Curry, Long Beach	Right tackle
Catland, Santa Ana	Right guard
S. Horrell, Pasadena	Center
Irvine, Santa Ana	Left guard
Siemon, Chaffey Un.	Left tackle
Morrison, Santa Ana	Quarter
Conn, Pasadena	Right half
Gard, Pasadena	Full-back
Marshall, Long Beach	Left half

SANTA ANA, Pasadena and Long Beach are the three prep elevens from which the all-southern interscholastic American football eleven selected, except for one man who is from Chaffey Union. San Diego and Whittier, strong last season, showed little this.

Santa Ana, the champions, and Pasadena, the other undefeated team, four men apiece on the star , while Long Beach contributes important players.

THE QUARTER.

Morrison wins the quarter-back in a walk, in spite of the fact Abbott of Chaffey, Wark of Long Beach and Mills of Pasadena were able field generals. Morrison near being the whole Santa Ana . He gained when all the failed. Small of size, he runs throwing off tackler after . He was the offense that won Santa Ana the championship.

THE HALVES.

Conn of Pasadena is the best open-field runner in the south. He is elusive and has much the same way of ing by tacklers as McClung of ental. He is especially good at ing the forward pass. Without he is the largest ground gainer the preps. Then he is the "Brickley," putting three drop between the Long Beach goal out of three attempts.

Marshall of Long Beach, the other is not as showy as Conn, but he better at piercing the line and his way off-tackle. He didn't up to his usual form against dena, but his early-season work him as the best left half in south. As a punter, he has the on all the preps. Anderson, his mate, is his most dangerous of San Diego might have given a hard run, but a weak team poor interference deprived him [illegible]

of Pasadena seems to have ised the full-back berth. He is one of those strong runners that tears his way along with two or three tacklers holding him. He runs more like a half-back than a full. On close-in runs through a thick field, he is especially effective.

He is shifty on his feet and side steps the secondary defense after he has ripped his way through the line. He was a consistent ground gainer against Long Beach and won the Chaffey Union game with two touchdowns.

His most dangerous rival is Holsgraf of Santa Ana. That boy is a plugger and a hard hitter, but is not as shifty as Gard.

All four backs—Morrison, Conn, Marshall and Gard—are excellent interference runners.

THE ENDS.

Burkett of Santa Ana and Magee of Pasadena are the ends. Burkett's strong point is on the defense, while Magee shines on the offense.

Burkett smears an interference and tackles hard. Magee on the offense handles a tackle the way he should be blocked and plucks forward passes from the air back of center, out of the scramble and down the field. It is hard going around Burkett's end, while Magee opens holes on his. They are an ideal end pair.

THE TACKLES.

The tackles are Siemon of Chaffey and Curry of Long Beach. Siemon is the best offensive tackle in the south and the backbone of the Chaffey team. He hits the line hard and low for consistent gains. His tackling is of the clinging variety.

Curry of Long Beach is strong on the defense and offense. He blocked the Pasadena attack around his side of the line. He ran seventy yards for a touchdown from a kick-off in the Pasadena game and saved Long Beach from defeat. Until then the right tackle berth was a nip and tuck fight between McAlpine of Pasadena and him. A charley-horse handicaped the Crown City man, who is the hardest kind of a player.

THE CENTER TRIO.

Santa Ana gets both the guard berths. Irvine, the man with the priceless toe, is shifted in from tackle while Catland is left at right guard. Catland made the center of the Santa Ana line impenetrable. Irvine is a hard tackler, who is a guard rather than a tackler. These two men with Burkett made Santa Ana the strong defensive team it was.

S. Horrell of Pasadena is the most active center in the south. Al Williams of Long Beach is almost his equal. Stewart of Santa Ana is almost on a par with them.

Horrell did not make one bad pass the whole year. He backed up the line well on the defense, playing an active loose center. He was the only man who ran Curry down and tackled him securely in that famous run at Pasadena. So he seems to have the shade over those other two strong, reliable centers—Stewart and Williams.

NICKEL GRABBERS MAKE AUTO GAME.

Charles Yeager of the local Cole agency has had a busy week in the second-hand game, and he is strong for the "jitney bus" traffic of this city. There are several second-hand concerns doing nothing but supply the machine for the nickel motor traffic.

If there are many more 5-cent machines put on second-hand cars in Los Angeles will be at a premium.

Cartoonist's idea of the trip to Corona.

From Wednesday afternoon to Thursday night there was one continual string of machines either going or coming from the Corona road race. There was everything from the cycle car to the five-ton truck. Two hunded miles of motor cars tells the story of the 100,000 visitors to the Circle City.

CORONA RACE ON THE SIDE.

Jeff Crafford, formerly Fiat salesman for the Pacific Motor Car Company, but now a dealer in Corona, was among the lucky ones. "Little Jeff" found a stranger rash enough to bet that an average of seventy-five miles an hour would not be recorded; that there would be at least three accidents, and that Tetzlaff's old record would be standing at the end of the day's racing. All of which means three bottles of the "grape" when Crawford comes to town.

The San Diego delegtaion was there strong as Limburger. The southern visitors occupied a big section of the grand stand and rooted hard for Carlson. When they saw that Bill didn't have a chance because of the way his motor was working, they turned in and tried to root Oldfield home.

Freddie Pabst was one of the road demons who got to the course from Los Angeles in record time. Pabst took a brand new Paige to the scene of battle, but the little car was about the fastest thing on the road, and passed everything in sight.

Leon Pinkson and Stuart Gayness acted as guides for the San Francisco speed fanatics who came down on the special train. The Bay City bunch are all speed mad now they have landed the Vanderbilt Cup and Grand Prize races for their own course, but the time hung up at Corona slightly discouraged them, as San Francisco had figured on setting a new mark, so long as they had only Tetzlaff's mark to beat.

"Bill" Pickens, the only A.A.A. outlaw extant, broke out long enough to send Starter Wagner a special delivery note. "In my absence please see that all the amenities of the occasion and the strictest interpretation of the rules are carried out," said "Bill." Fine stuff for an "outlaw."

Fred Wagner will return East in a few days. He is going by way of San Francisco, when he will talk over the approaching Vanderbilt cup and Grand Prize events with the northern officials. "Wag" has been selected as starter of the two big exposition events, and will return to the Coast long before the date on which they are scheduled.

Perry Greer was one of the wise birds. The local Hup distributor made the trip out from Los Angeles in a new sedan, and reached the course with his collar still white. A. C. Robbins took pot luck in an open car, and looked very much like the rest of the dust-covered crowd when he lined up to give the grand stand the up and down.

Firestone Smith cleaned up. More to make good some rash talk than to back his judgment, he bet that Oldfield would go through without changing a tire. Barney turned the trick, and Smith was probably the most surprised man in Corona to think that he had called such a rare and unexpected turn, but he took the money without even blushing.

Mitchell's commodity references are 2,000,000 users of its vehicles —50,000 of which are motor cars.

Through the great middle West, the Pacific Coast, the South, New England and in large sections of the East, the name Mitchell on a vehicle has stood for quality—quality for eighty years.

Though eighty years old Mitchell is not gray haired in policies, nor old fogyish in ideas. The goods it markets today are modern—so much so that the trade is already passing the word along that Mitchell's 1915 cars are the year's surprises.

The Ruess salesmen will be pleased to show you the new Mitchells at any time at the salesrooms or at your residence by appointment.

The car that cuts the cost of winter driving

You want a car this winter, of course—there's too much comfort and convenience driving a GOOD car in winter to miss it. But you don't want a car that's hard to drive or costly to run. And so you'll find this Studebaker FOUR the ideal car for winter.

It's as good-looking a FOUR as ever you laid eyes on—dignified and impressive in its lines, and finished like a State Carriage. But the BIG thing is that the Studebaker engineers in simplifying its design, have made it stronger, made it hundreds of pounds lighter and easier to control—and re-balanced the weight that's left so deftly that the jars and jouncings of winter roads find no reflection in increased cost of upkeep.

It's a quality FOUR that lightens expense. It's the car you want if you are buying your first car, because for $985 it gives you as much as any FOUR that costs you hundreds of dollars more. And it's the car you want if you are already driving a heavier car, because it gives you all the service, all the pleasure that any FOUR at any price can give—but at a LOWER cost.

Come in and see this car. Compare it with any FOUR you know. See what Studebaker "balanced lightness" means in dollars saved for you. We'll welcome any kind of test.

Plan to Save Deer.

deer to cover a period of five years—or better still, why not establish a game preserve in the Santa Monica Mountains, a natural habitat of wild animals? A great game preserve of say, fifty by fifteen miles in extent, which would be a wonderful attraction, and where we could use the camera instead of the rifle. Besides, why not be humane? Deer are not beasts of prey and commit no depredations—are timid, most beautiful animals whose flesh we do not require for food, and they should be protected from extermination."

E. J. Kaplan approved the five-year closed season, saying that all lovers of sport would favor it because the deer are disappearing. He thinks a three-year close might be sufficient, and that in any event, one buck per annum should be a hunter's limit.

THE WARDEN.

Game Warden Pritchard says the five-year closed season is all right, and continues with clear and decided suggestions of value:

"We had such a closed period from 1888 to 1892, but it was a failure for want of enforcement. Only a limited appropriation supported the Game Commission, no fees being then available, and their efforts mostly went toward the propagation of fish.

"All hunting license fees are now directed to the preservation of game animals and birds, and we have a force of 120-odd men engaged in that work. We can enforce any law passed, whether relating to season or preserve limits.

"A game preserve is entirely practicable, and may now be established by the Legislature for this district, irrespective of the rest of the State and the varied preferences of other districts.

THE DISTRICT.

"Fish and Game District, No. 6, includes the counties of San Diego, Imperial, Riverside, Orange, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Ventura, Santa Barbara and the south half of Inyo. No longer need the game of such habitat be subjected to proper legislative conditions governing localities 800 miles away.

"I do not fear the increase of mountain lions in proportion to the growth of deer families, as our payment of $20 bounty for dead lions keeps them down. We have paid $40,000 on such bounties within five years, and will keep it up, as the bounties are paid out of hunting licenses.

"Dogs are best for hunting lions, as the wild brutes are hard to bait. Any dog will tree them if he nears their trail.

"Sportsmen of this district should agree upon their needs, and ask the next Legislature to provide accordingly."

AGAINST CLOSE SEASON.

P. Wolf opposes an absolute closed season, or fixed preserve, saying that lions will increase in security from hunters, and that one puma destroys more game than 100 hunters.

"One pair of mountain lions," says Wolf, "will increase to sixteen in five years, if undisturbed. Our forests ranges are at present barred from any bounty for lion killing. They should be encouraged to kill them, with a large bounty, even as high as $50.

"The most efficient destroyer of the mountain pest is a pack of dogs, consisting preferably of four Airedales and one fox terrier. Six months of training teaches such a pack to hunt the lion only, and they get them. I have hunted with Warren's trainea packs above Bakersfield, with great success. On one trip into the mountains back of Glendora, I saw the carcasses of three deer, one buck and two does, which had just been killed by mountain lions. The destroyers would thrive in secluded reserves.

TOO LONG.

George C. Cline says five years is too long a period to close hunting, and that our present-thirty-day open season is too short. "Lions are the real deer killers, and should be destroyed by means of larger bounties. Where will we shoot if the Santa Monica Mountains are thrown into a preserve? Our gun licenses should protect the deer, if carefully used. The introduction of the antagonistic Arizona quail in the midst of our timid California quail has also been a mistake, as our local birds are driven out."

Members of a prominent sporting goods firm, say that the proposed five-year closure would be wrong. They think game limits should be reduced, both as to deer and quail, making the deer limit one buck annually, with an open season of two months in which to secure it.

THE CAUSE.

The large killing of bucks is held to result in decreased size of the game, due to constant inbreeding. They hold that five-year closure or permanent preserve would result in all lion and no deer within a few years. They also maintain that no dogs should be permitted in game districts except on leash, with no permission to chase any animal.

The selecting of an all-California American football eleven, perplexing any time, is doubly difficult this fall.

Only one player towers head and shoulders above the confusion of stars and near-stars—Sam McClung, Occidental's extraordinary right half and undisputed hero of the 1914 season.

Sid Foster, the flashy, open-field dodger, might have been poking his head up among the clouds with his teammate, but an unfortunate accident pulled him down among the herd.

All the other players win their places by slim margins. The reason is because this was the greatest football season in the south's history. It takes many stars on many teams to make a great season, not one or two sensations on one or two elevens. That is why football doctors differ and a flip of the coin could pick the man in most instances.

WHO'S WHO.

Occidental has four Tigers on the all-California, Pomona three Huns, U.S.C. two Trojans and Whittier two Quakers.

The Tigers are Sam McClung and Sid Foster, halfbacks, and Deems and Shipke, tackles. Deems is shifted to guard for convenience

The Huns are Reeves, the little end, Capt. Heath, the heady tackle, and Overin, the burly guard.

The Quakers are Finch the hard-playing full, and Cammack, the fast quarter.

The Trojans are James, the dumping end, and Teschke, the fighting center.

The eleven is easily the sturdiest defensive team that has represented the south, although there have been faster scoring machines. It might have a hard time getting away with forward passes, neither James nor Reeves being especially adept at snagging the ball.

THE BACKS.

Whittier and Occidental furnish the backfield. Sam McClung is the right half, Sid Foster the left half, Bull Finch the full, and Cammack the quarter.

That backfield with Teschke playing a loose center, is impenetrable on the defense. Finch and McClung have an uncanny way of nosing the play and meeting the runner at the line. Foster can spill a whole interference and pull down the runner by one leg. It takes a Kelly to run away from him. No man has ever passed Cammack in the open field.

SAM M'CLUNG.

Sam McClung is without a peer. He has been hailed as the south's greatest half of all time. He was the hero of Occidental's games with Whittier, U.S.C. and Pomona. It takes two tacklers to nail him down. He is slippery enough to slide eel-like by two or three. He never is thrown for a loss and gains anywhere from two to thirty yards everytime he takes the ball. He will always put one man away while running interference. Sam will do the kicking for the team. His punts are wicked and hard to handle. He kicks consistently forty-yard spirals that soar so high that the ends are always down the field before the ball. He is a drop kicker of ability.

SID FOSTER.

Foster is the left half. Kelly of U.S.C., Bogue and Brownell of Whittier and Clary of Pomona gave him a close call, largely because he did not have a chance to show what he had. But the U.S.C.-Occidental game, the first two minutes of the Pomona game, and perhaps memories of the 1912 Sid, give him the berth.

He is as good in the open field as Kelly. Not as fast, but he is shiftier on his feet. He is a hard, deadly tackler. He bucked off-tackle against the Trojans for an average of four yards. He runs the best interference of any back in Southern California. Sid is sure at handling punts and runs them far back. He is an accurate forward pass hurler. Bogue was stopped by U.S.C. and Pomona. Kelly was not as strong at tackling, but better at intercepting forward passes. Davis is a plugging halfback, but not as good a ground gainer as the [illegible]

THE WHITTIER [illegible]

Cammack wins a place [illegible] of Occidental at quarter by a [illegible] breadth. Cammack is [illegible] sneaks around end for [illegible] He handles punts as Lenz [illegible] Handling punts is Lenz's [illegible] ness. Lenz is better at [illegible] forward pass.

Cammack may be a [illegible] field general than Lenz, McFadden [illegible] Holloway. He bucked [illegible] defeat and scored for Whittier [illegible] work against Pomona and U.S.C. [illegible] the bucks had been stopped.

Fullback Finch is as [illegible] fensive player as McClung [illegible] stopped all of Pomona's [illegible] attack and most of Occidental's [illegible] did not buck the line as well [illegible] ams and better than Kelly [illegible] neither of the latter two [illegible] Adams's interference. [illegible] of Occidental is steady, [illegible] genius. Then Finch is a [illegible] terference in himself. [illegible] are bullet-like.

Kelly needs another year [illegible] soning before he is all-California [illegible] ber. He has it in him, [illegible]

THE ENDS.

Reeves of Pomona and [illegible] U.S.C. win the end [illegible] strong field of Coffeen and [illegible] Occidental, Chambers and [illegible] Whittier and Meade of Pomona.

James is the greatest [illegible] in the south. He tumbles [illegible] four-man interference [illegible] James nabbed many a [illegible] before the Hun could [illegible] other end. Going down [illegible] has been dumped, only [illegible] tackle the man. Up [illegible] showed that he could [illegible] ward pass. He was [illegible] on that end in the south.

Reeves is right [illegible] defensive player. He [illegible] punted to in his tracks [illegible] as only a Hun can [illegible] low.

Batz and Chambers [illegible] strong on the defense.

Coffeen and Douglas [illegible] erer on the forward [illegible] the defensive ability.

THE TACKLES.

Shipke of Occidental [illegible] Pomona are the tackles [illegible] being shifted into guard [illegible] U.S.C. deserves honorable [illegible] Injuries robbed him of [illegible]

Shipke and Heath [illegible] themselves impenetrable [illegible] fense. Shipke hurled back [illegible] and Hun attacks. Heath [illegible] Tiger, Trojan and Quaker [illegible] yard-gainers on the [illegible] Shipke is the best in the [illegible]

THE GUARDS.

Deems yields to [illegible] Huns went around his [illegible] minutes. All the rest of the [illegible] was a stone wall. He [illegible] be left off the line-up. [illegible] best guard in the south [illegible] and can play it [illegible] Overin of Pomona [illegible] maker of holes, a ground-gainer [illegible] given the ball, a heady [illegible] into guard.

Overin and his 190 pounds [illegible] fill the other guard. [illegible] ability wins him the [illegible] Cooper of Pomona and T. [illegible] Occidental, equally strong [illegible] fense.

THE CENTERS.

Teschke seems to be the [illegible] lection for center, although [illegible] shouts the praises of Waltz [illegible] cidental claims that Doig [illegible] none. All three were [illegible] But Teschke was the Trojan [illegible] ary defense. James, [illegible] were the most conspicuous [illegible] when U.S.C. was [illegible] Waltz and Doig are [illegible] players, but somehow [illegible] the trick of being [illegible]

Large Money.

WALT JOHNSON IS EXPENSIVE.

Wants $300 a Game to Play Winter Ball.

Billy Sullivan may Round Out Career Here.

Berry and Darmody Ready to Close Big Deal.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

The attempts of Mickey LaLonge, manager of the Brawley club, to strengthen his team, have brought out the fact that ball players have ceased to converse in anything except large terms.

Small change, such as "sunburnt nickles" and $10 bills they regard as mere twaddle.

BIG GAME.

La Longe, just to show that he is a manager, who considers nothing too good for the "nuts," sought to sign Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander and "Boston Bill" James. There are a number of big leaguers down in the valley, and LaLonge figured that these pitchers might be willing to earn a few hundred extra dollars during the winter.

They are paying good money down there, but LaLonge not being braced for the shock, went to the mat when Alexander and Johnson sent in their demands.

James declined the invitation to play, because his arm needs rest and quiet.

CHEAP.

Alexander was willing, but he named $400 a month as the price of his valuable services. That would be an average of $100 a game, as he would not be expected to pitch more than once a week.

But that was a mere bagatelle compared with Johnson's idea of what a winter salary should be.

Walt wired that he would come out and enlighten the people of Brawley if LaLonge could see fit to pay him $300 a game. Right here Mickey's managerial eyesight became seriously impaired, and he was unable to see anything like that. If Johnson pitched one game a week it would have meant $1200 a month. If he worked two, his monthly stipend would be $2400.

Johnson must think that they are running a Federal League down in the valley.

AS IT WAS.

Time and again I have seen this same Johnson pitch on the sand lots around Los Nietos, Rivera, Downey and Olinda largely for the sport of winning. And when the hat was passed around, he was mighty well pleased if his cut amounted to $3. From $3 to $300 is a far cry, and indicates that no player, however great, is ashamed to take money.

Billy Sullivan, former manager and veteran catcher of the Chicago White Sox, is displaying certain symptoms which indicate a willingness to taper off his career on the Coast.

Having seen a premature announcement in an eastern paper to the effect that Doc White had succeeded Hap Hogan as manager of the Tigers, Sullivan promptly took his artesian pen in hand and wrote to Doc.

In this letter he makes certain pertinent inquires regarding the kind of money paid in this league. It may be that Billy thinks that they pay off in Canadian dimes out here.

WOULD PLAY.

Anyway, the trend of his written remarks suggested a willingness to play out here as a member of the Tigers, providing the inducements are sufficient.

Sullivan is a Coast boy, and his mother is now residing in Santa Barbara.

White will turn the letter over to Maier and Hogan. He believes that they could do far worse than open negotiations with Sullivan.

"Sullivan is not all in by any means," declared White. "His arm is apparently as good as ever. True, he has lost some of his speed, and cannot cover as much ground as formerly, but his great work in other respects would make him a valuable man. A smarter, more clever catcher than Sullivan never buckled on a mask. It is a pleasure to watch him outguess an opposing club. He is the ideal pegger. He does not throw hard, but makes up for this by getting the ball away without the slightest false move, and by the accuracy of his peg. This makes it easy for the infielders coving second or third. They can easily handle the throw with the bare hand, if necessary. Tannehill and other Chicago infielders told me that Sullivan throws the 'lightest ball' of any catcher in the business. And only those who have covered on close plays, know what a big advantage this VALUABLE.

"I believe that Sullivan would be a valuable man for the Venice club."

Tom Stephens either spoke with his fingers crossed, or was misquoted.

In a dispatch from San Francisco, Stephens is credited with declaring that the discovery that the Olympic Club has a sub-lease on Recreation Park, would prevent the purchase of the Seals by himself and the Berry brothers.

Henry Berry went considerably up in the air, and bit savagely into a fat cigar, when shown said dispatch.

"If Stephens said anything like that he must have been kidding," said Berry. "If so, I don't think much of his humor. It was understood by him, myself and my brother, Clarence, before I left San Francisco that Recreation Park was out of the question. We gave up all idea of trying to secure it more than a week ago.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

"We have three other sites available, any of which look satisfactory, while others have been offered which are not quite so desirable.

"I am going to purchase the San Francisco club, and will close the deal for it not later than Tuesday. Go as strong as you like on that. If Stephens or my brother are getting cold feet, and don't want any of the stock, I will take it over single-handed. I have practically sold out here, and will soon be the owner of the San Francisco franchise."

Tom Darmody, who had been in conference with Berry most of the day, admitted that he expected to complete the purchase of the Los Angeles club some time Monday.

"I have the men who will be associated with me lined up," said Darmody. "When their names are made public it will be a big boost for the game here. This will be the biggest deal in the history of minor league baseball, and it requires time to complete all the details. We have been working on it constantly for the better part of a month, but have about reached a place where it can be closed. I am putting a fortune into the venture, and naturally did not want to make the plunge until satisfied on every point."

BIG PLANT.

Berry hopes to be able to make an outright purchase of the site which he has in view. In case he succeeds in doing this, he will erect a concrete plant with a double-deck grand stand that will compare favorably with the major league parks in equipment and arrangement.

Should he find it impossible to get anything but a lease, the improvements will be hardly so elaborate or of such a permanent nature. In that event, Ewing Field may be dismantled and the material used in the new plant. Contractors have informed him that this can be done with only a loss of 25 per cent.

He now has architects working on plans for the new park. Berry left for the north last night, and expects to remain until the deal is completed.

Looking 'Em Over.

BIG OFFICIALS AT THE ANNUAL ARMY-NAVY GAME

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Official Washington was well represented in the various parties which left here early today for Philadelphia to attend the Army-Navy football game. Those who went to witness the historic gridiron contest included several members of the Cabinet, Senators and Representatives, government officials and a large contingent from army and navy circles.

Cabinet officers who had arranged to attend the game with their wives and guests included Secretaries Daniels, Garrison and Houston.

Secretary and Mrs. Daniels's party included, in addition to their three sons and Miss Ethel Bagley, Gov. Craig of North Carolina, Senator Tillman and Representative Padgett, chairmen, respectively, of the Senate and House Naval Affairs Committees; Representative and Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania; Capt. and Mrs. A. G. Winterhalter, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jackson of Richmond, Va., and Joseph R. Wilson and Miss Wilson.

Secretary and Mrs. Garrison, who have been at Atlantic City over the holidays, were to have the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Morton of Philadelphia, among their box guests at the game. Secretary and Mrs. Houston's party included Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge of New York.

OPEN FOOTBALL BEATS RUTGERS.

WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON ELEVEN OUT-RUSHED, WINS WITH FORWARD PASSES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—In a fine exhibition of open football at the Polo Grounds today, Washington and Jefferson defeated Rutgers, 20 to 13. The Rutgers line held much more firmly than was expected.

While the Washington eleven was outrushed, it made some wonderful forward passes, but the interference was very poor.

HUNS BACK WITH STORY OF DEFEAT.

HUNS SAY ARIZONA LUCK, POOR CONDITIONS AND OFFICIALS BEAT THEM AT TUCSON.

The Huns of Pomona are back from Tucson with their version of the 7-to-6 defeat the University of Arizona handed them.

The luck was against them and all with Arizona, according to the Huns. They marched up and down the field only to fumble within striking distance of the goal.

They do not speak any too kindly of the Arizona officials. They say the referee and umpire meant well but did not know the rules.

The Huns are in a fairly battered and bruised condition. Four hard games in four weeks was too stiff a season for them. Stanton's men were in no condition to play a football game Thanksgiving Day, while Arizona was right.

COURSE INSPECTED BY SHETTLER.

Man who Managed Vanderbilt and Grand Prix at Santa Monica Last February Drives Around the San Francisco Speed Path and Reports Excellent Speedway.

THE Vanderbilt cup and Grand Prix races to be held at San Francisco next February will be run over an excellent course, according to Ben T. Shettler, the man who handled the Vanderbilt and Grand Prix races held on the Santa Monica course last spring.

While on a visit to San Francisco in the interests of the Chalmers car, Shettler made a thorough inspection of the course on the fair grounds. The local man was accompanied by W. L. Hughson, chairman of the automobile racing committee, and Hollis B. Frawley, director of special events for the exposition.

The course is described as varying in width from thirty to eighty feet, with but two right-angle turns. There are fifteen turns in all on the course, but the majority of these are comparatively slight deflections which will not effect the speed of the cars to any great extent, according to Shettler.

For the entire distance visible from the grand stand, the course is eighty feet wide and it is on this wide stretch that the drivers will probably make most of the attempts at passing. With the large entry list expected for the races, and the short course, there should be cars passing the grand stand every few seconds.

The Vanderbilt is to be held February 22, just two days after the official opening of the exposition. The Grand Prix is scheduled for a week later. The start of both races will be at the grand stand and the cars will run east past the State buildings to the hairpin turn at the Plaza of the Concourse of Nations, thence down the Avenue of Nations and into the Avenue of Palms. At the Palace of Varied Industries the course turns down the Avenue of Progress to the Esplanade, thence to the Federal Concourse, the Marina, the back stretch of the mile track and to the finish line.

The race will be run in one of the most picturesque courses in the world.

line to punt, but the kick was blocked and he fell on it for a safety. Score:

Army, 2; Navy, 0.

Blodgett punted from the 20-yard line and Navy recovered a fumble on Army's 40-yard line. A forward pass gained fifteen, but the next one grounded and Blodgett failed to make a goal from placement. On the next line-ups each team was penalized five yards for off-side. Pritchard punted to Navy's 34-yard mark as the period ended.

SECOND PERIOD.

Blodgett punted as the second period opened. Army returned it and Blodgett fumbled to a soldier on the 20-yard mark. A forward pass resulted in a touchdown. Merrillat catching the ball on the 5-yard mark and making the distance unopposed. No goal was kicked. Score:

Army, 8; Navy, 0.

The second touchdown came through the use of the same tactics. Blodgett fumbled a punt, Army recovering on the 36-yard line. Miles replaced Mitchell. Prichard then shot another perfect pass to Merrillat, who carried the ball to the 1-yard line. Hodgson easily made the distance, but McEwan again failed at goal. Score: Army, 14; Navy, 0.

Coffin kicked off and Blodgett came back twenty yards.

Craig replaced Failing and Graf went in for Mills. Craig immediately made nine yards around Merrillat, and repeated for three more. Parker replaced Butler. On a fake kick Craig carried the ball to Navy's 45-yard mark. Navy's punt was poor, going out at Army's 42-yard mark. The return kick was caught on Navy's 14-yard mark. Miles made five through Meacham. Britton took Neyland's place.

Blodgett was thrown back on a fake kick, then punted thirty yards. Goodman replaced McEwan. A forward pass was broken up and Prichard lost ground on a try at end. Blodgett was replaced by Hulbert. Hodgson punted over Navy's line for a touchback. Hulbert tried twice to gain from his 20-yard mark, then punted. On the first play he intercepted a forward pass and it was Navy's ball again on its 28-yard line. Perry made another wild pass, Miles recovering on his 40-yard mark. Hulbert punted, then the officials decided to disallow the play on which Perry erred and Army was given the ball on the Navy 28-yard line. On the first smash at the line Army fumbled and Navy recovered the ball only a foot from the goal. Hulbert punted, Prichard marking down a fair catch on the 36-yard line. Benedict took Coffin's place and tried for a goal from the placement, but failed.

Smith replaced Perry at center. On the first play after the touchback Craig made nine yards and Bates made it first down. Miles was thrown back five yards as the half ended.

THIRD PERIOD.

Ward appeared in DeRoode's place. Army kicked off to Navy's 25-yard line. Three ties at the line netted seven yards and an exchange of punts followed. Army lost fifteen yards for holding and the ball was on its 40-yard mark. McEwan took Goodman's place and Neyland went back in Britton's position. Miles's forward pass was muffed by Harrison. Miles then went through Parker for nine yards. Bates made it a first down and then Miles and Craig repeated the feat, putting the ball on the Cadets' 18-yard line.

H. H. Harrison replaced Bates. Two forward passes failed, the second resulting in a touchback. Army scrimmaged from the 20-yard line, Benedict breaking through Miles for a first down.

Prichard and Van Fleet were then used in a series of powerful drives that carried the ball to Navy's 38-yard line. Here Breadfoot took H. H. Harrison's place. Army kept plugging at center, Benedict carrying the ball to the 24-yard line. Hodgson went nine more and Kennedy went in for McCoach. Navy lost five for off-side and Hodgson in two tries planted the ball four yards from the goal. On the next play the whole attack, which had yielded seventy-six yards, was nullified by a fumble which Navy recovered as a touchback.

Navy scrimmaged for the twenty yards and in four plays made seventeen yards, Craig contributing most of it. The period ended with Navy holding the ball thirty-seven yards from its own line.

FOURTH PERIOD.

Blodgett returned to the game for the last quarter. He at once tried two forward passes, which grounded, and then punted. The kick was at once returned to Navy's 46-yard line. A lateral pass lost the Navy six yards, a plunge at the line was thrown back two and an attempt at forward passing lost eight more, a total of sixteen in three plays. Blodgett kicked again and from the Navy 41-yard mark Hodgson went around Capt. Overesch for seventeen yards. McCoach replaced Kennedy. Hodgson plugged center for two, then Prichard forward passed to Neyland on Navy's 5-yard line. Benedict made the touchdown. The try for goal failed. Score: Army, 20; Navy, 0.

Schlossback replaced Ward. Benedict took the kickoff back eighteen yards, then the old forward pass, Prichard to Merrillat, gained twenty-six yards and the ball was on Navy's 40-yard line. The middies recovered the ball on downs on their 35-yard line, mainly because two forward passesd grounded. Hulbert came back in Blodgett's place. His mates could not gain, so he punted. The kick was returned and then Hulburt's try at forward passing was intercepted by a cadet on Army's 46-yard line. Navy recovered a fumble on the second place. Craig made three yards, then gave way to Alexander. Miles then made five yards, then threw a forward pass out of bounds at Army's 12-yard line. Ford replaced Hodgson. Army advanced seven yards, then punted to Navy's 44-yard line. S. Jones replaced Graf. Navy was penalized ten yards. Navy finally caught a forward pass, Alexander taking the ball to Navy's 49-yard line. Miles broke through for eight yards, then added four for a first down. Another forward pass, Miles to Harrison, gained ten yards, but five was lost for offside. Another forward pass grounded, Miles failed at right end and the game ended with Navy holding the ball on Army's 24-yard line. Final score: Army, 20; Navy, 0.

The Traffic Problem in Los Angeles.

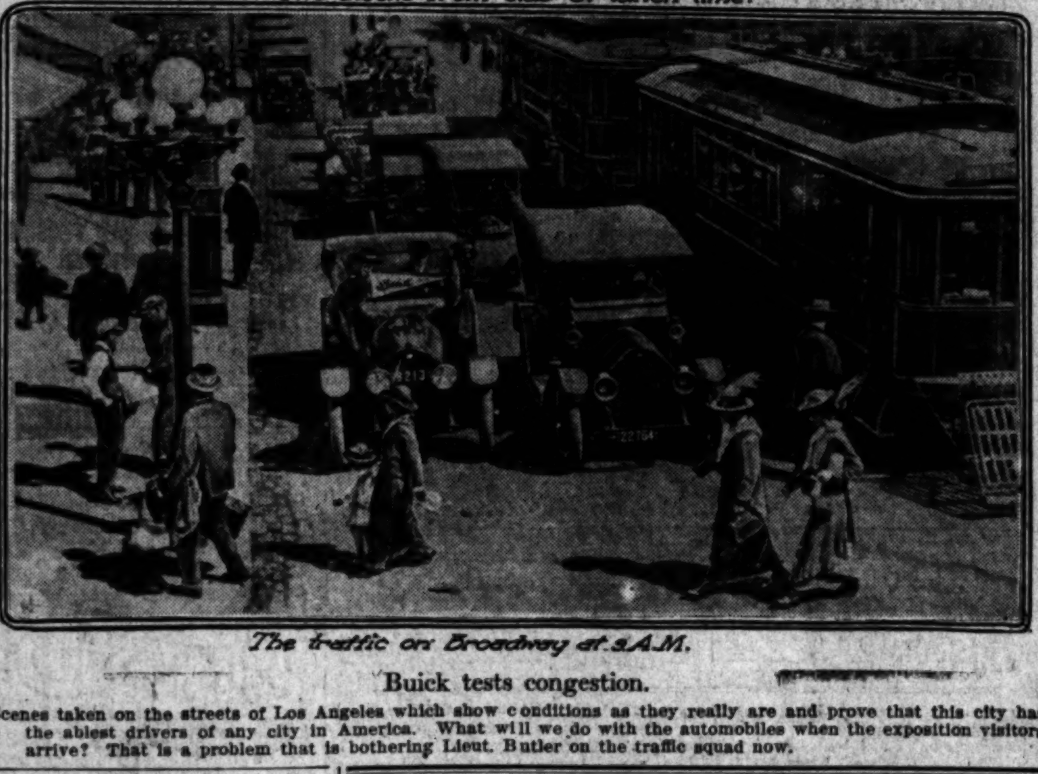
All space taken in motor park during noon hour.

No room at Spring St. private auto park.

Two blocks from club at lunch time.



The traffic on Broadway at 3 A.M.

Buick tests congestion.

Scenes taken on the streets of Los Angeles which show conditions as they really are and prove that this city has the ablest drivers of any city in America. What will we do with the automobiles when the exposition visitors arrive? That is a problem that is bothering Lieut. Butler on the traffic squad now.

The Problem.

TRAFFIC GROWS VERY SERIOUS.

POLICE HANDLE SITUATION AS IT NOW STANDS.

Every Day Congestion Becomes More Difficult to Drive Through and While Los Angeles has Capable Drivers, Authorities Have Hands Full and Parking Space is Scarce.

Los Angeles is confronted with a traffic problem which is growing more serious every day. The city has outgrown its own streets and even the police officers are baffled.

There is more traffic on Broadway of Los Angeles than on the Broadway of New York, at the present time, according to interested automobile men who have recently returned from the eastern metropolis. It is claimed that it is easier to drive through the New York traffic in the evening than to pilot a machine from First to Seventh on Broadway right here in Los Angeles, during the busy hours of the late afternoon.

With more machines appearing on the streets of Los Angeles every day and the great influx of exposition visitors due soon, there is no telling just what the traffic situation will amount to here. The automobile has fairly taken possession of the city, yet the city is not able to care for the machines already here.

The main cause for the congestion is the narrow street. The street cars also contribute to the seriousness of the situation, but the main cause is the fact that there as so many machines running in Los Angeles.

Traffic rules originated in Los Angeles in the early days of the automobile. At the present time, there are so many machines in Southern California that every suburban town has its traffic regulations and in many of the smaller places there is a traffic department of the police force.

There are a few rules which might be successfully added to the Los Angeles traffic code. One of the most important additions to the code would be an ordinance forbidding pedestrians to cross the streets in the traffic zone, except at regular crossings and under the whistle of the traffic officer, just as the cars and vehicles are governed.

A great many accidents happen between blocks. The pedestrian crossing the crowded street is also a trial to the nerves of the driver of an automobile. In New York the pedestrian is governed by the whistle in the same manner as the autoist and there is no reason why the same condition should not exist here.

The time will come, it is believed, when machines will not be allowed to turn into Broadway or Spring street from cross streets during the hours of heavy traffic and the time will also come when trucks and heavy motor vehicles will not be allowed on the busy streets. These changes in the traffic laws will do a great deal of good, but the most serious of all local traffic problems is the parking.

Often it is impossible to find a place to park a car even in the evening. Within blocks of the popular cafes there is not a vacant parking space on busy nights and in the middle of the day it is a hardship to be in the city with a machine. The man who drives his car to business often has a stall at a garage or a vacant lot parking space. These are often several blocks from the owner's office.

If the motorist wishes to drive to luncheon, it is almost impossible to find a place to stand a car within blocks of the downtown restaurants. At the Los Angeles Athletic Club there is never a noon when the entire block is not choked with cars, with an overflow in the alley and in the vacant lot in the rear of the club.

Olive street from Seventh to Fourth is always flanked on both sides with automobiles until it is impossible to get a car in. Fourth street from Hill to Olive is always lined with cars on both sides and a special officer is kept on the spot to keep a passageway clear and to watch the cars left in the street.

Los Angeles has the best drivers in the country, it is claimed. This is accounted for by the fact that the traffic congestion is so great that only an expert can drive a car on the streets of this city. Another thing, in the East the cars are put up for the winter and the owners ride the street cars. Such is not the case here. The eastern cars are brought to the Coast in great number every year by their owners and in addition to this, the winter season is the popular motoring season in Southern California, as in the summer months many of the machines are driven out of the city on long tours.

There are dreams of elevated boulevards and underground street railways. Some suggest auto parks on the tops of buildings and in the basement of department stores.

If the automobile continues to thrive in Los Angeles, as it most probably will, the day will come when there will be several stories in the Los Angeles city streets, then the driver of an automobile will have some chance.

IMMENSE PAINT SHOP.

The Maxwell Motor Company is enlarging the factory space to make room for the increase in material and manufacturing which is required to meet the demand for the new car.

LONG TIME COMING.

An instance of the workmanship of the Pierce-Arrow factory, according to William E. Bush, is the production of the Pierce-Arrow five-ton truck. The Pierce chassis represented five years of constant effort and experimenting before it was put on the market.

CROSS-COUNTRY ROAD COMPLETE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Nov. 28.—Telegrams were received at the Lincoln Highway Association headquarters here today, stating that every foot of the new 3400-mile transcontinental road was covered by automobiles yesterday between 6 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock in the evening. The Lincoln Highway consul at each important point drove to the next point west and return. The record-breaking run was prompted by Lincoln Highway officials to verify the announcement that the coast-to-coast road is now ready for the automobile traffic.

Hupmobile
Car of the American Famil

--why it sells $1295 Los Angeles

—Practically every car that appeared on the 1915 market was slashed in selling price.

—Not so with the HUPMOBILE.

—and yet today we are working over-time to deliver cars to waiting owners—our business has increased far beyond the proportionate increase in price.

—why is it?—we are asked. —Hup owners know the car—they believe in it—they have learned that no car in America can touch the Hupmobile in price paid and value received—the material used in its construction is subject to but trifling deterioration.

—of course it is operated from the left-hand side — the natural position for driving—it is a big roomy car, built to accommodate five full-grown passengers with comfort.

—equipped with a greatly improved self-starter—the motor is put into operation with the mere turning of a simple switch—and once started never stops, except at the will of the driver—it is absolutely non-stallable in every circumstance imaginable.

—all switches and levers are conveniently placed — the hand brake and gear shifts being far enough forward to permit entrance from either side—a feeling of solidity and safety is a great feature of this new model—its light weight permitting, however, the retention of that same boast of HUPMOBILE OPERATING ECONOMY.

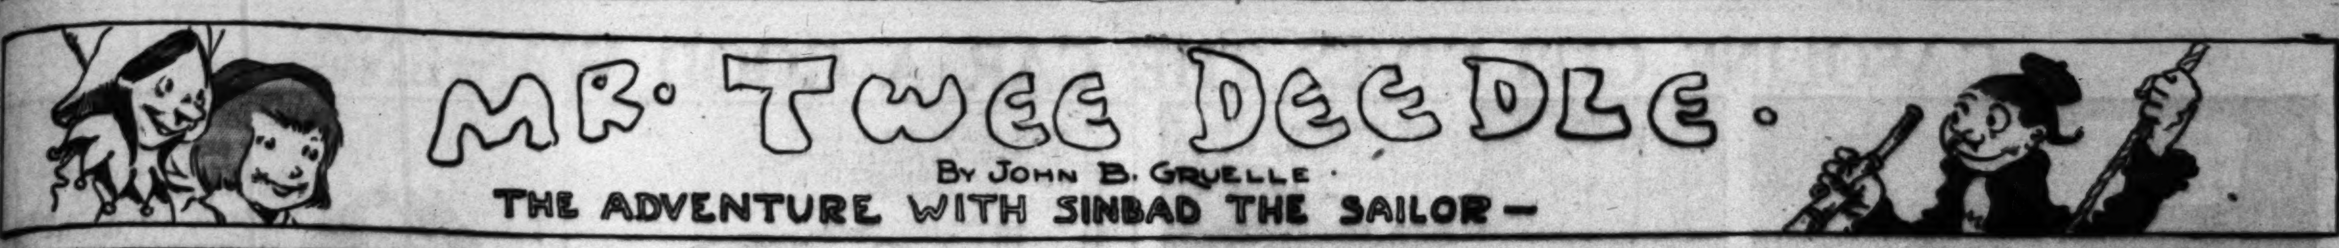
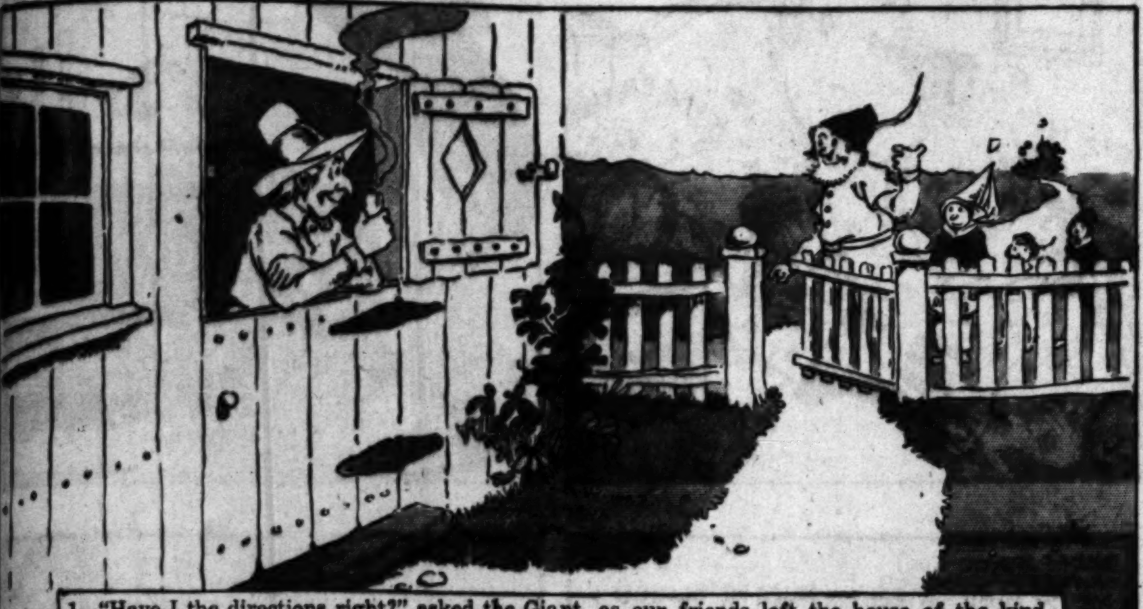
MR. TWEE DEEDLE.

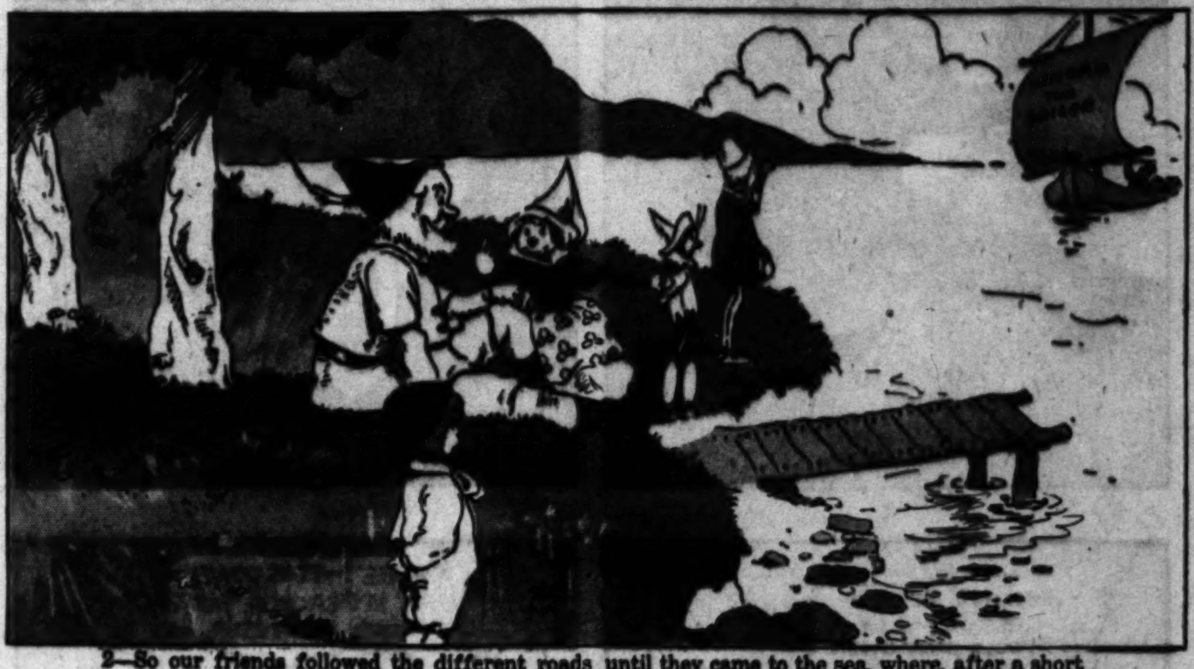
BY JOHN B. GRUELLE

THE ADVENTURE WITH SINBAD THE SAILOR—

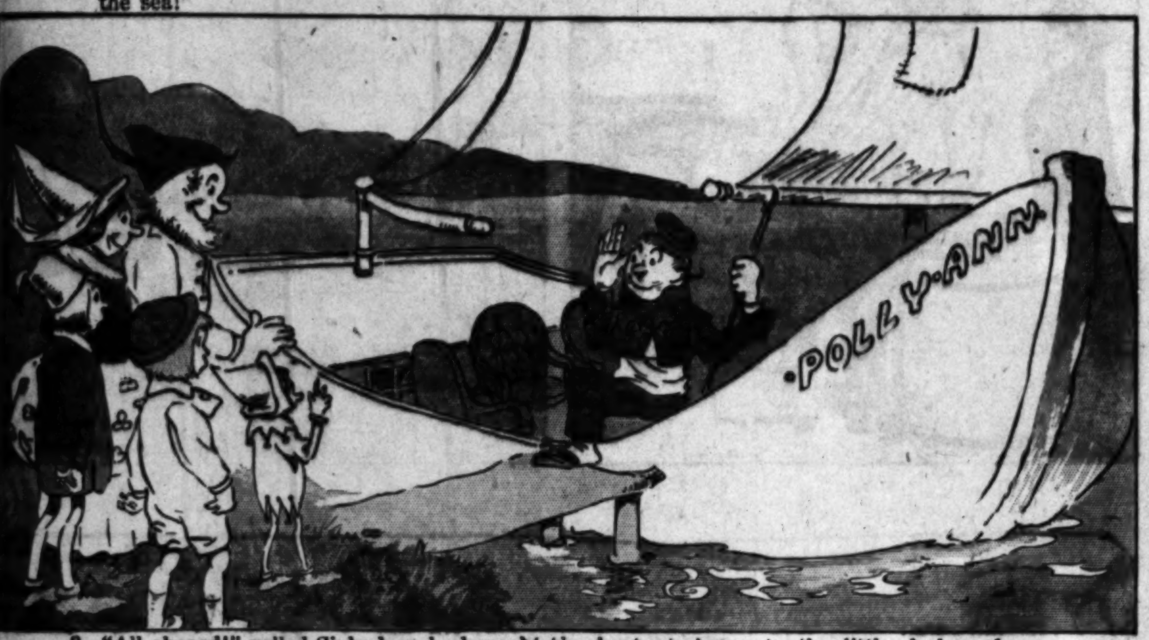




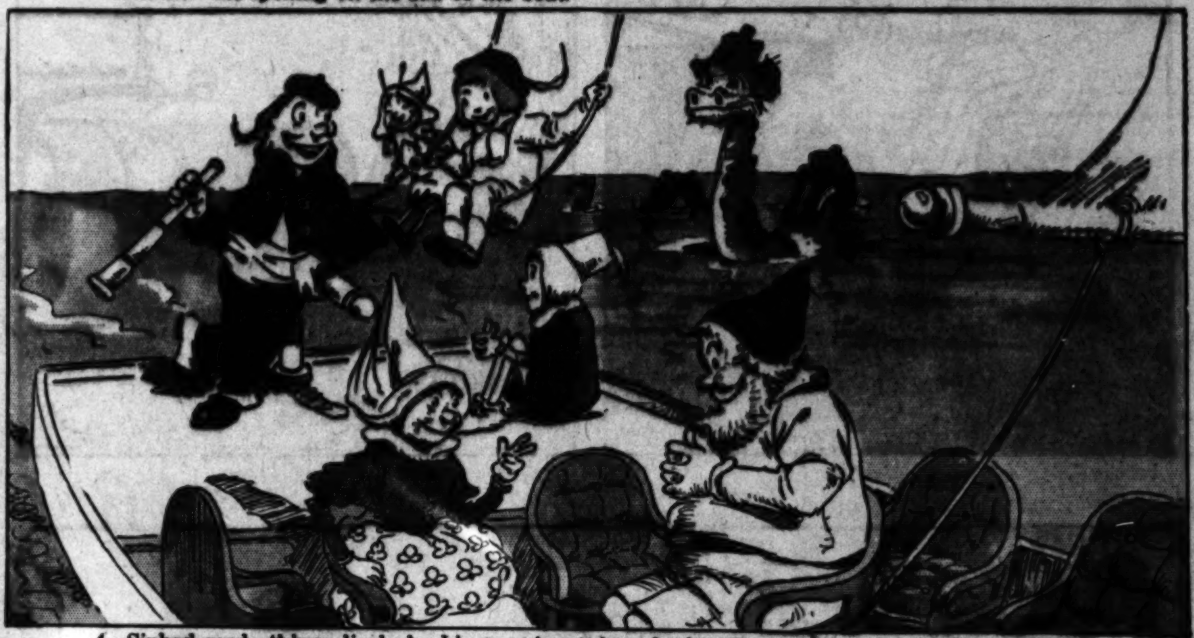
1—"Have I the directions right?" asked the Giant, as our friends left the house of the kind-hearted Fisherman. "Straight down this crooked road to the top of the third hill, then take the right-hand road to the first turn to the left and follow that to the second crossroad, then turn to the left for six miles." "Yes," answered the Fisherman, "and it brings you out to the sea!"



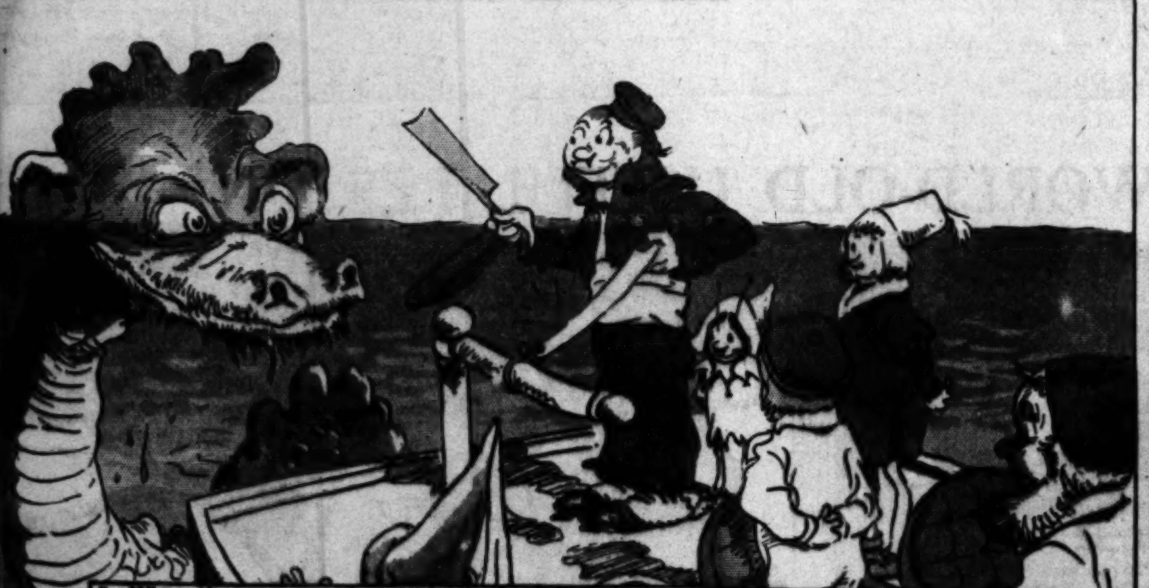
2—So our friends followed the different roads until they came to the sea, where, after a short time, a sailboat came toward them. "It's Sinbad the Sailor!" shouted Mr. Twee Deedle when he saw the spelling on the sail of the boat.



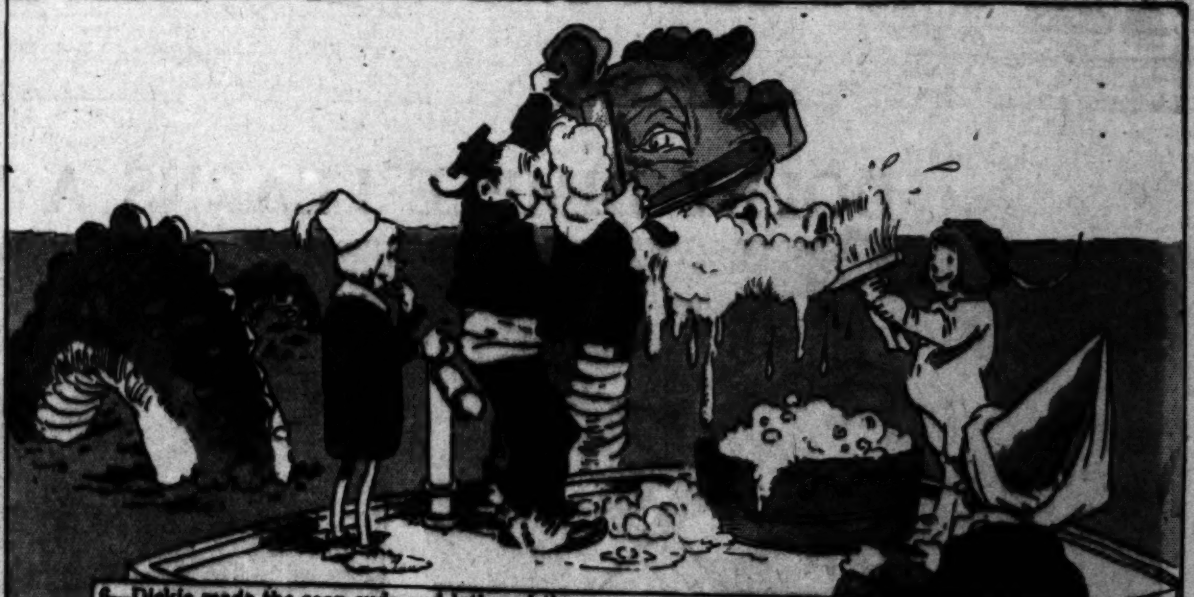
3—"All aboard!" yelled Sinbad, as he brought the boat nicely up to the little dock and our friends climbed aboard, Sinbad helping the Queen of Clubs.



4—Sinbad made things lively by his amusing tales of adventure and his passengers were delighted with the magic ship, which obeyed every command of Sinbad's. None of our friends, however, saw the monster form of a sea serpent, which was swimming rapidly toward the boat.



5—When the sea serpent came to the boat Sinbad introduced him to everybody and began sharpening his razor. "The sea serpent comes up every day for me to shave his whiskers," Sinbad told them; "for they get tangled in the seaweed and bother him if his whiskers are allowed to grow!"



6—Dickie made the soap suds and lathered the sea serpent's face with a whitewash brush while Mr. Twee Deedle went below to find the talcum powder. "Some Mereboys yelled ba-a-a-a! at me this morning," the sea serpent began, but swallowed a lot of soap suds and coughed so hard he almost blew the sails off the boat.

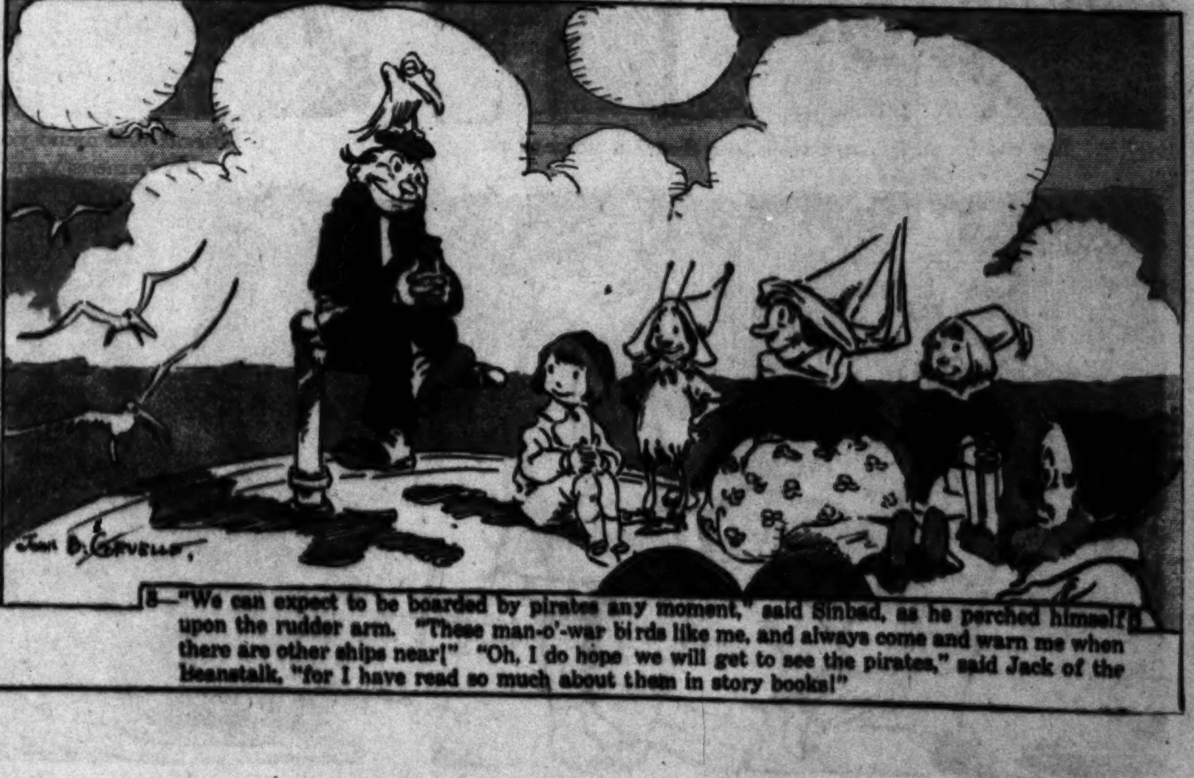
7—When Sinbad had finished shaving him the serpent dived under the boat and flickered his tail, sending the boat away up in the air. "He always does that to show his appreciation," said Sinbad when the boat had settled from it's wild flight.



8—"We can expect to be boarded by pirates any moment," said Sinbad, as he perched himself upon the rudder arm. "These man-o'-war birds like me, and always come and warn me when there are other ships near!" "Oh, I do hope we will get to see the pirates," said Jack of the Beanstalk, "for I have read so much about them in story books!"

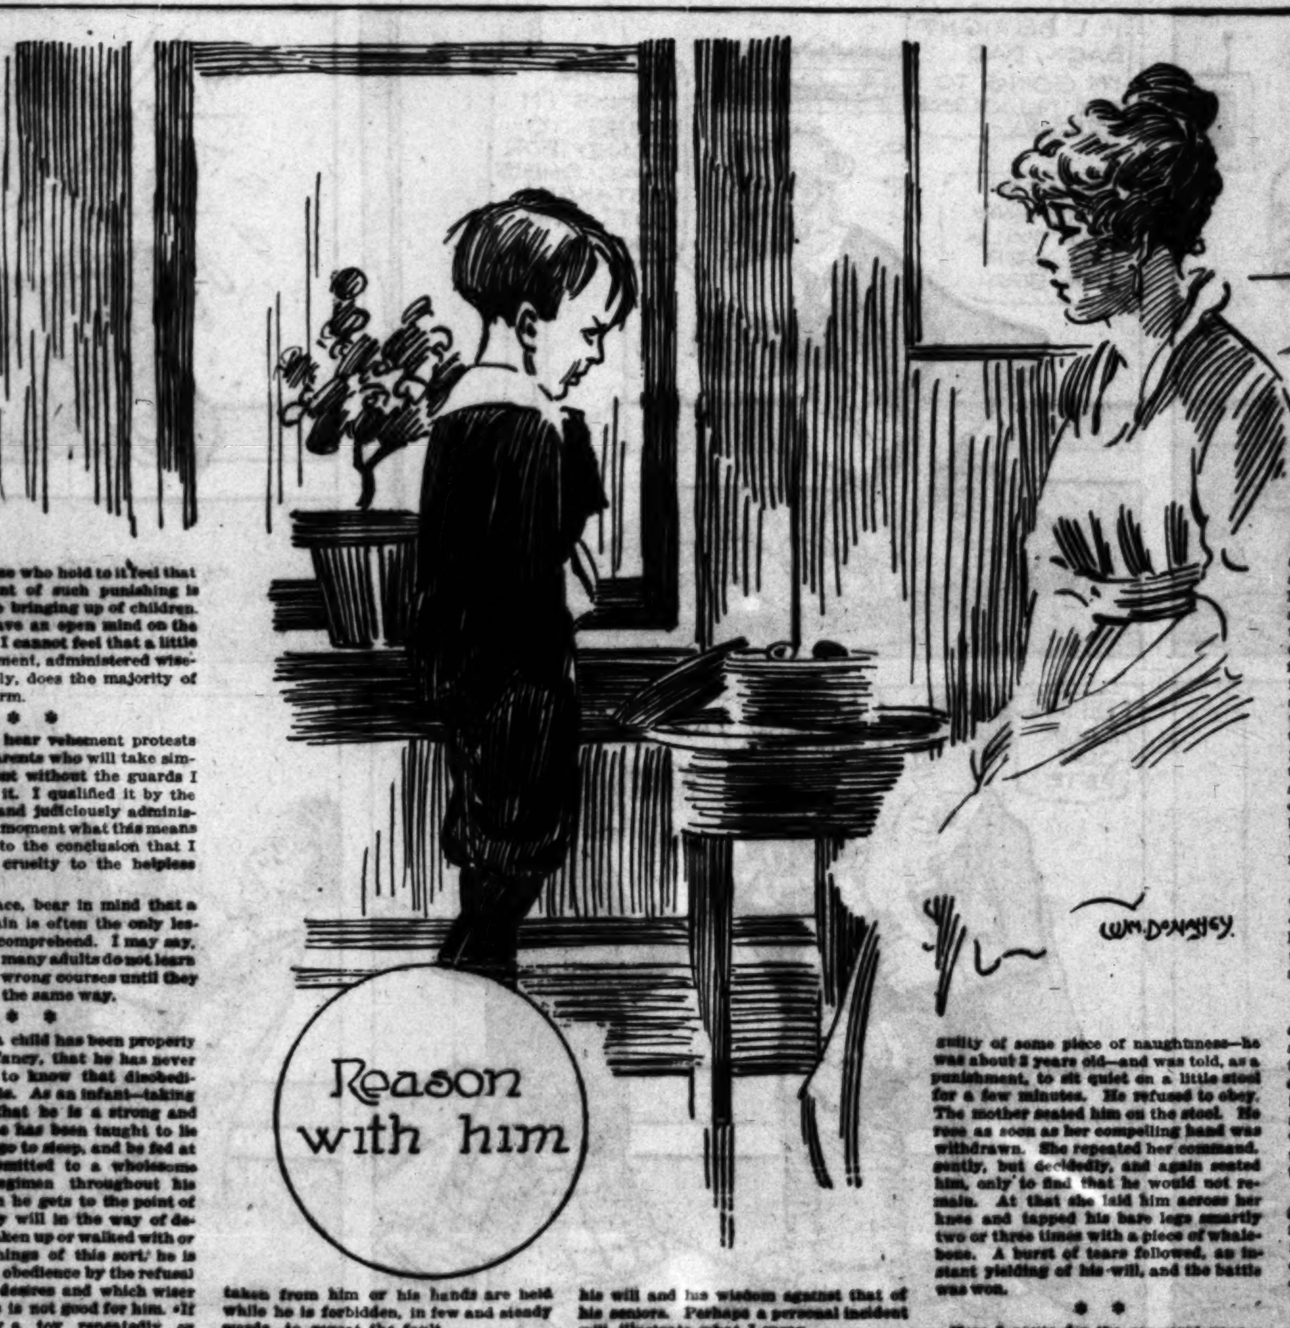
OBEDIENCE AND BASHFULNESS.



Reason with him

THE following queries, embodied in a letter from a correspondent, will, I am sure, interest other mothers as much as they do me:

"When I was a child a woman whipped her 3 year old son for ten or more minutes steadily to compel him to return the greeting I had given him on entering the house. From that hour he always returned anybody's greeting. Was this right, or might the child have outgrown his almost only fault unaided? My children, like myself, have always been more or less bashful. When spoken to or asked to repeat some little verse learned at school they blush, and, in short, "fall all over themselves." Should I, in order to help their future, compel them to repeat the poem or bit of news, as the case may be, as requested—compel them as a simple point of doing their duty?

"A MOTHER."

To my mind both questions hinge upon the one essential—the necessity of absolute obedience.

As a matter of course you do not know what the episode of the boy's refusal to return your greeting may have followed. There may have been other instances of refusal to obey and the mother may have felt this a case which could not be passed over unnoticed. At the same time, although I am a stickler for obedience I must confess that I think her course on this occasion was to be deprecated. In the first place she was guilty of the error of punishing the child in the presence of some one else—always a mistake. In the second place, she made you, the innocent cause of the whipping, a witness of the penalty and a sufferer in the pain you saw her inflict.

My counsel in such circumstances would have been for the mother to pass over the boy's naughtiness, after seeing that an ordinary command would do no good, and to reason with him and perhaps punish him later, after the visitor's departure. Your feelings would then have been spared and the boy's own self-respect preserved.

Children have a keen sense of dignity, whether we perceive it or not, and it lowers them in their own eyes to have punishment, especially corporal punishment, administered in the presence of spectators. Moreover, it wounds their sense of justice, and they never get over the impression made upon them by the parent's wrong course in the conditions. I have known children who never held the least hard feeling against whippings bestowed upon them by their parents in what the children considered justifiable circumstances, but who carried all their lives a grudge for a lighter punishment which was not merited or which shamed them in the eyes of others.

Of course such a query as this opens up all the question of whipping, spanking, and the like. Those parents who are opposed to it are usually strong in their views, while those who hold to it feel that a certain amount of such punishing is necessary in the bringing up of children. I hope that I have an open mind on the matter, and yet I cannot feel that a little corporal punishment, administered wisely and judiciously, does the majority of children any harm.

Already I can hear vehement protests on the part of parents who will take simply my statement without the guards I have put upon it. I qualified it by the words "wisely and judiciously administered." Think a moment what this means before jumping to the conclusion that I am advocating cruelty to the helpless child.

In the first place, bear in mind that a little physical pain is often the only lesson a child can comprehend. I may say, by the way, that many adults do not learn to refrain from wrong courses until they are punished in the same way.

Suppose that a child has been properly trained from infancy, that he has never been permitted to know that disobedience was possible. As an infant—taking it for granted that he is a strong and healthy child—he has been taught to lie in his cradle, to go to sleep, and be fed at fixed hours, submitted to a wholesome and sensible regimen throughout his baby life. When he gets to the point of opposing his tiny will in the way of demanding to be taken up or walked with or various other things of this sort, he is given a lesson in obedience by the refusal of the thing he desires and which wiser judgment knows is not good for him. If he throws away a toy repeatedly or strikes at an attendant, the plaything is taken from him or his hands are held while he is forbidden, in few and steady words, to repeat the fault.

So it goes on until he is older and tests his will and his wisdom against that of his seniors. Perhaps a personal incident will illustrate what I mean.

A small boy of my acquaintance was guilty of some piece of naughtiness—he was about 2 years old—and was told, as a punishment, to sit quiet on a little stool for a few minutes. He refused to obey. The mother seated him on the stool. He rose as soon as her compelling hand was withdrawn. She repeated her command, gently, but decidedly, and again seated him, only to find that he would not remain. At that she laid him across her knee and tapped his bare legs smartly two or three times with a piece of whalebone. A burst of tears followed, an instant yielding of his will, and the battle was won.

Here I pause for the comment upon a big, strong woman using force to subdue a poor little child! Those who take this attitude do not rightly see the conditions. It was not an angry parent vanquishing a helpless baby by brute strength. It was the older and wiser person teaching the child the great lesson that he must conform to constituted authority as embodied in her. She had not lost her temper; she was not angry with her child. She was only helping him to learn that all through existence, parents, teachers, employers, law, nature, God, are saying to the individual, "You must not!" The sooner the boy or girl learns this the easier life will be, the better work will be put into it, the less resistance will there be to overcome in growth and development and conformity to law and order.

The child who is indulged in infancy, who is never taught that there are stronger and better wills than his, is bound to have a hard and bitter struggle all along the way with himself and with circumstances.

Never should a child be chastised by an angry person; never should a blow be struck in wrath or even in exasperation, or without having investigated the cause of the disobedience and discovered if it was due to misunderstanding or to some other explainable condition. If whipping or slapping is thus bestowed there is little danger that a child will be the victim of unwarrantable cruelties.

I may say, right here, that I shall be glad to hear from other mothers—and from fathers, too—upon this topic, both from the standpoint of the parent who chastises and of the child who has been chastised. But please do not waste your time telling of unjust punishments, given in unfair conditions—only of those bestowed by the loving and wise parent, how they have succeeded and how they have failed. Not all [illegible] penalties. Some are hardened by [illegible] others are heartbroken by a [illegible] ment as well as love [illegible]

So far as the bashful child is [illegible] something more is involved than the question of obedience, important as [illegible] The child who has been from the [illegible] trained in this virtue will make at least an attempt to comply with the [illegible] recite or repeat the verse [illegible] ence has been made. There is a great difference between [illegible] and the agony of bashfulness or diffidence from which some persons suffer [illegible] childhood and indeed throughout life. I have known men and women [illegible] as platform speakers and [illegible] even actors and noted [illegible] their lives underwent tortures of stage fright before every appearance [illegible] dress. Yet in spite of it they [illegible] and "made good" along their chosen lines.

Such diffidence can be conquered [illegible] unvanquished it will be a [illegible] always. Talk to your child about [illegible] him, if you will, that you [illegible] dured the unhappiness [illegible] called upon to do anything which [illegible] attention to himself and [illegible] make him understand [illegible] will be to him to get the better of [illegible] weakness; that it will grow [illegible] gence and if he does not gain the upper hand of it in childhood it will [illegible] with his years.

I am afraid I have [illegible] with such indulgence in [illegible] possess if I had not [illegible] pleasant manifestations of it. [illegible] memory a clear picture of a [illegible] brought to my house by [illegible] thrusting his head between [illegible] knees and bursting into loud [illegible] anguish because he was told to [illegible] hands with me. I recall [illegible] about the same age [illegible] her mother's skirts and [illegible] voice in shrieks when [illegible] to her hostess. In both [illegible] aware that the children [illegible] taught obedience from [illegible] the call was made upon [illegible] thing which was unpleasant [illegible] dence the protest was [illegible] ness.

All of you who have [illegible] shame in maturer years [illegible] ness, lack of courage, [illegible] meeting strangers will [illegible] that the weakness would [illegible] easily conquered if [illegible] For the sake of their [illegible] parent should [illegible] her children a [illegible] than leave them to [illegible] adult years.

May I hope to hear [illegible] on both the points [illegible] spondent's letter? I [illegible] interesting instances and [illegible]

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

SO many letters of appreciation have come to me lately that I wish to make space for a few of them:

"May I take this opportunity to tell you that I thoroughly enjoy the Corner? I look forward to it each week as one of the most interesting parts of the paper. There is such a number of good recipes! MRS. R. M. S."

"I want to thank you for inserting my letter concerning our need of books. Several friends were good enough to respond with some excellent books and the pleasure they will give to our little village cannot be estimated. MRS. R. D. B."

This correspondent does not ask for further books, but I am quite sure that other books would be welcomed by her for the little library she is trying to start in her village and that her appreciation would be no less keen for more contributions in this line. I shall keep her address for the use of those who wish to aid her.

"To you, dear Marion Harland, and to all my other unknown friends who have lightened the weight of my burden by kind words, good wishes, books, magazines, games, etc., I offer my most grateful thanks. Such kindness gives me untold pleasure and an impulse to higher things. It makes the burdens and all the needful discipline of life lighter and easier to bear. Your Corner certainly has the right name when it is called the 'Helping Hand.' I have answered each letter accompanied by an address, but I send this to the page lest some letters may not have been received. Some correspondents offered books I would have been glad to get but did not give any address, and still others offered books and the like if I would pay expressage. This I regretted very much that I could not do. I now have as many letters as I can answer and cannot undertake further correspondence. C. P."

The letter of this correspondent shows how prompt is the response which comes to any call of need when it is within the power of a Cornerite to reply to it.

Asked for a Typewriter.

"I wrote to you several weeks ago, but having received no answer I write to ask you if there are any rules for admission to the Helping Hand. If so, please let me know. I asked if some of the friends could not give me a typewriter and something pretty for my home.

"MRS. T. J. P."

There are no rules for admission to the Helping Hand and I am always glad to print a letter as soon as possible after it comes to me, but there are hundreds of such letters pouring in every week and it is only fair that each should have its turn—not one to be put in ahead of the others which arrived earlier. Moreover, typewriters are not plentiful and even when your letter is printed you cannot be sure that a machine such as you wish will be forthcoming. I hope the "something pretty" for your home may be sent to you and I wish you had specified what sort of thing you desired especially. If any one sends for your address I will of course give it promptly.

Post Cards for Library.

"I saw a letter in your Corner from a correspondent who has postal cards to give away. We are trying here to get a collection of places and industries for the public library for the teachers to borrow in reference to geography, history, and literature, and some cards could be used in the art department. I'll gladly pay the postage on any you may care to send of the above kinds if you will let me know about them. We are not buying any cards. J. F."

I am sorry I cannot send the address direct to the applicant of the Cornerite who offered postcards, but as the signature appended to the offer has not been given me I cannot trace it. I hope this paragraph may be seen by some one who can give postcards or views for this commendable object. The educational value of good postcards is high.

Letter for L. T.

"Will you send the inclosed letter to L. T.? I can't make out her address. I want to know what makes her cheerful.

"MRS. J. A. C."

I am sorry to say that I have no record of any L. T. and cannot find it without further details than this. If it comes I will forward the letter sent to me for her.

Starting a Library.

"I saw a notice in the paper of some one who would give a box of magazines to any one who would pay the freight on them. I would gladly do this and will either send it in advance or pay it on the box when it arrives. I am starting a library and will be pleased to receive the magazines. V. H."

Another instance of my inability to give assistance because of the magazines having been bestowed elsewhere before the letter was received. I trust some one will arise who can give aid in the effort of V. H. to start the library.

Making Cloth Waterproof.

"Will one of the Cornerites kindly tell me how to make cloth waterproof? In looking over some old magazines I found a formula for such work and filed it away so carefully that I am unable to find it when I have a need for it.

"Some one asked a little while ago for an old fashioned shortcake recipe. I have never found one to excel the following if it is carefully made: Sift together one and a half cups of flour, half a teaspoon of salt, and three level teaspoons of baking powder. With the finger tips mix into this one level tablespoon of shortening. Add enough sweet milk to make a soft dough. Toss one-half of the dough on a floured board and roll out to about three-eighths of an inch in thickness. Place on a pie plate or baking tin and dot with butter broken into tiny bits. Don't use chunks of butter or have it melted. Roll the remaining dough into a piece the size of the first. Place the second on the first layer and cover the upper also with bits of butter. Bake in a hot oven for from ten to fifteen minutes. When done the upper crust should be a rich brown, rather moist and porous looking. If it seems dry spread it with more butter while still hot. Separate the layers; put the fruit between them and on top. Serve while still hot. Do not stint on the butter if you wish a good shortcake and do not use a strong cooking butter, but a good table butter. L. S. P."

We are glad to have the shortcake recipe, for it sounds as if an excellent product could be made by these directions. I hope the formula for waterproofing cloth may come; it will be of use to others beside L. S. P.

An Offer of Magazines.

"I am going to offer my little mite in return for the many benefits I have received from the Helping Hand. We, my husband and I, live in a small coal mining camp. There are no amusements of any sort except one picture show. The people are almost all foreigners. So we read a great many magazines. I have no way to dispose of them. I would be glad to send them to any one who would like to read them. I have several different kinds and some with several pages especially for the little ones. I could divide them among several and send complete stories to each person. Some are household magazines with both stories and a bundle of good things for the housekeeper. I especially prize those magazines, and I never cut anything out of them, but keep a book into which I copy anything I like to keep. I think it spoils one's pleasure to be reading something and come to a page where a portion is gone. I will pay the postage for any one not able to pay it and will be glad to pass the books on.

"MRS. F. L. B."

This shows how one who is seeking an opportunity to be of help can find the chance. Many persons away from the pleasures and advantages of the city as well as its friendships and agreeable acquaintances would feel there was no opening to be of service and would lapse into selfishness. Instead of that comes this generous offer from the little town, an offer for which I am personally grateful and which will aid others.

Cookies Like Grandmother's.

"Instead of using the space for the letter I sent you before I wish you would tell my mother-in-law (metaphorically speaking) how to make cookies 'like my grandmother used to make.' They were not molasses cookies, but made of sugar, and they had caraway seed in them; nor were they thin and dry. They did not need the glass of home made currant wine to moisten them, which the dear old soul made from the currants which grew in her garden, but that home made wine was good, and the cookies were good, and the mincemeat which we used to 'hook' from the big stone jar in the cellar was good, too. All things seemed good back there where she lived. Above all else the dear old grandmothers were good. Not the kind who want the mocking birds shot because they awakened her too early, but the kind who bought the boys a box of firecrackers, then stuffed her ears with cotton and spent the Fourth of July in the attic. Bless their memories; why can't we have more of them? J. H. W."

Before this screed reached me I had already sent to print the former letter from J. H. W. in which he made a generous offer of magazines that is likely to be promptly accepted. It is little enough return for his kindness if some one sends the recipe he wishes for his grandmother's cookies. The directions I give here will make a delicious caraway cooky, I know, and if they are not the sort J. H. W. wants I trust some one will supplement it with a better one: Cream half a cup of butter with a cup of powdered sugar until light, then beat in the yolks of three eggs. Whip the whites stiff and add them to the other ingredients alternately with two cups of flour. Stir in one teaspoon of caraway seed and enough more flour to enable you to roll out the dough in a thin sheet. Cut into rounds and bake quickly. Sprinkle granulated sugar over them while they are warm and as soon as cold put into a tin box. Keep this closed.

Martinia Pickles.

"Will you please give me a recipe for Martinia pickles? A. M. H."

Gather the vegetables when a needle will pierce them; wash them and pack them down in a stone jar; cover with cold brine strong enough to bear up an egg. Leave the pickles in this for three days, stirring them up from the bottom every day. Drain; pour cold water upon them, and leave them in this for twenty-four hours. Pour this off; pack the pickles into self-sealing jars, either the pint or the quart size. Have ready a gallon of scalding vinegar in which you have boiled for ten minutes two dozen whole cloves and black peppers, six blades of mace, and three teaspoons of mustard seed. Pour the vinegar into jars upon the pickles, add a tablespoon of sugar for each quart of vinegar, and screw covers on the jars. The pickles will not be ready to eat under six weeks.

Wants Embroidery Patterns.

"I have thought for some time of writing to your Corner and asking if any one would give me embroidery patterns cut from the paper, such as Mrs. J. G. M. recently offered. I would be so glad of a share in her gift. I would be so happy if I could get either the large centerpiece patterns or copies, especially one large tiger lily piece.

Although the patterns requested had been given elsewhere before this letter was received, I am confident that some one else has a store of newspaper patterns such as Mrs. H. L. R. wishes and will be glad to send them to her. I shall be happy to supply her address on demand.

Centerpiece in Daisies and Spider Webs

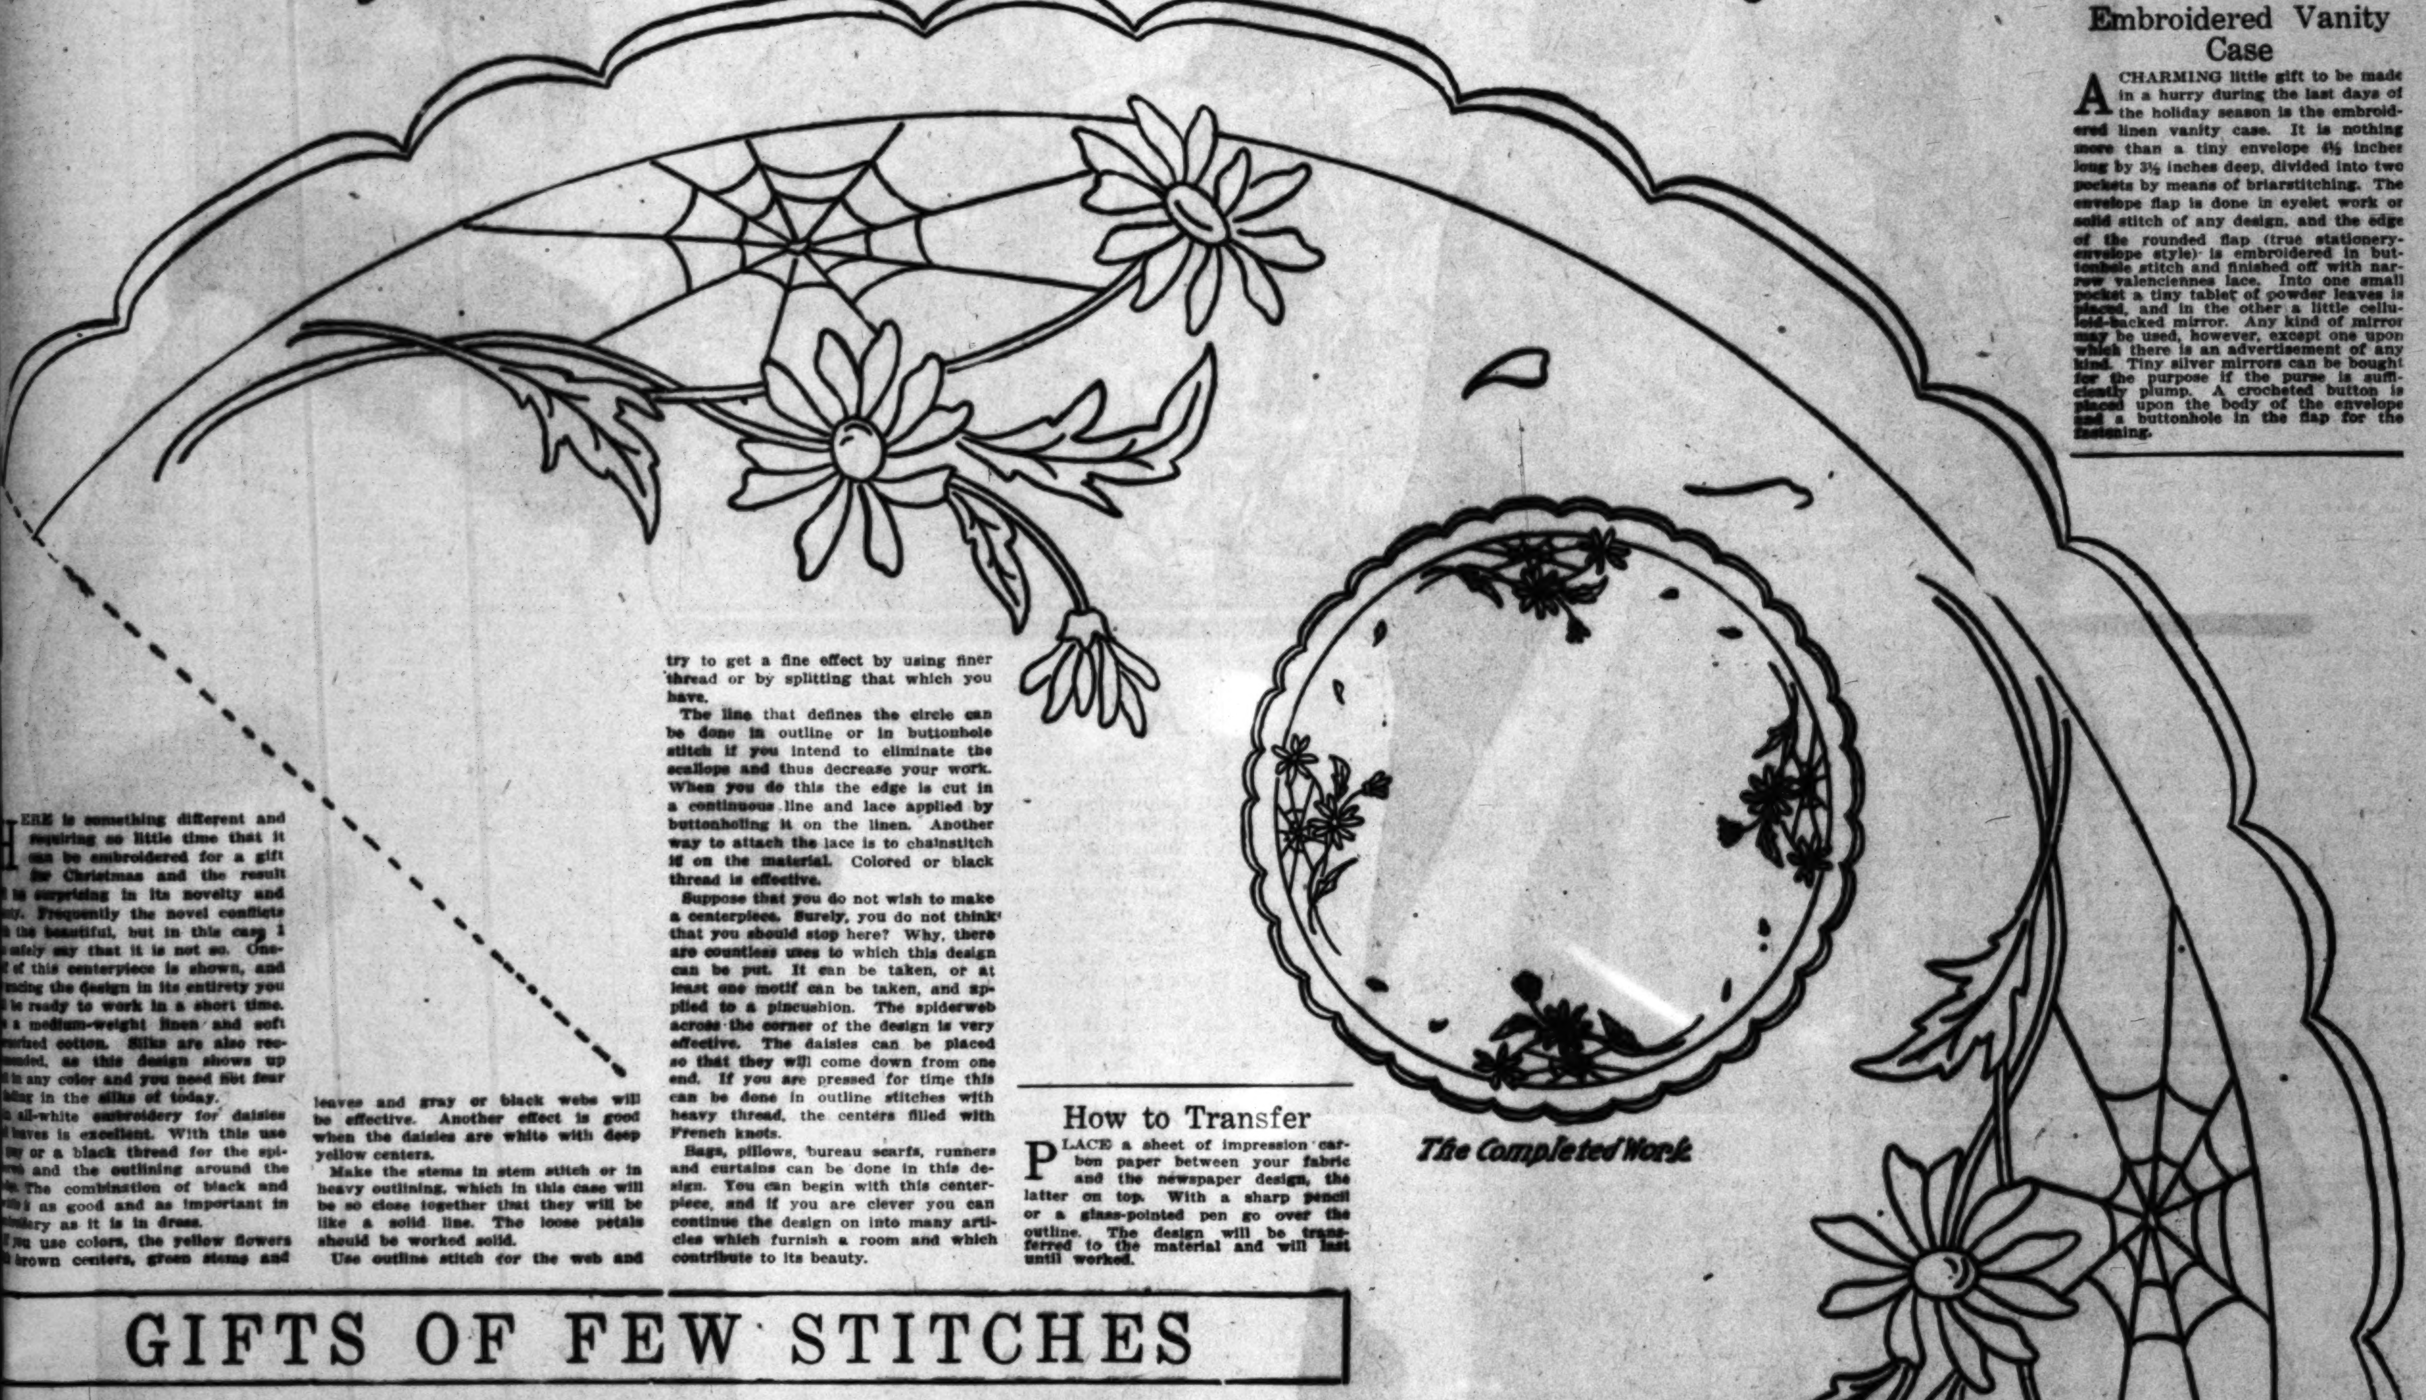
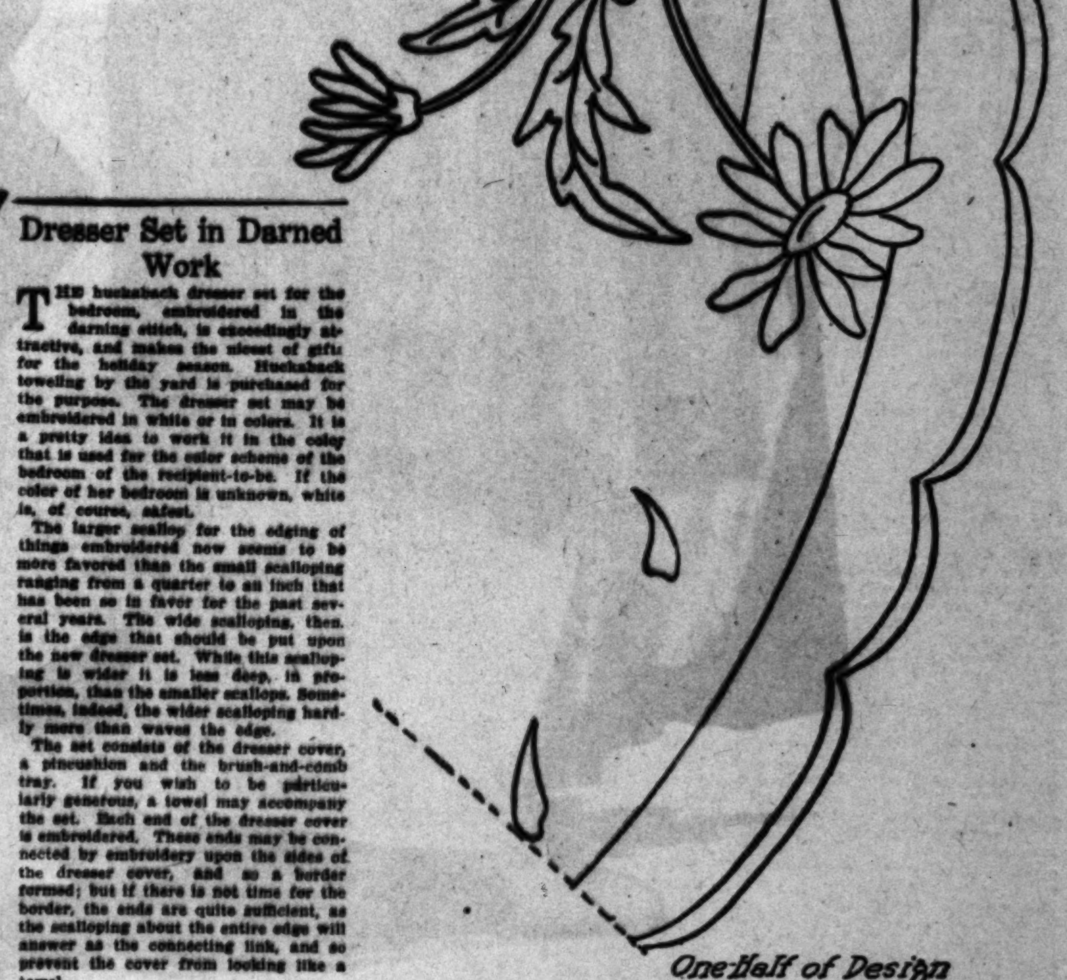
Embroidered Vanity Case

A CHARMING little gift to be made in a hurry during the last days of the holiday season is the embroidered linen vanity case. It is nothing more than a tiny envelope 4½ inches long by 3½ inches deep, divided into two pockets by means of briarstitching. The envelope flap is done in eyelet work or solid stitch of any design, and the edge of the rounded flap (true stationery-envelope style) is embroidered in buttonhole stitch and finished off with narrow valenciennes lace. Into one small pocket a tiny tablet of powder leaves is placed, and in the other a little celluloid-backed mirror. Any kind of mirror may be used, however, except one upon which there is an advertisement of any kind. Tiny silver mirrors can be bought for the purpose if the purse is sufficiently plump. A crocheted button is placed upon the body of the envelope and a buttonhole in the flap for the fastening.





The Completed Work

One-Half of Design

HERE is something different and requiring so little time that it can be embroidered for a gift for Christmas and the result is surprising in its novelty and ty. Frequently the novel conflicts h the beautiful, but in this case I safely say that it is not so. One-f of this centerpiece is shown, and racing the design in its entirety you l be ready to work in a short time. a medium-weight linen and soft rized cotton. Silks are also recmended, as this design shows up l in any color and you need not fear ding in the silks of today.

all-white embroidery for daisies leaves is excellent. With this use y or a black thread for the spiweb and the outlining around the le. The combination of black and is as good and as important in oidery as it is in dress.

you use colors, the yellow flowers brown centers, green stems and leaves and gray or black webs will be effective. Another effect is good when the daisies are white with deep yellow centers.

Make the stems in stem stitch or in heavy outlining, which in this case will be so close together that they will be like a solid line. The loose petals should be worked solid.

Use outline stitch for the web and try to get a fine effect by using finer thread or by splitting that which you have.

The line that defines the circle can be done in outline or in buttonhole stitch if you intend to eliminate the scallops and thus decrease your work. When you do this the edge is cut in a continuous line and lace applied by buttonholing it on the linen. Another way to attach the lace is to chainstitch it on the material. Colored or black thread is effective.

Suppose that you do not wish to make a centerpiece. Surely, you do not think that you should stop here? Why, there are countless uses to which this design can be put. It can be taken, or at least one motif can be taken, and applied to a pincushion. The spiderweb across the corner of the design is very effective. The daisies can be placed so that they will come down from one end. If you are pressed for time this can be done in outline stitches with heavy thread, the centers filled with French knots.

Bags, pillows, bureau scarfs, runners and curtains can be done in this design. You can begin with this centerpiece, and if you are clever you can continue the design on into many articles which furnish a room and which contribute to its beauty.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

Embroidered Napkin Ring

I YOU are in the habit of distributing many gifts during the gift season, and if you must make gifts with your own fingers, will welcome suggestions for dered trifles that consume but time in the making and small for materials.

handkerchief bag for traveling ceedingly easy to make. The shown is made from a nine-inch of pale blue satin ribbon four wide. Each end is turned in inch, so that when the ribbon doubled the little bag forms a square. Before the ribbon is whipped into a bag, however, it is featherstitched almost its full length and across each end, the corners of the stitching joining so as to form an oblong. In the center of one end is worked a small wreath of wild roses and forget-me-nots and green foliage. Upon the other end is worked the monogram of the person to whom the gift is to go. The piece of ribbon is then doubled in half and whipped together at each side. It is then complete but for the two rosettes, one at either side of the top of the bag. The little bag will hold just enough handkerchiefs for the week-end trip, and is a handy thing to keep them from scattering about the suitcase.

Very beautiful is the traveling glove case, which is for the same week-end purpose. It is, however, when analyzed, not so complicated as it would seem at first glance. In the embroidery the spiderweb stitch is employed very effectively. The remainder of the embroidery is buttonholing. The spaces under the webs are cut out after the embroidery is finished. A pretty valenciennes edge is used to advantage. The word "Gloves" is embroidered first in solid stitch and then outlined. A monogram may be substituted for "Gloves" if you prefer, or a small monogram may be worked on the opposite side of the case. The case is chiefly for white or pale-colored gloves that would soil by coming into contact with other articles which might be in the suitcase. The deep envelope flap is usually sufficient to prevent the gloves from falling out without any additional fastening.

The pretty pincushion is made of two doilies laced together with ribbon. The edges are unevenly scalloped and buttonhole-stitched and the attractive center is done in punch work and Italian relief work. The punch work is surrounded by outline work. The under doily is perfectly plain. Eyelets form the holes through which the doilies are laced together over a little colored silk cushion. The whole is ornamented with a large many-looped bow of narrow ribbon to match the cushion in color.

Either for party bag or workbag can the pretty trifle of rose-colored silk be used. It is a perfectly plain little bag made of a circle of silk drawn together about the edges to form the opening. It is ornamented with gold lace, white lace edging and little artificial flowers and foliage of rose and green ribbons. A gilt cord forms the drawstring. The bag may be lined or not, as you prefer.

Nursery Luncheon Set

THE tan linen luncheon set is a most practical one for the children's luncheon, and it is quite effective. It can, of course, be made in any design in which the white luncheon sets are to be had. The embroidery upon the linen-color luncheon set is, however, worked in color instead of white or self color. The contrast is more pleasing, and certainly the colors are more attractive to the children. Sometimes a formal design is used and sometimes the luncheon set consists of miniature zoological gardens each in its separate little circle. In other words, the luncheon dollies are embroidered with animals of various kinds. Sometimes the animals are all of one kind, and at others there are sometimes as many as four different kinds of animals upon the small plate dollies and any number of animals upon the luncheon cloth or larger dollies. Upon the tumbler dollies there need be only one animal.

Birds, too, can be used upon these nursery luncheon sets. Sometimes little children are used, and even Kewpies can be brought into play. There are so many pictures of Kewpies floating about that it would be an easy matter to use a bit of tracing paper and so transfer the picture to the luncheon set at home, without the trouble of having the design stamped at the art needlework store.

Of course, if you would prefer to have the luncheon set in white, the white linen can be worked in red, delft blues or green, with much effect. The linen-colored set is, however, more practical for the nursery table. Such a set makes a pretty gift either to the children or the children's mother.

Dresser Set in Darned Work

THE huckaback dresser set for the bedroom, embroidered in the darning stitch, is exceedingly attractive, and makes the nicest of gifts for the holiday season. Huckaback towelling by the yard is purchased for the purpose. The dresser set may be embroidered in white or in colors. It is a pretty idea to work it in the color that is used for the color scheme of the bedroom of the recipient-to-be. If the color of her bedroom is unknown, white is, of course, safest.

The larger scallop for the edging of things embroidered now seems to be more favored than the small scalloping ranging from a quarter to an inch that has been so in favor for the past several years. The wide scalloping, then, is the edge that should be put upon the new dresser set. While this scalloping is wider it is less deep, in proportion, than the smaller scallops. Sometimes, indeed, the wider scalloping hardly more than waves the edge.

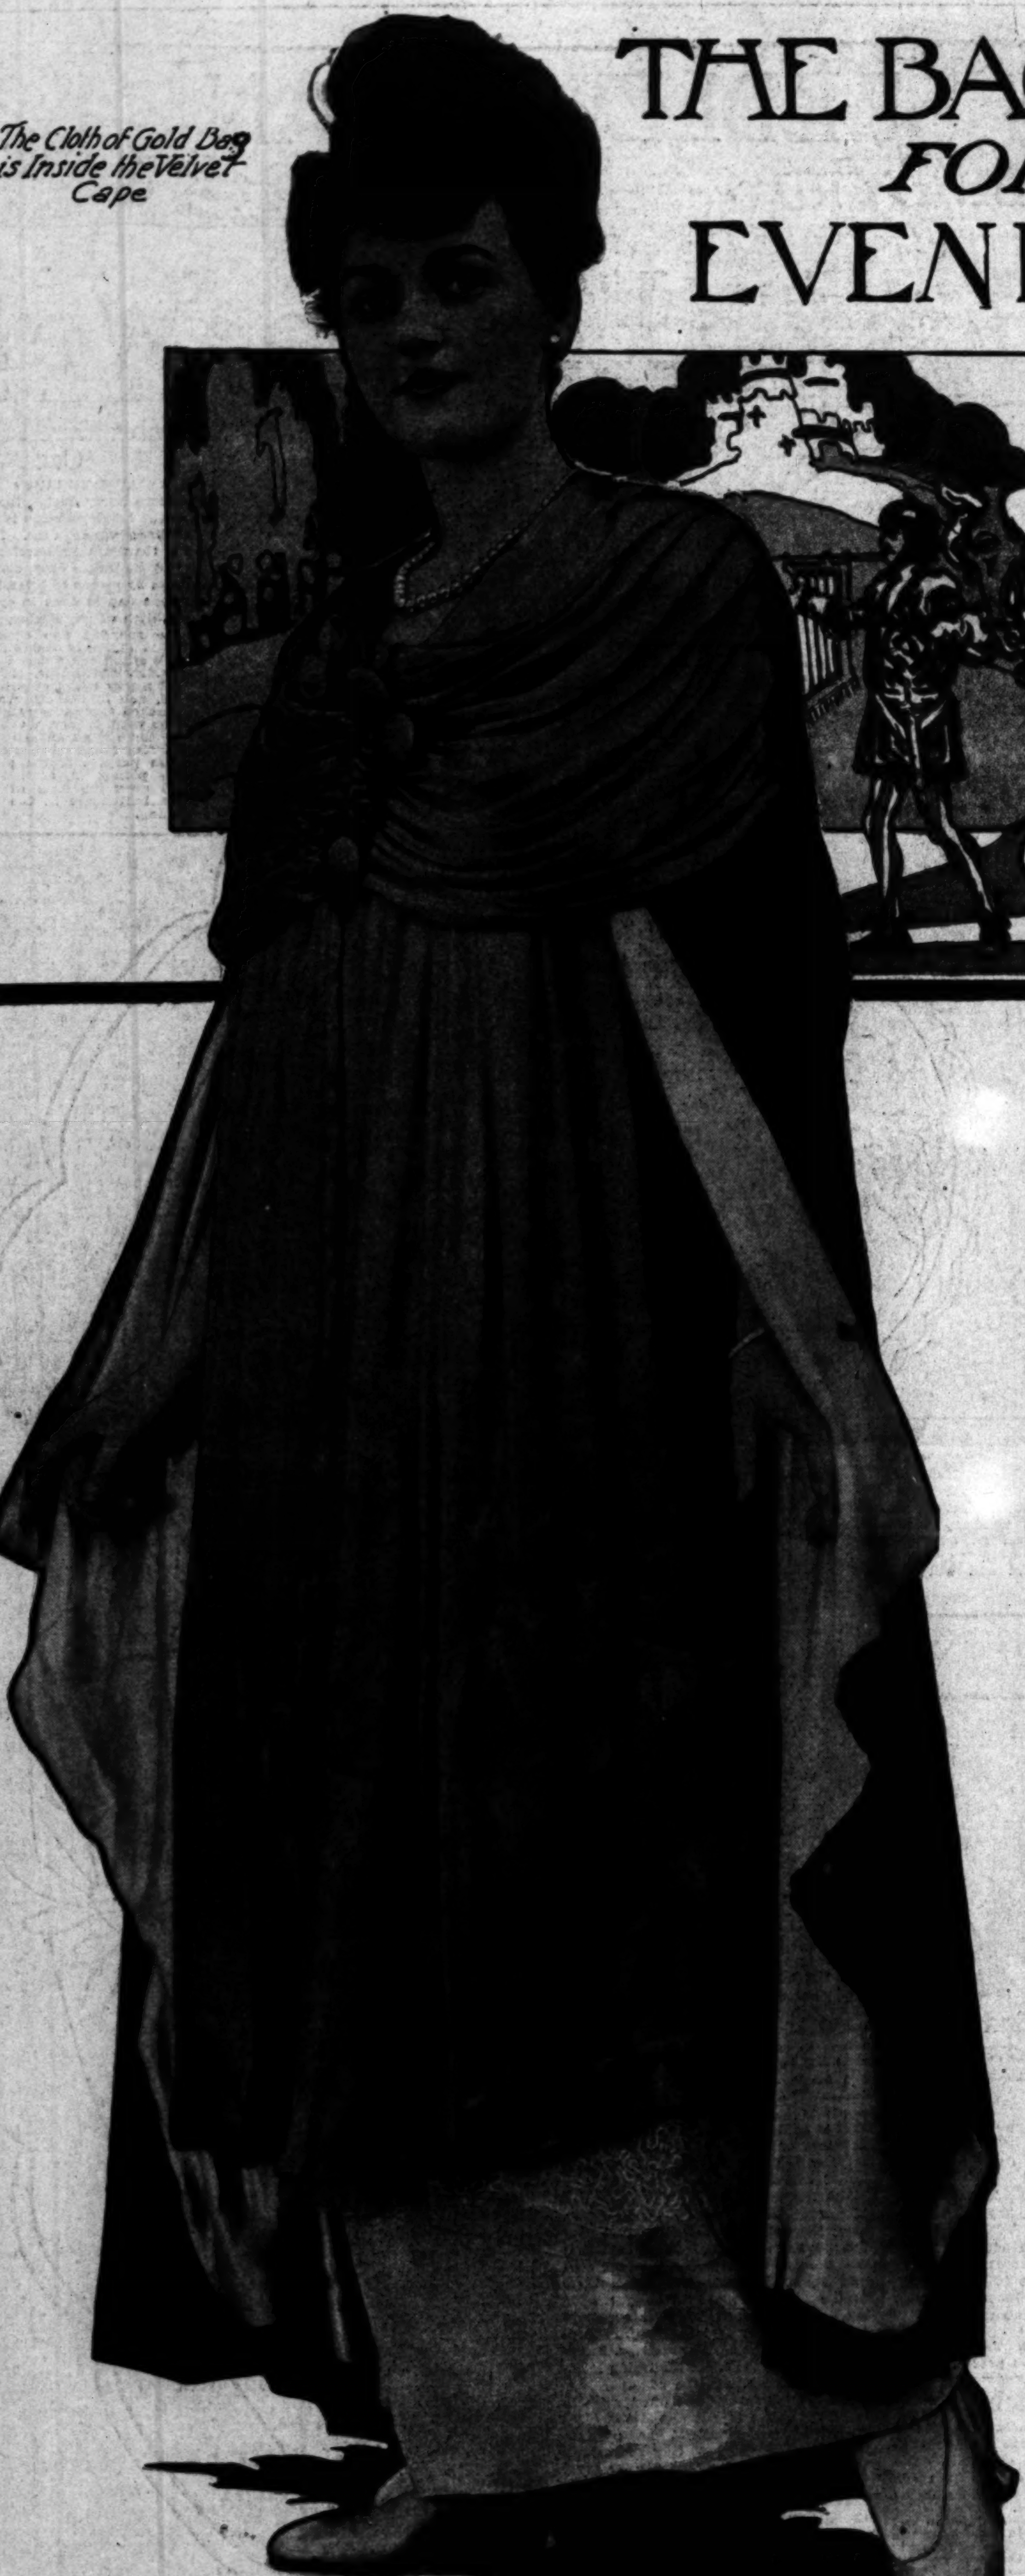
The set consists of the dresser cover, a pincushion and the brush-and-comb tray. If you wish to be particularly generous, a towel may accompany the set. Each end of the dresser cover is embroidered. These ends may be connected by embroidery upon the sides of the dresser cover, and so a border formed; but if there is not time for the border, the ends are quite sufficient, as the scalloping about the entire edge will answer as the connecting link, and so prevent the cover from looking like a towel.

A very pretty design for darned work is that of large wild roses. The roses are stamped upon the huckaback (which, by the way, is fine and evenly woven so that the threads form an excellent guide for the darning stitches), and then, instead of darning the roses, the background of the design is worked, leaving the roses outlined but unembroidered. Do not work the background straight across the edges, but work it so that it curves off the corners of the cover, and its edge, toward the center of the towel, forms a curved line which bulges toward the ends of the cover and not toward the center of the cover. The centers of the flowers are done in French knots, and long darning stitches radiating from the center form the stamens. These stamens each end in a French knot. The foliage is formed in the same way as the flowers, only that there are veins in the blank spaces, worked in outline stitch. Sometimes a buttonhole edge is worked about the edges of both flowers and foliage, as though serving to connect the blank spaces with the darned background. A heavy outline stitch of some kind may be used instead.

The pincushion is made in oblong fashion, and the design occupies the center of the cushion. Two oblongs of huckaback are cut, stamped with scallops and buttonholed. The under oblong is plain but for the scalloped edge. This oblong is to be used for the bottom of the cushion and protrudes beyond the edge of the upper oblong, and so forms a more elaborate edge. The upper oblong has an oblong of darned work within its center, leaving a two-inch expanse of white about the edge, between the central design and the scalloping. The wild roses and foliage upon the darned background are of the same size as those upon the dresser cover. Eyelets are made in both oblongs and the whole laced together with ribbon that matches the colored embroidery in shade.

The comb-and-brush tray is made from a small picture frame of whatever wood matches the furnishings of the bedroom. Upon this tray is placed a brass handle at each end. A piece of huckaback in the same design as the rest of the set is framed in the glass of the tray. It makes a charming appearance and is a new idea for the dresser, and novelty always adds to the holiday gift. The tray alone makes a pretty gift if you do not wish to go to the expense of the trouble of presenting the entire set. There is a pretty huckaback towel which may go with the set to make it quite complete. It is embroidered in darned work across only one end. Both ends are, however, scalloped.

THE BAG WRAP FOR EVENING



The Cloth of Gold Bag is Inside the Velvet Cape

AND now it's a bag that the up-to-date woman jumps into before taking the evening social plunge. Verily the ways of the fashion follower are varied and entertaining! Who would have thought of a bag wrap that is certainly far more beautiful than many simpler forms of this practical garment? In days not so far in the past a comparison of a wrap with a bag would have been deemed odious, to say the least. Now if you have a bag wrap you are fortunate and fashionable.

In the realm of the evening wrap there have been capes and coats; they have been modified and trimmed with everything imaginable. It is not surprising, then, to find a suggestion of the becoming cape in the bag wrap that has a cloth-of-gold underform. The American-beauty velvet shows to great advantage, lined with cloth-of-gold and sweeping back over the shoulders. Under this is a veritable bag of gold cloth that serves as a protective covering which can be drawn tightly around the evening dress that can be concealed under it. At the top of the wrap there is a shawl drapery of gold cloth which is buttoned at the center line and buttons under round fabric buttons. This drapery passes around the shoulders and crosses at the back in soft, graceful folds.

Another expression of the bag wrap has its protective policy emphasized at the lower edge and the sleeves. It is of biscuit-colored panne velvet and is trimmed with fur. It fits closely at the top and promises protection from the winter. The sleeves draw up on elastic and defy the weather, which is a pleasing thought for the sleeveless evening gown of this year. The lower part is also under the control of a band of elastic and snugly holds in the wrap, so that the sheerest evening skirt need not carry with it pneumonia. Yes, it is as protective as a bag, but it does not for one minute forget that it is a beautiful evening wrap.

There are going to be other exemplifications of the bag wrap. Particularly for motoring will this be taken up by the woman who recognizes that a bag is a good thing in the world of dress. As for the bag for sleeping out under the stars while pursuing the fresh-air idea, what can be better?
